Arizona Justice Holds Term is "Foul, Abusive and Profane Language."

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CLIFTON (Ariz.) Sept. 7.—A new offense has been defined by a Clifton justice of the peace, who has decided that to call a person "kaiser" is to utter "foul, abusive and profane language." A Clifton woman thus designated by a female neighbor in the course of a back-fence quarrel had the neighbor arrested. The accused was allowed to go, but with a warning.

BATTLE SUMMARY.

GERMAN BULGES FLATTENED.

[Resume by the Associated Press.]

Marshal Foch's succession of hammer blows along the German lines from Rheims to Arras since July 18 have well nigh completely flattened out the bulges created by the German offensives.

The well co-ordinated progress of his attack has brought him to a point where he may well be able to strike a still more disastrous blow to the German defensive system.

From Laon to Cambrai the Hindenburg line stood all last year in the way of the Allied armies seeking to drive back the enemy from Northern France and Flanders. Little impression was made in that line, except temporarily by Byng's drive below Cambrai last fall. Already in this summer's campaign the line has been pierced on a wide front along its northerly stretches by the British and within the past few hours it has been penetrated in its southerly reaches by the French.

It appears that Marshal Foch's plan may prove to involve the turning of the line on both its flanks—at Cambrai and Laon.

GERMANS LOSE GAINS.

As a whole, through the campaign inaugurated by Marshal Foch, July 18, and in particular through the Franco-British drive during August, the German stroke of March 21 now has been virtually cancelled. The Germans have been pushed from all the territory they conquered by the great offensive they opened on that date except for a narrow strip between La Fere and Cambrai.

Along this old line, the enemy now is facing an Allied force that is under a unified command and that, instead of somewhat anxiously awaiting a powerful German stroke, is on the aggressive and powerfully reinforced by the imposing mass of American forces that has been transported to France since the early spring.

In the north the British have been for several days in a position to deliver what might Continuous Defeats Cause Crack German Troops to Lose Heart.

Victorious Pressure of Allied Armies Keep Hutier's Men on Run.

BY G. H. PERRIS.

[ATLANTIC CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WITH THE FRENCH ARMIES, Sept. 6.—During this morning it became evident that before the victorious pressure of Debeney and Humbert, the armies of Von Hutier had abandoned hope of putting up a serious defense on the line of the Somme, and were retreating rapidly toward their old positions from St. Quentin, by Tergnier to the St. Gobain massif.

The abandonment of the good defensive positions around Folemeray and Coucy-le-Chateau, on our left, and around Marcival, at Mangin's center, to say nothing of the Vesle, can only mean that the continuous fighting of the last week has taken all the heart out of the crack troops which had been brought in and used up in defending the approaches to what is perhaps the most vital of all the enemy positions in France.

Cavalry patrols of Humbert's right found Chauny unoccupied and pushed on to the edge of Viry-Noureuil, which is only three miles from Tergnier. At the northern end of the line Debeney's advance guards reached the Peronne-Ham high road from La Croix Moligneaux to Matigny at 7 a.m.

This was a sudden and bracing change of fortune for the regiments, which to late last night had been struggling without pause to win their way across the Ingon and the Somme, east of Vesle. Behind the marshy loop of the Ingon, Hill 77 rose in broad, bare slopes, and beyond this great position lay the Somme Canal and the swampy course of the river again.

BRIDGE THE SOMME.

Yesterday morning a few men managed to get over farther north to throw light bridges across the Somme and eject the Boche from the ruins of Flavy. At the same time French companies which had infiltrated around Hill 77 and had been driven back from Voyenne by a strong counter-attack, again captured the village, taking 200 prisoners, and crossing the river, occupied Offoy.

With two passages of the Somme thus forced, the German Alpine and other troops, which held out so stubbornly, must have felt the case to be hopeless, especially as they were being more and more nearly threatened on the south flank. Here the village of Esmery-Hallon, extending for about a mile along the ridge which overlooks all the countryside southwest of Ham, had been the scene of a stiff encounter Wednesday night and was solidly occupied yesterday morning. During the day Humbert's left had advanced to Berlancourt on the Ham road, north of Guiscard, and his right up the Oise Valley to near Damcourt.

Such marches look on the map much more easy than they are. In fact, precautions against ambushes, great and small, must be taken. For instance, the large chateau of Bethancourt, situated a mile west of Guiscard, blew up this morning. Before evacuating their comfortable home, the enemy had arranged this explosion by means of a time fuse, but the French advance guards are used to such traps by now, and are not to be easily caught.

MAKING FAST PROGRESS.

But the most striking thing in this changed situation is Mangin's rapid progress on either side of the Ailette. On the northern half of this sector we are practically back on the old front in face of the vast forest block of St. Gobain and between Viry-Noureuil and La Fere across the Oise, which, enlarged by marshes to the width of over a mile, is like the moat of a prodigious stronghold. South of the Ailette we have reached the borders of Vaux Aillon and La Faux, whence the front runs southwest to the hill crowned by Fort Conde, and then follows eastward the south bank of the Aisne.

When Von Boehn has withdrawn all his forces back to the Chemin des Dames, and that event can hardly be long delayed, the familiar problem of the use of the St. Quentin-Laon-Craonne system of field works will present itself again, but not quite in the same form. This system is no mere multiplication of trenches and wire fields—it is a true, strategical creation covering the Oise Valley, and behind it (for there are many successive defense lines at some points) the valleys of the Sambre and the Meuse.

The French armies spent long and bitter efforts during a large part of the year to force their way over the Chemin des Dames with a view to passing over the Ailette up to the gap of Laon and so out into the north plain.

PRICE OF SUGAR WILL ADVANCE.

Grocers Ordered to Sell Stock Purchased at Old Cost Without Rise.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7.—The price of sugar is to advance 1½ cents a pound at the refineries, beginning Monday, it was announced by Preston McKinney, acting Federal Food Administrator for California, here today.

"Any grocer or wholesaler selling at an advance the sugar purchased at the old price will have his sugar cut off. No excuses will be accepted," McKinney said.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Consumers will pay at least 1⅓ cents a pound more for sugar after the present stocks in the country are exhausted, under the new price of cane sugar at the seaboard, announced by the Sugar Equalization Board with the approval of President Wilson.

The new price is 9 cents, f.o.b., seaboard refining pounds for granulated, less 2 per cent. to refiners, compared with the existing price of 7¾ cents, with the same allowance for refiners.

BATTLE BULLETINS.

FROM OFFICIAL REPORTS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, Sept. 7.—French troops today penetrated from four to five miles on the Somme front, according to the War Office announcement tonight. They crossed the St. Quentin Canal at Tugny Bridge and station, capturing both places. Progress to the north of Vauxaillon was made, and Celle-sur-Aisne was captured. The French hold the general line from the western outskirts of Vaux, Fluquieres, Happencourt, the east of Tugny Bridge and St. Simon, Avesne, the western edge of Jussy, the railway from Ham to Tergnier, Amigny-Rouy and Barisis.

On the front between the Somme and the Oise the French continued to press forward last night, overcoming the resistance of the German rear guard, according to today's report. Pushing east of Ham, French troops have occupied the towns of Dury and Ollezy, more than three miles beyond Ham. North of the Ailette the French have made a further advance, winning the entire lower forest of Coucy. North of the Vesle, where American troops have been advancing there is no change in the situation. Barisis, north of the Ailette, was captured, and south of the river the French have taken Manteuil-la-Fosse, Conde Fort and Conde-sur-Aisne.

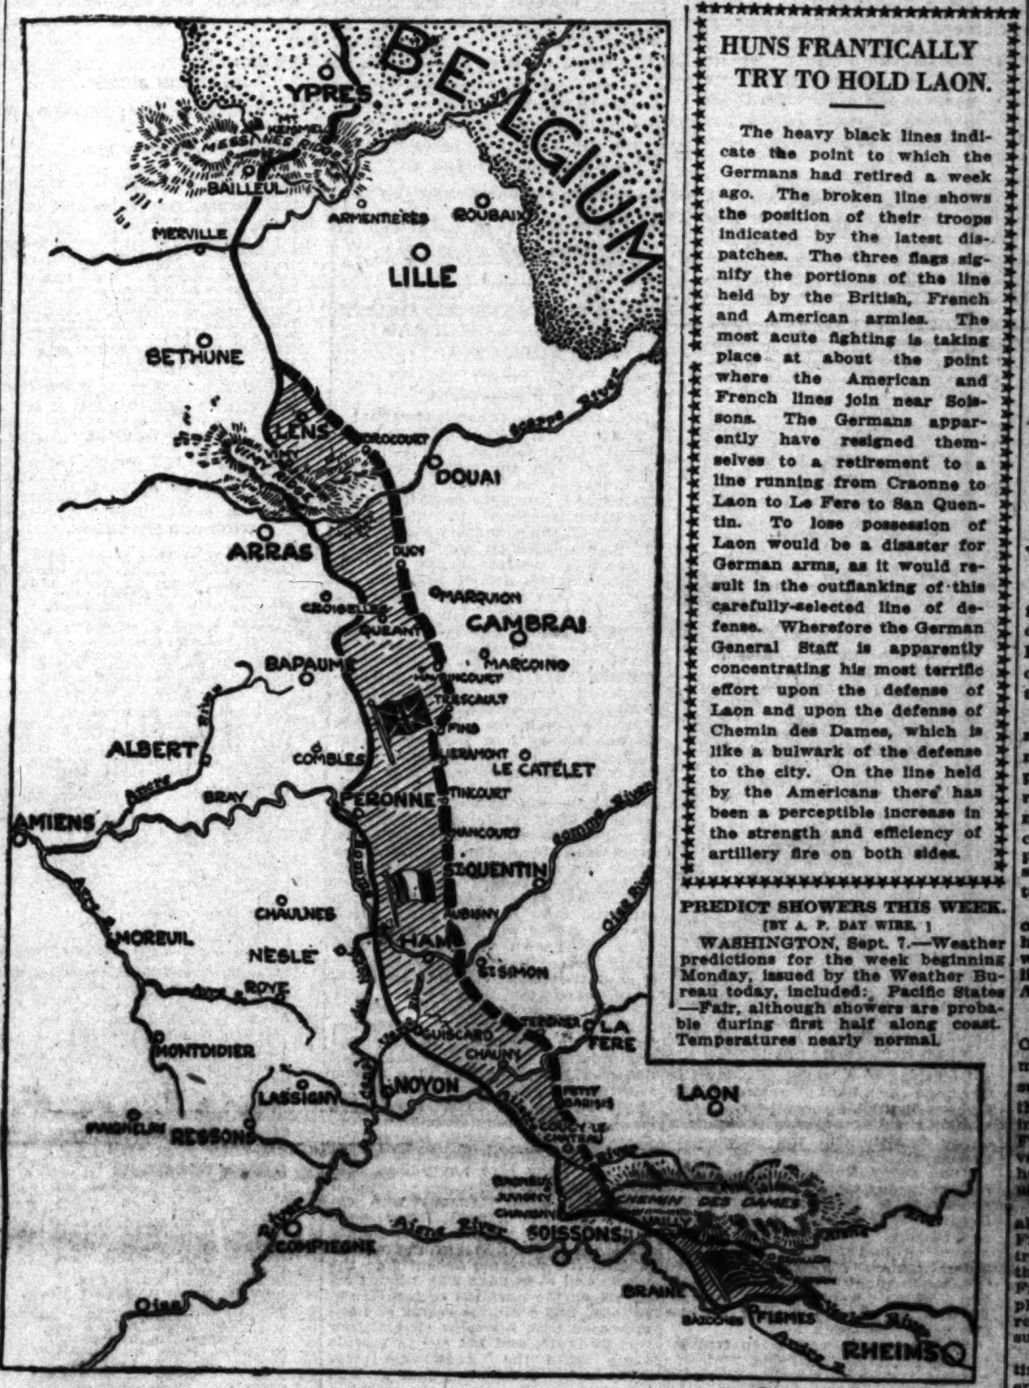
LONDON, Sept. 7.—Field Marshal Haig's troops have forced the Germans to retire a considerable distance—along a front of about seventeen miles extending from Havrincourt Wood to Beauvois, according to the War Office announcement tonight. They have also taken a strategic point, around which there has been much fighting, on the west bank of the Canal du Nord, on the way to Cambrai.

British troops advancing last night on the front to the southeast and northeast of Peronne captured the towns of Hancourt, Sorel-le-Grand and Metz-en-Couture, says today's announcement. Fighting their way toward the left flank of the German positions along the Canal du Nord from Havrincourt northward, the British penetrated the western part of Havrincourt Wood, taking prisoners as they progressed. In Flanders the British are pushing toward Messines, near the southern end of the Messines Ridge, and they advanced their lines last night a short distance in the direction of the town. North of La Bassee Canal on the Flanders front British patrols made headway in the enemy positions in the vicinity of Canteleux and Violaines.

BERLIN, Sept. 7 (via London.)—On the heights northeast of Fismes in the Vesle River region the German forces yesterday repulsed renewed attacks by the Americans, says the official statement issued today by the German army headquarters. On the Aisne River to the east of Vailly, the statement says the Germans are in fighting contact with the enemy. On the Somme and Oise rivers the enemy followed the Germans retiring by way of Ham and Chauny, and during the evening was engaged in fighting the German rear-guards on the line of Aubigny-Villequer Aumont.

"On both sides of the Cambrai-Peronne road there were rear-guard engagements in front of our new position," says tonight's statement. "There were local engagements between the Ailette and the Aisne."

Map Showing Ground Gained by Allies in Week.



The battle line of seven days ago and the battle line of yesterday.

HUNS FRANTICALLY TRY TO HOLD LAON.

The heavy black lines indicate the point to which the Germans had retired a week ago. The broken line shows the position of their troops indicated by the latest dispatches. The three flags signify the portions of the line held by the British, French and American armies. The most acute fighting is taking place at about the point where the American and French lines join near Soissons. The Germans apparently have resigned themselves to a retirement to a line running from Craonne to Laon to Le Fere to San Quentin. To lose possession of Laon would be a disaster for German arms, as it would result in the outflanking of this carefully-selected line of defense. Wherefore the German General Staff is apparently concentrating his most terrific effort upon the defense of Laon and upon the defense of Chemin des Dames, which is like a bulwark of the defense to the city. On the line held by the Americans there has been a perceptible increase in the strength and efficiency of artillery fire on both sides.

CONSTANT POUNDING BY ALLIES KEEPS GERMAN TROOPS ON RUN.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, Sept. 7.—Allied troops are continuing to keep the Germans on the run and as a result of yesterday's operations have pushed them nearly back to the positions they occupied March 21 when the first big enemy offensive of the year was launched. The Germans still enjoy a little leeway in the Vermand region and before St. Quentin; but elsewhere they are extremely close to, if not actually in their old lines.

The rupture of the right hand hinge of the German line at Peronne was an awkward blow for the enemy but as long as the left hand hinge held on the Soissons plateau he could play for time by pivoting around it and clinging to a temporary line on the heights between the Oise and the Somme. The moment that Gen. Mangin knocked down the defense of the Ailette, however, that makeshift combination became impossible, for the range of hills on the Oise-Somme front was turned on the side of Chauny and Tergnier.

Then the enemy was obliged to return immediately to the solution of a similar problem adopted by Hindenburg in the winter of 1917—a retirement to the half-finished canal on the front from St. Quentin to Cambrai and the line of the Canal du Nord and he lost no time in executing his plan.

The French progress yesterday in following up the enemy was rapid, as may be seen from the fact that the troops engaged on the Oise at Appilly, more than six miles southeast of Guiscard moved northeastward to Viry-Noureuil, the extreme point reached on the Oise yesterday by the Allies, which accounts for the advance of ten kilometers mentioned in last night's French communication.

The enemy also was obliged to hasten his retreat in the sector of the Somme between Ham and Peronne. The British progressed southward along the Peronne-Ham road toward Athies. At the same time Gen. Debeney's troops, which had crossed the river at Epenancourt, obtained a footing on the highway and finally captured the heights of Voyennes and Offey, breaking the line.

A general retreat in the direction of Vermand and St. Quentin became inevitable for the enemy, as did the abandonment of Ham, which was outflanked on the north and south, the latter by Gen. Humbert's advance south of the Oise.

The progress realized in the St. Gobain region south of the river by Gen. Mangin's left had the same consequences for Chauny.

The giving up without a blow of such places as Ham and Chauny must have been a bitter pill for the German staff, for it is considered unlikely that their methodical retreat called for the complete abandonment of these two positions, the one of which constituted a bridgehead on the reverse side of the St. Gobain range of hills and the other stood as an outer defense of St. Quentin.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY ON THE AISNE FRONT, Sept. 7, noon.—The Germans fell back a short distance early today before the pressure of the French and Americans to the east of Revillon at about the center of the line between Conde and Rheims.

From the hills northwest of Roman, between Revillon and Montigny, American troops brought in forty prisoners this morning. It is in the region of Roman where perhaps the most stubborn resistance is being encountered, although all along that part of the line the Germans are struggling to maintain their positions.

To the westward there was little change in the situation in the early hours. The French and Americans were engaged in rectifying their lines facing the Germans along the Aisne Canal.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY ON THE AISNE FRONT, Sept. 7, morning.—Additional forces and supplies were brought up by both the Americans and the French during last night, and early today the Franco-American line was again advanced. The Allied artillery of both heavy and small calibers is being used to tear holes in the enemy lines.

The new forces were brought up along the Aisne to the west of Fismes, where the Germans are intrenched along the canal parallel to the river. The big guns behind the Franco-American line were set in play upon formations far to the rear, while all the crossroads were subjected to a punishing fire.

The Franco-American line continued to close slowly, but with unerring certainty, about the German left flank that had clung to the sector to the west of Rheims. Particularly determined resistance was displayed by the enemy remaining at the point in the angle made by the line swinging upward toward the Aisne. The Germans used their artillery late Friday with all possible vigor, and their machine-gun crews defended the retreating army point by point. Nevertheless the lines of both the French and the Americans were advanced early today.

Reports brought into headquarters indicate that the German divisions in this sector are as certainly bound for the Aisne as those already across that river further to the west, but that they are determined to exact as large a price as possible before yielding the territory.

The German artillery was active along the river front, throwing an enormous volume of high explosive, shrapnel and gas shells into our lines.

AMERICAN HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, Friday, Sept. 6.—(Reuter's.)—The outstanding event of the week on the American front has been the passage of the Vesle and the carrying of the line forward to the borders of the Aisne. Not that the advance was a striking military operation in itself; its admirable character belies that very fact, and, thanks to the blows that Gen. Mangin struck elsewhere, the advance has been almost a walkover, but it must be remembered that there were Americans with Mangin's army, as well as with Degoutte's, and it was they who helped to deal the blow which withered the German divisions along the Vesle.

Already by sheer strategy Mangin's army has displaced some thirty miles of the enemy's front, and is removing it at one extremity almost a third of that distance northward. That the Germans know they have to fear an even more complete strategical disturbance at its hands is dramatically proved by the dead with which they tried to bar the path. Those dead lying at Juvigny Plateau were not sacrificed in any reckless spirit; they were devoted to an attempt to frustrate the greatest danger that now threatens the German line in France. The French have possessed themselves of the plateau northward of Landricourt on one side of the Ailette, and have reached the ravine at Vauxaillon on the other, while further north they are on the borders of the forest of Coucy, close to Fresnes.

Seeing that they have thus penetrated the line which one had almost grown to regard as a German frontier, it is no wonder the enemy is sacrificing men, guns and morale in a desperate effort to gain breathing time for some fresh allotment of their reserves, since hereabouts the massif of St. Gobain between La Fere and Laon is the essential hinge of the line. That hinge broken, more disaster would happen to them than from the fracture of any other part of the line.

In the efforts to avert such calamity, the Germans have brought

At Breaking Point.

DESPONDENCY SPREADING OVER CENTRAL EMPIRES.

Kaiser's Troops and People Seething with a Mutinous Spirit Caused by Fear and Anxiety.

[ATLANTIC CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, Sept. 7.—The Augsburg Abdendpost, which represents the views of the Bavarian government, lays stress on Germany's "most terrible losses," which, it says, are far worse than those of the Entente because Germany's casualties all occur among the German people, whereas the Allies are a group of many nations—European, African, white and black.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Repeated reports of disaffection in the ranks of the German army, well authenticated accounts of mutinies on German warships and the known disaffection among the various peoples of the Austro-Hungarian empire continue to attract the greatest interest here and to stimulate speculation over the possibility of a breakdown behind the German lines.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—Public interest today is equally divided between the unbroken advance of the Allied armies and the apparent signs that the German people are in a state of nervous anxiety bordering on demoralization.

More editorial space is being given here to future events than the retreat of the German army. The belief that something like a panic has seized the German populace is not based upon stories from neutral sources, but upon the utterances of the leaders in the German nation and the appeals of German newspapers to the public to keep its head, while they themselves admit the seriousness of the military situation.

The Emperor's bold vein of assurance, Chancellor von Hertling's franchise speech, Gen. Linsingen's stringent order, and above all, Field Marshal Von Hindenburg's proclamation, are cited as manifest efforts to check the decay of the German spirit, which it is contended must exist to have called them forth.

DISTURBED BY EVENTS.

In short, it is declared that the German people and perhaps also the military chiefs evidently are greatly disturbed by recent events.

Demoralization of the German population and widespread and growing dissatisfaction in the German army, accompanied by mutiny and desertions, are described in a dispatch to the Daily Telegraph from its Rotterdam correspondent. The correspondent says that information reaching him is so sensational as to inspire skepticism, but declares that he has received corroboration from authoritative sources which establishes the authenticity of the information.

He asserts that the German army is filled with despondency and seething with mutinous spirit and that alarming outbreaks have occurred in several units, principally Bavarian and Silesian. One incident of the Arras front terminated in a whole Bavarian division being disarmed and transported to Bavaria, where it was placed in a prison camp and the mutiny of one of the Silesian regiments resulted in nearly a hundred of its men being executed.

MANY DESERTIONS.

A huge number of desertions are occurring, the correspondent says, and it is estimated that there are more than 20,000 deserters in Berlin alone. Large numbers are scattered throughout the country.

Disobedience and defiance of officers is common at the front, according to the correspondent's information, and a similar spirit is shown in the munition factories, where the workers deliberately are slowing up.

The German official news agency, the Wolff Bureau, is blamed by the Cologne Gazette for the manner in which the German people have taken the defeat of Teutonic forces to heart. The Gazette complains that the Wolff Bureau's official reports instead of allowing the facts to speak for themselves, aroused the impression, with their description of great German successes, that Germany's enemies never would be able to recover from the terrific blows being dealt them, that they were exhausted and that it needed only one supreme exertion to accomplish their utter defeat.

HARVEST POOR.

The paper recalls as a further evil how the harvest was over-estimated in the first years of the war, how German hopes were dashed on promised supplies from Russia and the Ukraine and on the U-boat war, and how "inventions of all sorts were trumpeted forth."

The Gazette quotes from a Wolff Bureau dispatch of April 16, which spoke of the enormous supplies of clothing captured in Russia, Italy and Northern France, and which represented the booty in rubber and copper as sufficient to cover the German army's requirements for a year.

"It is not to be wondered," the newspaper says, "that there would be disappointment and mistrust when afterward we are asked to part with our clothes and door handles to cover urgent needs. Even the thickest thread of patience would get worn out by such methods of reporting."

The Gazette, admitting that the German people's morale "has been taken by surprise," deplores the fact that "the internal front has been dented."

The military commander in the district of Altonia, Prussia, has issued a proclamation warning the populace against damaging the railroads and thus exposing military transports to danger, says a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Copenhagen.

The proclamation, the correspondent adds, threatens the death sentence upon such persons as are found guilty of disobeying the order.

HINDENBURG'S LAMENT.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 6.—Field Marshal Von Hindenburg's manifesto to the German people declaring that the enemy, in addition to the armed offensive, is conducting an offensive by printed matter containing "most insane rumors" is published prominently in all the German newspapers. It begins:

"We are engaged in a severe battle with our enemies. If numerical superiority alone were to guarantee victory, then Germany would long since have lain crushed to the ground. The enemy knows, however, that Germany and her allies are not to be vanquished by arms alone."

The proclamation says that along with the battle against German armies the enemy is waging war against the German spirit.

"We should not treat lightly this plan of the enemy," he says.

Von Hindenburg then refers to leaflets dropped on the German lines, of which, he said, 10,000 are gathered up daily. These leaflets speak of the good treatment German prisoners receive and give extracts from letters of German prisoners.

QUOTES LEAFLETS.

Some of the leaflets, according to Von Hindenburg, read:

"Your fight is hopeless. America will cook your goose. Your submarines are of no use. We construct more ships than you sink. Your trade is destroyed and we shall cut off your raw materials after the war; then Germany's industries must famish. You shall never see your colonies again."

"What are the facts?" asks Von Hindenburg. "In the east we have forced peace and in the west we also are strong enough to do so, despite the Americans. But we must be strong and united."

The manifesto proceeds to say that the Allies are trying to force neutral nations to fight against Germany, "because we are a match for them. Why does the enemy incite colored people against the German soldiers? Because he wants to annihilate us."

UPHOLDS KAISERISM.

Referring to a leaflet advising the Germans to fight against the Hohenzollerns and capitalism and to help the Entente give Germany a better constitution, the proclamation says:

"The enemy knows what strength resides in our state and empire and endeavors to open wounds in the German body politic with leaflets and rumors. He endeavors to sow dissension and distrust among the federal states. We seized on Lake Constance many thousands of leaflets which were being sent to Bavaria to stir up feeling against the north Germans.

"There have always been traitors to the fatherland, witting and unwitting. They mostly dwell in neutral countries, in order not to be obliged to share our battles and deprivations or be executed as traitors."

The manifeston concludes:

"Be on your guard, German army!"

In the course of a debate on franchise reform in the Prussian upper house today, Herr Friedberg, vice-president of the Prussian State Ministry, said that the government respected the sentiments which had found expression, and was therefore striving for an understanding which, however, must not conflict with the fundamental ideas of the Emperor's message of July 11, 1917. He said he did not believe the necessary squel to the extension of the franchise would be parliamentization of the government. The appointment of ministers was the privilege of the crown, he said, and would remain so.

MAY BRING CAPTURED GERMANS TO AMERICA.

WILL LOAD RETURNING TROOP TRANSPORTS WITH PRISONERS, REPORT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Publication of orders providing for a substantial increase in the corps of interpreters of the army, revived reports of plans for bringing to America large numbers of Germans captured on the western front.

The new orders provide that in addition to the commissioned personnel of the interpreter corps already authorised, there will be "one first lieutenant, one second lieutenant and one sergeant for each 500 prisoners of war interned in the United States."

In this connection it is known that the shipment of civilian goods on returning army transports and supply ships recently was sharply curtailed by the military authorities.

Lieutenant Suicide Son of Senator.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7. — Lieut. Henry F. Hollis of the Army Aviation Corps, who committed suicide last Wednesday in Dayton, O., where he was stationed, was a son of Senator Hollis of New Hampshire, who is on his way to France to visit the battle fronts. The Senator's office was advised of the suicide only yesterday. Shortly before receiving his commission six months ago he was in an airplane accident, in which he received serious injuries about his head and face.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

FRANKFORT (Ky.) Sept. 7.—Gov. Stanley today announced his decision to appoint George Brown Martin, an attorney of Catlettsburg, to fill the unexpired term of the late United States Senator Ollie M. James ending March 4, next.

Cologne "Gazette" Grieves Because Rest of World has Food.

BY GEORGE RENWICK.

[ATLANTIC CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 6. — The Cologne Gazette says:

"It may comfort many of us to know that the enemy fares as badly as we do. We must, however, renounce this pleasure. Despite all the successes of our U-boats it is probable we shall not succeed at an early period in reducing our enemies' imports so that food and other necessaries of life will become as scarce with them as they are with us."

ALLIED VICTORY HUNS' ONLY HOPE FOR PEACE.

PRISONERS CONFESS INABILITY TO FIGHT AS HARD AS FORMERLY.

By Phillip Gibbs.

[ATLANTIC CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WAR CORRESPONDENT HEADQUARTERS, Sept. 6 (delayed.) — Now that over the battle front patrols have taken up the work of divisions and prisoners come to cages singly rather than in battalions, fighting all the way from Ploegsteert to Peronne takes on similar features. In the south we feel certain that the enemy will be driven back within so many days or weeks, it does not very much matter which, to his Hindenburg line, and though this is outflanked and turned north of Canal du Nord, which rather resembles a dry moat outside an old-fashioned fortress, still gives powerful defensive position.

In the north, on the other hand, no one knows how far the retreat may go. The enemy is going back faster than he meant to. It is quite certain he intended to hold Hill 63, which faces and threatens Messines. Defense of it crumbled so quickly in yesterday's attack that our troops progressed from the summit far down the hill. The 100 prisoners confess they fought not as they would have fought earlier and some said the only hope of early peace was an Allied victory. Our troops keep the crown of the hill and Ploegsteert village leaving the enemy on the slopes, but we very nearly approach positions held from 1914 till the famous battle of Messines.

Nowhere is the artillery very active, but the use of gas increases continually. The enemy yesterday doused the area north of the Scarpe with gas and we have not been idle. Captured parts of the Hindenburg line still have many German notices fixed to tree stumps and bits of wall warning soldiers to have gas masks ready. "They love not poison who did poison use."

More French refugees who escaped on the Sensee River have reached tented villages prepared for their reception. While the enemy treated the peasants decently on the whole and even gave way when they struck on the question of insufficient rations, this kindness seems to have increased with his sense that victory was unlikely, and his fall in morale came when the knowledge was spread that Americans had arrived in large numbers.

This beneficent news was first imparted by a German soldier who had sight of some intelligence report giving the figures of numbers of American divisions likely to appear. He circulated the information among his company and apparently it led many to confess that the best chance of peace, which was the only thing that mattered, was an Allied victory.

WITH AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE

one division by road from Metz and another from Rheims, sending them almost starving into the battle. But the defense of St. Gobain means much more than the defeat of Mangin's army, for Laon and St. Quentin are flanges of the hinge whose pin is at La Fere, and one point is as essential to its security as another of the three. But for the American force interest is in the southernmost of the three, since should it give way they will have had a most creditable hand in the business.

And after Gen. Mangin's telling successes all eyes will naturally be riveted on the two armies which are closing up—one from the west, the other from the south—on the positions by which Laon is still so formidably defended. To look for victory here would seem too wild an expectation, but, then, who a month ago could even have expected to look for troops?

BARGES FOR WOUNDED PLANNED BY AMERICA.

WATER TRANSPORT, SUBSTITUTE FOR RAILWAYS, EXPECTED TO SAVE LIVES.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, Sept. 7. — The chief surgeon of the American Expeditionary Forces has just completed arrangements for a hospital barge system to transport American wounded with the least possible movement, according to the Stars and Stripes, the official newspaper of the American army in France. Barges 120 feet long, with a draft of one foot, will be used. France's extensive canal system will greatly facilitate the work.

The substitution of water transport for railway travel is expected to save many lives. It is estimated that 80 per cent. of all wounded are able to return to the front within forty days; 90 per cent. who reach field ambulances recover; 95 per cent. recover who reach casualty clearing stations, and 98 per cent. recover who reach base hospitals.

"GRUB" CLOVER KILLED IN AIRPLANE ACCIDENT

Greayer Clover, called "Grub" Clover by his friends, and known widely among amateur tennis players and young people in Los Angeles and Pasadena social circles, has been killed in an airplane accident in France. His father is now owner of the Richmond (Va.) Evening Journal. Mrs. Clover, who was visiting here when the news of her son's death reached her, started home at once.

Clover was one of the most popular students at the Los Angeles High School in the summer class of 1915. He was prominent in class activities and was tennis champion of the school, being, in fact, one of the best amateur players in Southern California. He enlisted here in the American Ambulance Corps and left in May, 1917 for France. Two older brothers also are in the service.

SISTER OF INDIANA MAN, WOUNDED, HERE.

Edward Coon, listed this morning among the wounded, is an Indiana man, 24 years old and a farm laborer. He was drafted while on a Montana ranch last October. His sister, Mrs. Lula Morland of No. 1614 Michigan avenue, received a telegram stating he was wounded August 6.

ANGELENO IN FRANCE SINCE JUNE WOUNDED.

Milon R. Maclosky, a Los Angeles soldier, born and raised here, was wounded in action August 6, according to a telegram to his mother, Mrs. J. F. Maclosky, who lives with two daughters at No. 1017 West Thirty-sixth street. The degree of his injuries was not stated.

Maclosky is 22 years old and a graduate of the summer 1915 class of Manual Arts High School. He left here last November and has been in France since June. His three sisters here are Mrs. S. F. Williams, Miss Florence H. Maclosky, who is an attendant at the public library, and Miss Pearl A. Maclosky, secretary to the dean of the college of music of the University of Southern California.

CHICAGO TO LAUNCH ANTI-I.W.W. CAMPAIGN.

FEDERAL AGENTS AND POLICE TO CLEAN CITY OF ALL UNDESIRABLES.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Federal operatives and the police have laid plans for a campaign against vagrants, hobos, anarchists and I.W.W. members that will clean Chicago of them as it has never been cleaned before. Street by street and block by block agitators, radicals, lunatics, morons and those "a little off" are to be picked up.

Government agents decided upon this move today when, after a conference, it was admitted that not enough was known about the post-office bomb outrage. Philip J. Barry, acting chief of the local bureau of investigation, also made it plain that he is not in accord with the theory, reported as emanating from the office of State's Attorney Hoyne, that Harry Wilson is definitely known to be the bomber.

"The matter has not been brought to my attention and I am not interested," was his way of putting it. Almost immediately afterward Mr. Hoyne issued this statement:

"I cannot deny with sufficient emphasis the report that I said Harry Wilson was the guilty man in the bomb case. What I did say was that I had information that Wilson was an I.W.W. and that he had been seen with a package under his arm about 3 o'clock on the day of the tragedy on Adams street, going toward the Federal Building."

"Shorty" Wilson, no relation to Harry, made no further statements of value today, though grilled for hours by the police.

"Shorty" has been for about a year a sort of business agent for W. D. Haywood and has been about the Federal Building a great deal of the time.

Harry Wilson was arrested in the home of Mrs. Mina Van Zandt Spies, widow of August Spies, hanged for the Haymarket anarchist riots. Marvin E. Barnhart, assistant State's Attorney, said tonight in the single room where the two were found also were six dogs, four cats and several chickens, while a horse was stabled in an adjoining room.

150 U-BOAT COMMANDERS TAKEN; ONLY ONE ESCAP

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Sept. 7 (British wireless service.)—The publication by the British Admiralty of the names of the commanding officers of 150 German submarines disposed of by the British navy in order to substantiate the statement of Premier Lloyd George to the effect that "at least 150 of these ocean pests have been destroyed" was welcomed by the British press today.

The newspapers point out that of these 150 German officers only one escaped. This was Waldemar Bender, who escaped when his submarine was sunk and is believed to have made his way back to Germany. Of the remaining 149 officers 116 are dead, 27 are prisoners of war and 6 are interned is neutral countries.

Five members of the crew were drowned.

AN ATLANTIC PORT, Sept. 7.—Two German submarines disguised as fishing craft and carrying sails are operating a few hundred miles off the Atlantic Coast, according to information transmitted to the naval authorities by the officers of British and French steamships arriving here today.

Officers of the British vessel said they became suspicious of two sailing vessels sighted about dawn traveling six miles apart. Suddenly the sails came down and puffs of smoke appeared. The English captain crowded on speed and escaped after an all-day zigzag flight.

The French vessel reported an encounter at about the same locality, the Frenchman fighting off the submarine after an eng

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Bolshevik authorities in Moscow have been warned by the Allied Powers, through the ministers of Holland, Denmark, Switzerland and Norway, that they will be held personally responsible for the safety of Allied consular officers and missions now in Russia.

REFUGEES SAFE.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

HAPARANDA (Sweden) Thursday, Sept. 5.—After numerous delays incidental to the upset in political conditions in Russia and the cholera quarantine, a party of 107 American refugees which left Moscow August 26 arrived at Haparanda today after an uneventful trip through Finland.

The German guards along the Finnish railway offered no resistance to the passage of the Americans who were accompanied by an Italian military mission of eighty officers and privates under command of Gen. Romel.

The Finnish officials showed the party every possible courtesy and fulfilled to the letter their guarantee of safe conduct.

M. Komasake, the Japanese Consul-General at Moscow, accompanied by the Japanese military attache and six other officials, passed through Finland a day ahead of the American and Italian party and reached Sweden safely.

Negotiations for the departure of the Allied consuls and citizens from Moscow which were opened more than three weeks ago by the neutral ministers met with many objections. Although the Bolshevik government agreed in principle to the departure of all the Allied citizens many French and Englishmen were imprisoned both at Moscow and Petrograd.

Finally, M. Tchitcherin, the Minister for Foreign Affairs, refused to permit the British and French officials and civilians to leave. Upon the advice of the neutral ministers who were endeavoring to get this ban removed, the other Allied officials and nationals left Moscow.

To reduce the number of Allies seeking transportation and permits to leave, Russia, DeWitt C. Poole, Jr., the American Consul-General at Moscow, and the Italian Consul-General remained. Although American and Italian interests had been entrusted to the representatives of neutral countries and communication by wire with Washington and Rome was impossible under the prevailing conditions, the two consuls-general stayed in the Russian capital to co-operate with the other Allied consuls-general in efforts to get their citizens out of jail and to obtain permission for them to leave Russia.

The American and Italian parties reached Petrograd August 27, but were unable to get permits to leave for the Finnish border until four days after. Meantime Moses Uritzky, chairman of the Petrograd commission for the suppression of a counter-revolution, was assassinated in Petrograd, and Nikolai Lenine, the Bolshevik Premier, was shot at Moscow.

In spite of the great excitement and disorder created in Soviet circles by the shooting of these two Bolshevik leaders, the Danish minister and his neutral associates were able to have the train of the Allies moved to the Finnish border at Balliosproff, where it remained for two days.

FIVE AMERICANS GET BRITISH WAR HONORS.

AWARDED MEDALS FOR GALLANT CONDUCT IN BATTLE ACTING WITH ENGLISH.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, Sept. 6.—Five Americans have been decorated with British honors for conspicuous gallantry in action on the British front. They are:

Lieut. Allan Francis Bonnalie of San Francisco and Lieut. Glenn Duvey Ransom of Grand Rapids, Mich.; Corp. John Johnston and Private Lawrence Bartley Collier and Private Robert Hurley Hall.

Lieut. Bonnalie, who is an aviator, received the distinguished service order; Lieut. Ransom was awarded the military cross; Corp. Johnson was given the distinguished conduct medal, and military medals were bestowed upon Private Collier and Private Hall.

Lieut. Bonnalie on August 13 led two other airplanes on a long photographic reconnaissance flight near Bruges, Belgium. While over Thorout all three machines were attacked by numerous enemy planes, and, although fighting continually, they succeeded in taking the required photographs.

The three Allied airplanes then started back, but met six Fokkers, which dived to attack. While heavily engaged himself, Lieut. Bonnalie observed that one of his comrade machines was in difficulties and was trying to make for home with an enemy plane on its tail.

Lieut. Bonnalie broke off his combat and dived to the assistance of his comrade. The enemy craft, taking advantage of this, attacked him from the rear, but as the bullets were ripping through his machine the lieutenant drove the enemy off from the tail of the crippled British plane.

Meanwhile, Lieut. Bonnalie's elevator control was shot through and half of the machine's tail was shot away, in consequence of which the airplane began to side-slip. The lieutenant kept his machine facing the British line by rudder control, his observer continuing to fight the attacking aircraft from the rear gun mounting, and succeeded eventually in driving off the enemy.

With this gallant assistance, Lieut. Bonnalie managed to cross the British lines at a low altitude and landed without fatal results. It developed afterward that had it not been for his timely assistance the crippled British machine undoubtedly would have been shot down in enemy territory, for the observer had been killed and therefore was unable to defend the machine, and the pilot had been wounded.

Lieut. Glenn D. Ransom, who won his military cross at Merckham, is a medical officer attached to a British battalion, and worked continuously in the evacuation of the men of his own and other battalions, and also wounded Germans.

Not a case passed through which Lieut. Ransom himself did not dress, although the shelling was heavy. He worked continuously in the open to expedite the evacuation. His skill and courage now is a by-word in his battalion, and the example he set for all, says the citation, was magnificent. Under his supervision, the battlefield was quickly cleared of its wounded, although there were many stretcher cases.

Corp. Johnston on the night of August 12 was in the line opposite Boyelles in charge of a post. The enemy put down a heavy barrage and wounded him. When the barrage was lifted the enemy tried to raid the post.

Although severely wounded, the corporal immediately organized a counter-attack, which led up to the trench of the enemy and caused many German casualties. It was entirely due to his coolness and gallantry that the attempt of the enemy to obtain the identification of British forces completely failed.

Private Collier gained his medal in the same action. The enemy was bombing his way down a trench toward Collier's post, in which casualties had much reduced its strength. He displayed a fine example in the counter-attack which he instantly organized, and was largely responsible for the ejection of the enemy.

Private Hall displayed a great gallantry and devotion to duty near Hebuterne on July 28, when a member of a patrol who encountered a German post that was strongly held and which directed a heavy fire at the patrol. Hall dashed in and killed three Germans with his bayonet and by this prompt and courageous action materially assisted the patrol in extricating itself from a dangerous position.

TAKE ALL FIGHT OUT OF ENEMY.

FRANCE, Friday, Sept. 6.—Gen. Mangin's troops reached the Hindenburg line at several points during today's fighting. They took Laffaux and Petit Barisis and drove near to Vauxaillon, while extending their hold on the Aisne as far as St. Mard. The enemy shell fire became more intense as the French troops advanced, and the resistance of the infantry grew strongly.

The adversaries were face to face this afternoon near Quincy-Basse in the same positions they occupied, respectively, for about a year before the German drive this spring.

Notwithstanding the wastage and fatigue among the enemy's troops and the splendid ardor of the French infantry, the task the latter forces are now facing is arduous. The Germans occupy positions of natural strength which they have reinforced. The region of the St. Gobain Forest is not only a natural fortress, but is favorable to the enemy's retreat tactics. The hills, gullies and thickets supply an excellent camouflage for artillery and machine-gun nests.

The heights are honeycombed with stone quarries that offer all the advantage of vast, solid-rock shelters where whole battalions may find cover from the heaviest artillery fire.

When the Germans retired to this line in 1917 they had not prepared their position. They counted upon the vast area of land laid waste in front of them, however, to make an attack upon the bastion more difficult.

South of the Aisne, at St. Mard, the French troops this afternoon were approaching the junction of the River Estoise-Aisne Canal, this seeming to be the line chosen by the enemy for his resistance in that region.

Ready to Strike.

BIG FIELD ARMY NEARLY FORMED

Gen. March Tells of Fast Mobilization.

About Ninety-five Per Cent. Already Assembled.

Pershing Soon Ready to Start for Berlin.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Organization of the First American Field Army in France is progressing so rapidly, Gen. March told members of the Senate Military Committee today, that nearly 95 per cent. of the American troops brigaded with the British and French have been withdrawn and are being assembled at a point he did not designate.

This accounts for the small number of Americans engaged in the present forward movement of the Allies.

The committee was told that there are now between 90,000 and 100,000 American troops with the British forces.

Because of the gradual withdrawal of American troops which have been brigaded with French and British forces, the Senators said they were told, only one division—the Thirty-second—is now engaged in the present battle.

There is improvement in the transportation facilities, Gen. March said, and the number of ships in use is being increased.

Further improvement in the airplane situation was noted. Gen. March said 1200 airplanes have been delivered from the factories. Latest advices indicate, he said, that 800 American fighting planes are now in France.

GENERAL RETREAT.

Characterizing the German retrograde movement as a "general retreat" on a hundred-mile front from Arras to near Rheims, Gen. March in his weekly statement today pointed out that the German lines now are sixty miles from the French capital at their nearest point, as compared with forty miles as late as July 15.

The enemy's retreat was forced primarily, Gen. March said, by two operations. The first was that of the British on the Arras-Peronne front, and the other was the advance of the Franco-American troops across the Soissons Plateau.

The Hindenburg line is now only ten miles from the advancing Allies at its farthest sector.

Reports to the department show that the Franco-Americans had reached the Aisne on a ten-mile front last night, while the French and American troops further north were within ten miles of St. Quentin.

MINOR CASUALTIES.

Gen. Pershing has sent to the department a report of minor casualties. They total 20,000 cases up to August 20, most of them being men who were so slightly wounded that they were returned to the ranks within a few days.

Gen. March disclosed that a new policy of the department would be to have Gen. Pershing forward by courier twice a week lists of all wounded.

The complete list will be made public from Washington, and casualty reports cabled from American headquarters will, when the system is in effect, include only dead and missing.

Gen. March explained that complete data in each case will be included in the list of wounded, so that relatives may be advised fully as to the nature of the wounds.

SIBERIAN SITUATION.

Summarizing reports received here on the Siberian situation, the Chief of Staff said that the Czecho-Slovaks and the Cossack-Japanese forces had cleared the trans-Siberian railway from Vladivostok to the River Volga. He added that the general situation was now more favorable.

American troops in Italy still are in reserved sectors and have not taken part in any activities.

Referring to the location of American divisions in France, Gen. March said the Twenty-seventh, composed of New York troops, had now taken its place on the line in Flanders, while the Ninety-second, composed of negro troops from all sections, had arrived in the Vosges.

HAIG'S DRIVE IS UNCHECKED.

British are in Metz, which now is being heavily shelled.

East of the Canal du Nord many enemy machine-gun posts have been located and they are being dealt with by the British artillery.

USE WATER DEFENSE.

Trinquois brook, north of this locality, has been flooded by the Germans as a defensive measure for their flank, and it now is forty yards wide at its narrowest point.

North of La Bassee Canal the enemy resistance has stiffened. Farther north, the British have made slight advances. They are pushing forward toward the bank of the Lys north of Erquinghen. As the result of minor operations north of Hill 63, the British have advanced their line to the village of Le Rossignol.

The Germans are reported to be working rapidly on their lines around Armentieres and in their hurry to get the positions here prepared, they are even requiring French civilians to work on the defenses. The repairs are being made and concrete dugouts are reported to be under construction.

It is quite likely the resistance which has been developing here and there along the line is made so as to give the Germans time to prepare lines which they intend to try to hold in the rear.

Are We Soon to Become a Race of Bald-Headed Men?

PROF. JOHN H. AUSTIN

Hair Specialist of Chicago, Who Is Now at Hamburger's, Talks Most Interestingly About the Hair.

He says that baldness is increasing rapidly among men and points out some of the reasons. Prof. Austin is probably right in saying that about one man in every hundred, ever thinks about his hair at all, except to comb it two or three times a day. If it falls out, he looks anxiously at the falling hair and then promptly forgets it until the next time he uses the comb.

A man will give the utmost attention to his teeth, because he knows that when trouble arises he will have more trouble and probably lose his teeth if he doesn't go to a dentist promptly. But his hair doesn't ache, it just gradually dies, and when it is nearly gone, and the roots are dead, he anxiously tries a dozen different remedies at once, and then resigns himself to baldness.

According to Prof. Austin, there are something like 60 different conditions of the scalp and hair. Some are contagious. Others develop from neglect. Practically all of them are curable in the early stages.

Prof. Austin examines the roots of your hair with a powerful microscope. He finds out just what is the trouble with YOUR HAIR and then he tells you what to do for that trouble.

It doesn't cost a penny for the examination, and it puts you under no obligation to follow his advice if you don't want to do so.

Prof. Austin has devoted thirty-nine years to studying the hair and scalp. Surely it will be worth the few minutes it takes to let him turn the microscope on your hair.

During the past three years, Prof. Austin has made hundreds of free microscopic examinations of the hair and scalp for Hamburger patrons—and they enthusiastically appreciate this free service.

He will make FREE MICROSCOPIC EXAMINATIONS of the hair and scalp all this week, in his private office on Hamburger's second floor. Hours, 10 to 12 a.m. and 2 to 4 p.m.

FORD TO SPEED IN SENATE RACE.

Takes Responsibility for His Son's Slackness.

Despises Profiteers Who Cause War, He Says.

Loaths Man Who Uses Flag Commercially.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DETROIT (Mich.) Sept. 7.—Contrary to expectations and former announcements Henry Ford is to become an active candidate for the United States Senate. He says he appreciates the great responsibility to the people of Michigan and that he will do what he lawfully can to be elected.

This information came in response to the following three questions submitted to him today:

"Will you accept the nomination for the Senatorship on the Democratic ticket in the full spirit of the situation?"

"Will you discuss for the information of the people the charge so frequently made that your son, Edsel Ford, is a slacker?"

"Will you discuss for the same purpose the charge that you made flippant and unpatriotic remarks about the American flag?"

To all these questions Ford replied: "Yes."

"In the first place and in reply to your first question," said Mr. Ford, "you must understand that I accept the nomination on the Democratic ticket in the exact spirit in which it was tendered by the leading Democrats of the State upon the occasion when they offered to form a nonpartisan combination with the Republicans. I regard this no time for the promotion of partisan politics.

"If I am elected to the Senate I shall go to Washington to give the President all the support within my power to help bring this war to such an end as will give permanent peace to the world, and, I believe, infinite glory to the United States.

TAKES RESPONSIBILITY.

"About my son Edsel. The full responsibility for his absence from the firing line in France rests with me. He wants to go. He has wanted to from the day we declared war, and he wants to now. But I also say that when the duly-authorized authorities say his services are more needed in the army than here in these industries he will be found at the front fighting and will not be found sticking his spurs into a mahogany desk at Washington. He has had more than a dozen opportunities to do the latter. He could be holding a commission down there now. But he is not built that way, and neither am I.

"They say I am a pacifist. I am. I hate war. I despise from the bottom of my soul the profiteers who cause war. But when my country is driven into war, I perceive but one duty before me, and that is to place myself and all I have and all I can do at the full and free disposition of my country to be used to the utmost advantage of our cause. That is why I asked the government to classify my son where he could be of the utmost use to these activities known as the Ford industries.

"Had I been a politician I probably would have taken the obviously easy course of covering up my son in a uniform with an assignment to Detroit, something which could have been accomplished, as examples in different parts of the country demonstrate.

"I know, and he knows, he is of more value, many times over, right where he is than he could be as a soldier. And if you think it takes no moral courage for him to take the course he has, why, just put yourself into his place and think it over.

FLAG SACRED.

"Now about the flag. The spiritual meaning of that flag to me is sacred. I utterly loathe the man who would put our flag to commercial uses. That is what I was discussing when some rooter for preparedness out of date came here and opened the subject of the flag. I remember the incident well. We were standing in the balcony of the power-house and he turned to look out of the window at the flag flying.

"'How can you be against preparedness with that flag flying there?' he asked.

"'How do you know that we shall not have to hoist the flag of all nations when this war is over?' I replied, referring to the project for an international league for the enforcement of peace.

"I did not regard the conversation as an interview. Neither did he apparently, since he departed to publish that which he desired and not that which I had said. When I saw what he had put out, the contemptible nature of his action caused me to ignore it. I cannot scarp with such smallness, so I said nothing."

TWO DOLLARS SAVED IS FOUR DOLLARS EARNED

The above may sound rather peculiar, but it's a fact—figure it out. In earning four dollars these days your living expenses are at least two dollars, so in saving two dollars you have the net amount possible to save on four dollars earned. You can save two dollars or more on a single pair of shoes if you patronize the Two Dollar Shoe Sale now being featured by the Western Shoe Co., at 235 South Broadway. They offer five thousand pairs of shoes for Women, Men, Boys and Girls at two dollars a pair. Almost every style and kind, as well as practically every size.

Some are worth $4.00, some $5.00 and some as high as $7.50 values. Some are slightly imperfect but the most of them are perfect in every respect. With shoe prices going up every day and many lines of shoes now costing more at the factory than present retail prices, it behooves one to take advantage of every opportunity presented to save on Footwear. There will be a big demand for these $2.00 shoes so an early response is advisable. The Western Shoe Co., 235 South Broadway is where the free playground for children is located. The kiddies are always welcome. There is a young woman in charge who entertains the little folks and safeguards them from all harm. There are picture books, toys, a big slide, coasters, hop scotch court, a playhouse and many other attractions. Every child visiting the playground is presented with a toy.

You can check your baby at the playground and do your shopping in peace and comfort. Baby will be safe and well cared for. There is no charge and the use of the playground or baby checking privilege incurs no obligation to buy anything. Remember the place. Western Shoe Co., 235 South Broadway, Opposite City Hall.

CANADIAN FISHERIES.

Informing Reports Presented at Recent Convention Held in Halifax.

The convention of the Canadian Fisheries Association was held at Halifax from August 6 to 8 inclusive, and a number of reports and brochures were presented which throw light on the Canadian fishing industry, and especially that of Nova Scotia.

At the convention the question of improving the various phases of the fishing industry was discussed, including the relative advantages and expense of the different methods of fishing, such as hand-lining, using trawlers, and shore fishing, securing of bait (which has been plentiful this season,) and the marketing of the fish.

The war has cut off a number of the markets. For more than fifty years the export of dried fish to the islands of the West Indies and South American countries has been one of the most profitable of provincial trades. Recently Spain, Portugal and the Italian Mediterranean ports have been purchasers in this market, and, until the beginning of the submarine campaign, were taking increased quantities every year.

The entire coast line of the maritime provinces (New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island,) from the Bay of Fundy to the Straits of Belle Isle, covers a distance of 5690 miles. These waters are abundantly stocked with fish of twenty varieties, the more important being mackerel, haddock and herring.—[Commerce Reports.

The Draft.

NATION'S NEEDS FIX EXEMPTIONS

Deferred Classification to be Difficult to Get.

Only Indispensable Men in War Industry is Rule.

Claimants Must Convince the Boards to Gain Release.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Bankers, business men and professional men although entitled to make occupational claims for deferred classification in the new 18-to-45 draft under amended regulations will be required not only to show that they are connected with an industry indispensable to the conduct of the war, but that they are personally indispensable to that industry.

Provost-Marshal-General Crowder laid down this rule today in construing the regulations governing industrial or occupational exemption indicating it will not be easy, even for men in the advanced draft ages to obtain deferred classification on these grounds.

"Persons, such, for example, as bankers, men in commercial enterprises, newspaper men, etc., who may contemplate making claim for deferred classification on industrial occupational grounds," Gen. Crowder said, "must be prepared to convince their district board officers that the particular enterprise in which they are working is necessary to the maintenance of the military establishment, or to the effective operation of the military forces or the maintenance of national interest during the emergency; and, second, that they themselves are necessary to the operation of that enterprise."

BLANKS PROVIDED.

The questionnaire provides blanks for deferred classification on the ground of being engaged in industries which are broad enough to make each individual prove his indispensability to industry.

Americans of draft age, employed in civilian capacities by the Red Cross, Y.M.C.A. and other welfare organizations in France and England are to be given opportunity by their local boards to apply for volunteer enlistment with the American Expeditionary Forces. In the event that they are called upon by their local boards for induction into the military service.

Gen. Crowder announced today that the draft regulations had been amended to save war workers abroad from the necessity of returning to the United States to answer military summons. If they are given deferred classification for other reasons by their local boards there will be no need of their enlisting. The rule applies only to those actually called for military duty. If these men offer themselves for enlistment in France or England and are found physically disqualified they will be placed in Class 5, by their local board as unfit for military service.

MANY IN EUROPE.

The new regulations were made necessary by the large number of Americans who were above the draft age of 30 when they went to France as civilian war workers, but now find themselves within the new 18-to-45 age limits.

A supplement to the questionnaire which men between 18 and 45 will be required to fill out after they register next Thursday has been ordered by the Provost-Marshal-General, to cover information necessary for the granting of ocupational exemptions under the broader provisions of the new man-power act. In order to get all the nearly 15,000,000 questionnaires out in time, printing of them had to be commenced before Congress passed the act. Consequently the documents do not include a section of questions to fix the status of men entitled to claim the new business, professional or banking exemptions.

NEWSPAPER ADS TO BE USED FOR NEW LOAN.

COPY ALREADY PREPARED BY EXPERTS READY TO GO FORWARD IMMEDIATELY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Newspaper display advertising will be relied on more than ever to sell bonds during the fourth Liberty Loan campaign, which opens September 28. In full page and part page advertisemnets, designed by trained advertising men, the story of Liberty Bonds will be borne home to newspaper readers. The campaign will be one to advertise the war as much as to sell bonds.

Frank R. Wilson, publicity director for the loan, today announced his plans for newspaper advertising. Designs and copy for the ads already have been prepared and will be supplied free in the form of newspaper materials to daily or weekly publications.

The government will not pay newspapers for the publication, but local committees will canvass merchants and business interests in each community to pay for the space.

The Western Newspaper Union has been made the publicity bureau's agency for preparing and distributing materials to newspapers.

Probably the first of the standard ads to appear will be the full page autographed copy of President Wilson's appeal to the American people to support thel oan, to be published on September 28, the opening day.

WOMAN WAVES FLAG FROM OREGON FOREST.

[BY A. P. CORRESPONDENCE.]

PORTLAND, Sept. 6.—A dramatic greeting from out the virgin wildness of Oregon's great forest region was given a party of aged Grand Army of the Republic veterans en route to the national convention which recently closed its sessions here.

As the train paused for a moment in a wild mountain region, a woman clad in white, stepped into a clearing and waved a large American flag until the train again moved forward and the last coach was swallowed up among the towering trees.

easily prove a vital stroke to the west of Cambrai, where they have halted at the Canal du Nord and made no move toward driving home the blow which the logic of the situation points to as inevitable.

In the south the armies of Gen. Petain have now fought their way to positions where the left flank of the line is under their guns and the edges of the defensive positions are beginning to feel the effect of the pounding.

On the western outskirts of the bastion of St. Gobain, defending Laon, the French already at Barisis are in advance of the line they occupied in 1917 and farther south below the main bastion, are standing on ground which had not been in Allied hands since 1914. Further north they are before La Fere, when an eastward drive would carry them north of the St. Gobain massif.

AIM FRENCH DRIVE.

The French drive seems clearly aimed at this massif which, apparently safe from capture by a frontal attack, seems not unlikely to prove the objective of an encircling movement. This may have to await the further retirement of the Germans from the Aisne.

A retirement is regarded as inevitable because of the Allied position on the German left flank, from the Aisne at Conde to Vauxaillon.

Some military critics argue that the Germans here will not be permitted to halt even at the Chemin des Dames position, but the enemy will be forced to retreat still further north, thus additionally exposing Laon on the east.

The process of closing in toward the Hindenburg line at the points where it had not yet been reached, was continued rapidly yesterday by both the French and British. The British moved forward at an accelerated pace below the Cambrai-Peronne front and on that front itself they already are close to the line. South of the Somme the French pressed on beyond Tergnier and moved up speedily all along the line opposite the front between La Fere and St. Quentin.

GERMANS ENTRENCHED.

On the Aisne there was little change towards the western part of the front, where the Americans and French are on the river, facing the Germans entrenched along the canal which parallels the stream. Further east the Germans are giving up grudgingly the angle formed by the line trending off southeastward toward Rheims, offering particularly stiff opposition to the Franco-American forces near Roman, between Revillon and Montigny-sur-Vesle.

In Flanders the British made some further headway, but found the German resistance stiffening around La Bassee. The Germans apparently do not intend to give up Armentieres, in this sector, but are reported hurriedly fortifying the region defending it.

GOVERNMENT PLANS TO REBUILD RAILROAD.

M'ADOO PROMISES TWENTY MILLION TO BOSTON AND MAINE FOR REHABILITATION.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BOSTON, Sept. 7.—A plan for the rehabilitation of the Boston and Maine Railroad with the aid of a loan of $20,000,000 from the Railroad Administration was announced by William G. McAdoo, Director-General of Railroads while on a tour of inspection of New England roads today. Mr. McAdoo also said he thought he could safely promise that New England would not see a renewal of the transportation difficulties of last winter.

Interest on the money advanced to the Boston and Maine, the director-general said, would be secured by mortgage bonds and trust funds, and approval of substantially all of the stockholders would be necessary before the plan could be put into effect.

HULLS OF TWO SHIPS FLOATING OFF JERSEY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The hulls of two capsized vessels are floating off the coast of Seagirt, N. J., according to a report issued tonight by the United States hydrographic office here.

One of the vessels, a large steel steamer, is reported bottom up about ten miles east-southeast of Seagirt. The other, a seventy-foot ship, is reported three miles south of Seagirt and four miles off shore.

AMERICAN ECONOMIST I NA GERMAN CLINIC.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Information reaching the War Department and made public today is that Henry C. Emery, the American economist captured when the Germans seized the Aland Islands, is now in the clinic at Weiler, Germany.

There was nothing in the department's address to show whether Mr. Emery was a patient or assigned there for work.

COTTON SPINNERS IN ENGLAND WILL STRIKE.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Sept. 7.—The Amalgamated Association of Cotton Spinners, with a membership of 20,000, has decided to strike on Saturday, next, for the abolition of the Rota system.

Indirectly the strike will affect 200,000 operatives in the Lancashire cotton industry.

CUT HOURS; BETTER WORK.
[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, July 25.—The abandonment of the system of work before breakfast and adoption of the system of an 8 o'clock start in one of the great Paisley cotton-thread factories, has resulted in the disappearance of bad time-keeping, a practical cessation of sickness among girls in the first hours of the morning when work started at 6 o'clock, better work being secured and maintained, and a scarcely noticeable reduction in the output.

Kaiser to Fight a Costly Defensive War.

BY EDWIN D. JAMES.
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]
[Copyright.]

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Sept. 6.—The American army is deeply solicitous of public opinion at home. Every man in it knows we can give the fullest aid to the Allied cause only if every man, woman and child in the United States gives our military effort the ultimate intelligent support.

Because our fighting men realize this, they are most anxious that the people at home should have at all times a proper conception of the situation in order to comprehend just what task still confronts the nation.

Germany is not beaten. Germany is far from beaten. That is what the American army wants America to bear in mind and continue to bear in mind until the western front is many, many miles further back than it is today.

WEARY MILES AHEAD.

It is many miles from the Somme to the German boundary and those miles will be weary ones. This year's fighting probably will end with the line about where it was when the spring fighting started.

Of course, it is true that the Allies have the initiative now, but the American army wants America to deal in results and not promises. Brilliant victories have been won recently, and are being won. But take the map of the whole western front. Color with blue that portion of terrain recovered from the Germans since July 18 and color red the big slice from the present front, including occupied France and Belgium. Pin this on the wall and stand off and look at it.

Then the reader may realize what remains to be done.

Evidence is not lacking to show that the German command has adopted the policy now to fight a destructive defensive warfare right back to their own borders, if necessary. The German command counts on making this defensive warfare on its part, so costly for the Allies that they will make terms.

Recent events have shown that if Germany can carry out this plan she can make it costly for the Allied troops.

That Foch may have plans to spoil the German plan may be true, but that is something else.

BACK TO WALL.

Knowing that he cannot win the war by offensives, the Kaiser is now going to try to win by defensive warfare, and that is what the Allied soldiers have to face since the Allies are committed to the policy of bringing Germany to her knees.

And so the American army wants the people back home to realize just how big the task remaining to be done is, and not to be over-elated at the beginning of success, which must be long drawn out to achieve its final fulfillment.

THREE ACRES YIELD $1100 IN POTATOES.

[BY A. P. CORRESPONDENCE.]

IDAHO FALLS (Idaho) Sept. 6.—James Lord, farmer at Goshen, near here, decided to plant potatoes this year, despite the fact that those who planted the tuber last year fared badly. He has begun to reap the reward, for he has just received a check for $1100 for a crop of potatoes dug up from a three-acre tract.

A total of 560 sacks was the yield of the three acres, averaging 115 pounds to the sack, for which Mr. Lord received $1.75 a hundred pounds. Outside of the labor of hauling the seed potatoes last spring, and the work of planting and cultivating, Mr. Lord's $1100 is virtually net, for the seed potatoes cost him nothing.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, Sept. 7.—Three medical experts named to examine and report on the health of Joseph Caillaux, the former French Premier, who was reported to be ill in the Santa prison, where he is awaiting trial on the charge of treason, today announced the results of their investigation. The doctors said their diagnosis showed that M. Caillaux weighed 132 pounds, that his digestion was good, and that he had no organic trouble.

BEER BAN BARS "SOFT" VARIETY.

All Substitutes are Also to be Cut Off by Edict.

May Further Curtail Mineral Water Beverages.

"Dry" Zone Resolution Favorably Reported.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Manufacturers of near-beers and other substitutes, it was officially explained, are affected by the decision to cut off brewing of beer. Millions of dollars have been invested in the business. One of the largest breweries in the country recently erected an additional million-dollar plant solely for the brewing of this beverage.

The principal uses breweries can be converted to are the manufacture of ice, cold storage, making of yeast for baking, rolling barley and grinding grains for mill feed. All these purposes would likely be considered essential to the war or civil population.

Manufacture of all other beverages of the so-called "soft" variety, some months ago was curtailed 50 per cent. by the Food Administration as a sugar conservation measure.

FURTHER REDUCTIONS.

Further curtailment of the manufacture of such beverages and mineral waters are under consideration and may take the form of further reducing supplies of sugar, fuel, materials for containers and food products and limiting transportation facilities.

The Senate resolution empowering the President to establish prohibition zones around coal mines, shipyards and other war industries, was favorably reported by the Judiciary Committee today. Chairman Webb gave notice that he would call it up Monday under a special rule.

COLORADO BARS WINES.
[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7.—The United States Food Administration for California was advised today that the Attorney-General of Colorado has ruled it illegal under the prohibition laws of that State to manufacture alcoholic beverages either for sale or home consumption.

In view of this ruling the Food Administrator for California states that it would be inadvisable for California shippers of wine grapes to send their produce into Colorado.

Preston McKinney, acting Federal Food Commissioner for California, acting under telegraphic instructions from Washington, issued a warning today that no further purchase of unmalted grains for brewing purposes should be made in California.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL RUN ON REGIMENTAL PLAN.

[BY A. P. CORRESPONDENCE.]

SPOKANE (Wash.) Sept. 6.—A Sunday-school run on a military basis, with classes called to order with a bugle and all notices and orders issued in regulation army form, is the plan of the First Presbyterian Church here, one of the city's large downtown congregations.

Under the plan, which is to be put into effect at once, the superintendent will be designated a colonel and his assistants as majors. Department heads will be captains and teachers lieutenants. Each class will be divided into squads, with corporals in command, and with a color-bearer.

Raising and salute of the flag will constitute a part of the opening exercises each Sunday, and a patriotic song will be sung. A class for soldiers also is to be organized. Sunday school has a membership of 600.

BUENOS AIRES (Argentina) Sept. 7.—The strike of postal and government telegraph employees, which began September 5 with the walking out of 2000 of the workers, has spread until today, the entire personnel in these services, about 10,000 in all, is involved. The employees are demanding higher wages.

Poilus to Study English.

French soldiers are to have an opportunity of learning English. Classes in this subject are to be held in all garrison towns, the attendance being optional. Military men qualified for the task, or public school professors, will act as teachers.

The pupils will be graded according to capacity, each class having at least two lessons per week. Beginners will devote three or four hours a week to the study of the English language. Classes for officers will be instituted wherever possible.—[Continental Edition of London Mail.

ECKERBOARD OF WAR ON GERMANS' RETREAT.

Germans have been anxious to hold the offensive. This rtant for any army at any for an army outnumbered and red, it is the very first es When America declared the Germans knew they fight in addition to the and English, their very first was to grab the offensive, able to dictate the time where the battles should instances they have been to this; in other instances failed. At one period, weeks ago, the Germans to be in danger of entirely control of the machine.

GERMANS' PURPOSE.

ng the last few days they ap have better control of the they seem for the moment, not really being able to make to delay the retirement at the point of greatest danger; which is the line of the Aisne.

The purpose of the German retreat is quite clear.

From Craonne through Laon, La Fere and San Quentin the Germans have a network of intrenchments of great strength. This was the line from which they began their great offensive on March 21 and this is the line to which they hope to retire.

The vital point for them is the ridge of high land at Chemin des Dames, which overlooks Laon, the latter town being an anchor for the flank of their intended new line.

To absolutely check the retreat at this line without allowing the momentum of the Allied advance to break through ot a single point is a great problem for the German General Staff.

Within the last day or two they have begun the fight by which they hope to make this stand. The fight is acute in direct ratio to the nearness to the intended line. Being nearer to the intended line near Soissons, the fight is most furious at that point. Farther north, where their retreat is still voluntary to some extent, the fighting is less frenzied.

FOCH'S PLAN.

The military device by which Gen. Foch hopes to checkmate their effort to dig in again on the old Hindenburg line is plainly hinted at. He apparently contemplates a wide flanking movement through Alsace-Lorraine.

The line of the German advance into France is exactly the shape of a tall tree with roots on the Rhine bent westward before a furious blast until it is a quarter-circle. Instead of continually whaling at the branches of the tree as at present, Foch plans to strike at the roots on the Rhine by way of Alsace-Lorraine.

There are reasons to believe he has assigned to the Americans the task of making this drive.

It is a heroic task. The region is considered to be the most strongly-fortified in the world. Metz represents the finished product of German military science.

Beyond Metz lies Mainz on the Rhine. This is considered to be the jugular vein of the defenses of the German empire. There still stands at Mainz an old Roman fort showing that, even in that time, Mainz was considered to be the most important key to Germany. In latter days Napoleon used the city as a headquatrers and base for his German campaigns.

Yesterday's dispatches state that the Germans are withdrawing troops from Metz to throw into the defenses of Laon. It is possible that one important purpose of Gen. Foch in launching a blow at Alsace-Lorraine is to stop the transfer of any more German troops to the badly-harassed line in France.

It is very likely that the reports of the demoralization of German troops are exaggerated. It must be remembered that the German soldiers falling into the hands of the Allies are those who have been deliberately sacrificed, who have been left for virtual massacre in the rear-guard actions. They have been under fire for days and weeks. It is not possible for men to stand shell-fire for many hours at a time without becoming hysterical. These captured men are not a fair test of the whole army.

Making due allowance for these facts, it must be true, nevertheless, that the German army, which is hurriedly diving down into the old Hindenburg trenches, is far from being the terrible army that came bursting up over the top at 4 a.m. on March 21.

CAN'T DO IT.

It seems to me inconceivable that the Germans can hold the Hindenburg line. I think this line will be broken, not without the worst losses the Allies have thus far encountered, if we make an exception of the massacre of the English Fifth Army at St. Quentin.

If the Hindenburg line is broken, I think a real demoralization of the German army will set in. It stands to reason that the retreat from this line will be depressing in the extreme to the German soldiers.

The great present problem of Foch is to see that the Germans do not return to the Hindenburg line in a condition to hold it.

His next problem is to see that their subsequent retirement to the Rhine is disturbed by finding the Yanks there ready to receive them.

BIGGER INCOME TAX URGED BY FARMERS.

NATIONAL SPOKESMAN TELLS SENATE COMMITTEE SMALLER BOND ISSUES WANTED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Increased taxes on incomes and smaller bond issues were advocated in the hearing on the war-revenue bill before the Senate Finance Committee today by Benjamin C. Marsh, representing the Farmers' National Committee on War Finance.

"The question is," he said, "will you leave John D. Rockefeller and others with large incomes and borrow money at 4 per cent. or take all incomes over $100,000 a year?"

J. H. Dieckman, president of the St. Louis Board of Trade, objected to the tax on a membership on stock exchanges.

When one of the witnesses suggested that the debts of the Allied nations to the United States might be canceled after the war, Senator Smith of Georgia and Senator Lodge of Massachusetts declared it would be an insult to the Entente Powers to propose such a thing.

The committee will continue its hearings Monday.

FIRE ENGINE OVERTURNS

Three Narrowly Escape Death When Accident Occurs at Second and Broadway.

Acting Captain of Police David L. Adams, Engineer William Phillips and Driver Harry Steele, the latter two of the fire department, narrowly escaped death last night when fire engine No. 3 turned turtle at Second street and Broadway while answering a fire alarm at No. 123 South Broadway.

The accident occurred when the heavy steam pump, swinging north on Broadway, after traveling east on Second street, skidded and struck the curve in the street car tracks. Both Phillips and Steele were thrown from the big engine, and one of the wheels, as the machine tipped over, struck Acting Captain Adams, knocking him to the pavement.

The fire was quickly extinguished, the damage being $50.

ROLPH TO SEND PROXY IN COURT

Judicial Test of the Primary Law is Planned.

Candidate for Assembly to be Case Figurehead:

Situation Regarding Nomination Same for Both.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7.—James Rolph's fight for the nomination for Governor of California is to be taken into court by proxy. Rolph and his advisers in San Francisco have found a candidate for the Assembly, Frank N. Rogers in the Thirty-second District, whose case is the same as that of Rolph. Both filed for nomination on Democratic as well as Republican tickets, both being Republicans. Both won the Democratic nomination and were repudiated by their own party. Now both would run at the regular election as Democrats, and the law declares they shall not.

The decision to make a court fight for the nomination was made today. Matt I. Sullivan, Rolph's chief legal adviser, announced that the Rogers case would be made the test in the Supreme Court. This announcement came just after Chairman O. K. Cushing of the Democratic State Central Committee had sent out a call for a meeting of the committee to be held here Wednesday afternoon.

The call was sent after several requests on the part of Rolph and his advisers, who contend they are the chiefs of the Democratic party now by virtue of the ballots cast for him at the primary.

MEETING OPPOSED.

Ever since Rolph first made that assertion, the central committee has tried to avoid a meeting. One member asserted that a meeting would mean only an unpleasant occasion, as it would be impossible for Rolph to dictate to the Democratic party, and he could in no case command a majority of the committee votes.

After the call for the committee meeting had gone forth, the Rolph managers decided the camouflaged court proceedings under Rogers's name would be the safer proceedings when compared with the certainty of a scrap before the central committee. Rogers is a former political job holder under Rolph and a member of the old Johnson machine. He was a candidate in the Thirty-second District, and the election commissioners accommodated Rolph by hurrying up the count in that district so that the Rogers ballots could be sent to Sacramento.

JORDAN BUSY.

The returns reached the capital Friday evening by special messenger and were presented at the office of the Secretary of State. However, Secretary of State Jordan was on his way to his orchard home at Auburn and did not wait to certify the papers, thus leaving the Rolph programme somewhat up in the air.

"I absolutely refused to give them a decision until Tuesday," said Jordan after he reached Auburn, and he explained that he had misgivings as to his ability to read into the State Constitution any authorization to certify partial returns.

Consequently the Mayor's advisers were unable to bring the suit today, as they had announced they would.

Rolph intends to appear before the Democratic Central Committee next Wednesday and advance his claim, as the announced purpose of the meeting will be to decide upon definite plans of procedure in placing a Democratic candidate for Governor on the State ticket at the general election in November. It is not believed possible that the committee will take any part in the court proceedings.

GERMAN BATTALIONS REDUCED ONE-FOURTH.

CUT FROM FOUR TO THREE COMPANIES, SHOWING BIG DRAIN ON MAN POWER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Further evidence of the drain on German man power during the fighting of the last few months reached Washington today in official dispatches which quoted captured enemy documents.

Numerous German battalions now are composed of three companies instead of four, as reserves were not available to keep four company units up to necessary strength. In this process of consolidation forty German regiments are said to have been wiped out entirely.

It also is stated that the men of the German class of 1919 are rapidly disappearing and those of the 1920 class must be drawn on to fill gaps, a measure which the enemy is said to be postponing as long as possible.

The dispatches note that the military efficiency of the class of 1920 is very low, as the boys are exhausted by underfeeding before they join their regiments.

The dispatches also say that the actual monthly arrival of American troops in France is equal now to fully one-half of the German annual recruitment.

ONE NEPHEW KILLED, ANOTHER A PRISONER.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, Sept. 7.—H. E. Coisson, a fruit farmer on West Ninth street, has received word that one of his nephews in the French army has been killed while another nephew, M. Rivolie, is in a German prison camp at Metz. The latter information was received on an official German postcard and said that he is working on a ranch under German supervision.

HOG ISLAND MAY FAIL IN DELIVERY OF SHIPS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 7.—Simultaneously with encouraging reports of progress in the Hog Island shipyard today came information that there is scarcely any hope of the plant delivering the ships promised for 1918.

"It doesn't look possible that Hog Island will fulfill its schedule of forty-eight ships delivered this year," said Charles Piez, vice-president of the Emergency Fleet Corporation.

"To carry out that programme the plant would have to have 35,000 skilled men today."

German Prince Killed in Battle.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BASEL (Switzerland) Sept. 7 (Havas.)—The death of Prince Ferdinand of Solms-Hohensolms-Lich is announced today by the German newspapers. He was killed on the battle front last Sunday while in command of an infantry battalion.

MYSTERY FIREBUGS DESTROY HAY STACKS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, Sept. 7.—Fire, believed to have been of incendiary origin, destroyed sixty-five tons of hay valued at $1800 on the Charles Nicholas ranch southeast of this city today. The stack of hay apparently took fire in three different places at the same time. As far as known none of those about the ranch had been near the stack for several hours and as the hay had been in the pile for three months it is not believed that spontaneous combustion could have been the cause.

Preparations were immediately started in the district to guard against fires of this nature in the future. A year ago several hundred tons of hay were destroyed by mystery fires which have never been explained.

GENTLEMEN! PERUSE THIS MOST IMPORTANT MESSAGE OR SELLING TALK By MR. RICHMOND

THAT'S FUNNY!

Haven't you noticed how little I have to say about clothes in any and all of my publicity. Why, men's clothing or tailoring talk is not interesting. No one reads it. Just contains the same old stereotyped bunk, like trying to read a telephone book or dictionary. Most tiresome and generally of a prevaricating nature. I long ago passed up trying to sell goods on that kind of aged publicity. The great majority of all men in Los Angeles and vicinity know, or know of my reputation for integrity. Besides there is nothing to be said. Suits at present are a little higher priced than heretofore, but this condition makes no material change in my business—as volume is my way and means to offset this ruling.

GENTLEMEN!

Bigness in body does not necessarily mean bigness of intellect. Personally I am just a little DUCK, weight 126 pounds. But if my size was as great in proportion as my business, then believe me, men, irrespective of age, I'd make the effort to wedge my way to the front line trenches and do with the Huns what I have just about accomplished with competition—make them see the light of justice, and what Perseverance can do.

"It's Wonderful How Our Home Is Helping Me Teach My Children Appreciation, Poise and Reverence"

Advanced Ideas of Los Angeles People

The big stores that people build by their patronage are a faithful reflection of their advanced ideas.

Los Angeles, for its size in population, is conceded to have more big stores, and of a better type, than other cities.

This is not strange, in view of the fact that in this community are gathered together people who were advanced enough in their ideas to leave good homes elsewhere in search for larger opportunity or a place to enjoy life in the largest sense.

The furnishing of homes for all these people with advanced ideas has created America's largest strictly "Home-furnishing" institution. Here are grouped together (exclusive of large warehouses) thirty-three floors, each the size of a large city lot, 50x150 feet.

Can you imagine these floors one over the other reaching up into the sky thirty-three stories? This will give you an idea of the size of the institution.

And what can such a big store do for YOU? Its only license to be BIG is that it can give you more for your money and serve you better than would otherwise be possible.

This store will grow as much larger as the needs and ideas of its patrons make it.

—is what one of our patrons of moderate means told us, with joy in her voice, the other day.

"I thought the home you people helped me furnish so charmingly, a few months ago, was, perhaps, a little bit too beautiful for a family with young folks to care for—but it has paid, oh, a hundred times over, already!

"It has taught my boys and girls that the furniture in their home is something to be treated with respect and reverence. It has given and is giving them daily so natural and close a companionship with well-bred and artistic home surroundings that I shall have no fear of their becoming awkwardly awed by the furniture of their wealthier friends.

"In short, my children are learning to feel at ease in homes finer than their own. They are learning to appreciate the grace of our forty-dollar library table so truly that they will recognize the same art of line in the $150 table that may adorn the living room of one of their later friends. And so I am comfortably confident they will feel gracefully 'at home' anywhere.

"It is so worth-while to educate one's children in good breeding by giving them an inspiring home! And, after all, you know, my home furnishings were not expensive—just a few 'picture pieces,' as you call them, and the rest very simple and so restfully harmonized!"

We think the wisest way to insure the best influence of your home upon the characters of your children is thoughtfully and immediately to "weed out" the things that "grate," turn them in at Barker Bros.' Exchange Basement and, as soon as you can, select new articles here to take their places. The value of your exchanged goods will be applied as part payment on the new merchandise you purchase.

"A Place to Be Happy In"—Your Living Room

If you can't be happy in your own living room, there's something wrong—with you, perhaps, but far more likely with the room itself.

Of course you couldn't be really happy in a room that jars upon your sense of what is beautiful. Your living room should be soothing and restful, yet full of life and "sparkle." That isn't too much to expect of a living room. It's no more than you and your family deserve—no more than you can easily and conscientiously have and have at once.

Because a beautiful living room may (perhaps by means of just a few skillful substitutions) be charmed out of a sullen and cheerless one. It has been done—it can be done for you—at the minimum cost, with Barker Bros.' help.

WAR RULES BAN NEW BUILDINGS.

Priorities Committee Issues License Orders.

Construction Essential to Victory Permitted.

Local Board to Pass on All Applications.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Because of the universal confusion about building materials and their use during the war, the War Industries Board has just issued a circular through the Priorities Committee. Its chief points are as follows:

Structures, roads or other construction projects falling within the following classifications are hereby approved and no permits or licenses will be required therefor:

1—After having first been cleared and approved by the War Industries Board those undertaken directly by or under contract with the War Department or the Navy Department of the United States or the United States Shipping Board Emergency Fleet Corporation, the bureau of industrial housing and transportation of the United States Department of Labor or the United States Housing Corporation.

2—Repairs or extensions to existing building involving in the aggregate a cost not exceeding $2500.

3—Roadways, buildings and other structures undertaken by or under contract with the United States Railroad Administration or a railroad operated by such administration.

4—Those directly connected with mines producing coal, metals and ferro-alloy mineral, and

5—Public highway improvement and street pavement when expressly approved in writing by the United States Highway Council.

PERMITS REQUIRED.

No building project not falling within one of the foregoing classes shall be undertaken without a permit in writing issued by or under the authority of the chief of the non-war construction section of the priorities division of the War Industries Board.

Should one contemplating building conceive his proposed project to be in the public interest and of such essential character that, under existing conditions, it should not be deferred, then he will make a full statement of the facts in writing under oath and present same to the local representative of the Council of National Defense, applying to such representative for his approval of the proposed construction. Should such local representative approve the construction of the project he will promptly transmit the application, stating clearly and fully his reasons for approving same, to the chief of the non-war construction section of the priorities division of the War Industries Board, Washington, for consideration.

Should the application be finally approved by the priorities division of the construction section permit will issue, which will constitute a warrant to manufacturers and dealers who have taken the pledges of co-operation above mentioned to sell and deliver building material secured for the construction of the licensed building project.

While it is not the policy of the government unnecessarily to interfere with any legitimate business industry or construction project it must be borne in mind that there is an imperative and constantly increasing demand for labor, material and capital for the production and distribution of direct and indirect war needs, to satisfy which much non-war construction must be deferred.

A full realization of this fact by all loyal and patriotic citizens, including State and municipal authorities, is all that is required to postpone such construction activities as interefere with the war programme.

The State and local representatives of the Council of National Defense are with confidence depended upon fully to acquaint the whole people of these United States with the pressing need for the most rigid terms of dollars, but also in economy, measured not only in terms of labor, materials and transportation service.

The construction project which must now be deferred may be undertaken when we shall have won the war and will then furnish employment to the returning artisan now on the battle front, as well as to those who then will be released by strictly war industries.

RABBIS OPPOSE JEWS' NATIONALISTIC PLANS.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—In a telegram to President Wilson the Rabbis' National Committee has expressed its belief that all attempts to revive separate nationality or nationalistic interest among Jews is a menace to Judaism.

The telegram was sent as a consequence of the President's Jewish New Year message to Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, former president of the Provisional Zionist Committee. Mr. Wilson expressed his deep interest in the reconstructive work which the British mission, headed by Dr. Chaim Weisemann, president of the English Zionist Federation, has been doing in Palestine to make the country the future Jewish homeland.

CHARGE CONTRACTORS WITH EXTRAVAGANCE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Contractors and subcontractors who built the Hog Island (Pa.) shipyard are charged with extravagance during the early days of the work in a report now in the hands of Atty.-Gen. Gregory to be transmitted soon to President Wilson. It was said today the investigation failed to show grounds for criminal prosecution.

The investigators charge, that agents of the American International Corporation, which built the plant for the government, in placing orders permitted the charging of exorbitant prices, which in turn were passed on to the government.

Wages at first were on a higher scale than elsewhere, the report says, and many shipyard experts were hired at salaries which in some cases appeared more than commensurate with the ability of the men.

ROBBER GUIDES POLICE TO CACHE OF JEWELS.

German Who Stole Small Fortune in Diamonds and Cash Confesses; Case Puzzles Officers.

LEADING police officials to the spot where he had buried his loot, Leo C. Wende, last evening directed the officers to dig in a hill near Coyote Pass and there uncovered the small fortune in diamonds, jewelry, watches and cash which he had stolen from the store of Donovan & Seamans Company, No. [illegible] South Broadway, on the morning of August 17, last.

On Thursday Wende admitted to the police that he had committed the robbery and then he asked for an attorney. He refused to consider any other than Joseph Ford, attorney for the firm he had robbed. Mr. Ford was called in and Wende, after telling him that he would produce the loot, asked to be informed of his legal status.

On Friday he talked, first to Detectives J. E. Winn and D. A. Murphy, who arrested him as the robbery suspect on August 30, at Ninth and Los Angeles streets, then to Detective Captain Home and Chief Butler. Late yesterday afternoon, Wende, in an automobile with Chief Butler, Capt. Home, Detectives Murphy and Winn and Attorney Ford, directed the officers to drive to three places.

AT THREE PLACES.

The first place, in the back of a lumber yard on Crocker, near [illegible] street, Wende led the police directly to a much frequented spot, where, in plain sight, subject to discovery at any moment, was a canvas bag which contained several small books and memoranda of the jewelry company. Next Wende asked the police to drive to the [illegible]-street school, and under the structure, carelessly wrapped up and so placed that the package might have been noticed at any time by school children, were the jewel trays, from which Wende had carefully removed all the valuables. Wende then directed the police to take him to a hill just northeast of Coyote Pass, ten miles from the schoolhouse. Arrived there Wende directed Chief Butler and Capt. Home, who were equipped with spades, to dig in three different places.

In the first spot, after removing a carefully planted cactus plant and digging two feet into the earth, the police found a battery box, and in it was a portion of the jewels stolen. In two other spots, hidden in exactly the same manner and marked by cactus plants which Wende had planted over them, was found the balance of the loot.

CHECK UP THE LOOT.

Presenting one of the most unusual psychological studies in the history of criminal activity in Los Angeles, Wende sat last night in Detective Captain Home's office, while Chief Butler, Capt. Home, J. G. Donovan, manager and part owner of the jewelry store; Joseph Ford, the latter's attorney, and Detectives Winn and Murphy checked up the jewelry found. The total value is $28,942.50, including $440 in cash.

Many times, when the officers made mistakes in appraisements of the rings, Wende, from a list of his own making, corrected them, giving the correct value of the item, its lot number and a description of it.

Police officials are puzzled by the man. Wende began to break down under the continual questioning to which he was subjected, questioning that allowed of no interruption and which continued day and night, from the time of his arrest till yesterday morning.

On Friday, while closeted with Capt. Home, Chief Butler and Attorney Ford, Wende stated that he would begin his confession of his crime with the actual robbery. He refused to give any information concerning his past, except to state that he was born in Germany, where he moved in official circles. From the first he was marked by the police as a man of unusual education, and he did vouchsafe the information that he was a chemist by profession in his native land.

The opinion that Wende is either a master criminal or is insane was expressed last night by the police. Apparently normal, coolheaded and without the least sign of malice in his demeanor or his speech, Wende sat and assisted in the checking up of his spoils. He told Chief Butler and Capt. Home that he would feel better if there were no reward given by the jewelry company for the recovery of the diamonds and jewelry.

"I would feel better," said Wende, "if no one profited by my act. I wish to take every lawful step to undo an unlawful action. I wish no one to profit by my criminal activity."

On Thursday, Chief Butler and Capt. Home explained to Wende that there were two ways he could act; first, to confess his crime and show where he had hidden the valuables; second, to go to the penitentiary. The two officials took Wende into their confidence and showed him that they had evidence enough, although they lacked the stolen goods, to send him to the penitentiary for ten or fifteen years. He was told that he would receive a lighter sentence if he would aid the officers.

"Give me a day to think this over," said Wende. "I am not one who makes up his mind in a hurry." And on Friday he asked for Mr. Donovan's attorney, refusing all others. Yesterday morning he began his confession, which ended by leading the police to his cache.

TELLS OF CRIME.

In a cool summary of his crime, Wende said last night:

"I first separated the jewelry from the impedimenta, taking the trays, wrapping them up in one package, placing the checks and other papers in another and the jewelry and cash in a third package. As a container for the money and the other valuables I secured battery cases, which, as you know, are made of the finest steel, are hermetically sealed, being thus waterproof, and, in a measure, are indestructible. In the latter boxes I placed the diamonds and the rings, the watches and the $450 cash, which I took from the safe. Then I placed the checks in one spot, the trays in another and buried the jewelry. I have nothing more to say. I stole the stuff, and now I have recovered it. There is nothing further to be done."

Chief Butler announced last night that the recovery of the valuables will probably save the life of George G. Koeberle, the watchmaker, who, according to custom, opened the Donovan & Seaman's store on the morning of the theft. Mr. Koeberle, according to Chief Butler, has been lying at death's door for several days because of the nerve strain and the humiliation caused by his being under suspicion for the first three or four days after the robbery.

CAMP LEWIS BRIGADE COMMANDERS NAMED.

THIRTEENTH DIVISION NICKNAME AND SONGS POUR INTO OFFICE.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

CAMP LEWIS, TACOMA (Wash.) Sept. 7.—Brig.-Gen. Frank B. Watson will command the Twenty-sixth Infantry Brigade of the Thirteenth Division and Brig.-Gen. William P. Ennis the Thirteenth Field Artillery Brigade, according to orders received here today from Washington.

Songs and nicknames for the Thirteenth Division from mothers of soldiers, from sweethearts, from wives, brothers and sisters, have been pouring into the division intelligence office here since it was announced a fighting name and fighting songs were wanted.

From every State in the West from which this camp draws men have come songs and nicknames for the division. From them will be selected one name by which the division of westerners will be known and because of the high value of the songs already submitted it is believed more than half a dozen will be available for teaching the soldiers. It was requested the songs be set to popular music already published.

With the arrival of approximately 500 drafted men in one lot from Seattle, 1660 men were received here yesterday. Washington supplied practically all of these, sending 1335 men.

Revenue Bill.

LIQUOR REVISE MAY DELAY TAX

House Expects to Reach Final Vote Next Week.

Should Become Law by November 1, Leaders Say.

Kitchin Delivers Longest Speech on Measure.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Explanation of the revenue bill was concluded in the House today by Chairman Kitchin of the Ways and Means Committee. Mr. Kitchin started speaking yesterday and members said his address was the longest ever delivered in the House.

Probable effect of prohibition legislation on the nation's revenues was discussed by Mr. Kitchin in explaining the beverage section of the war tax measure. He also took up the war and excess profits features as well as those affecting corporations and luxuries.

General debate on the bill will continue next week and leaders tonight revised their predictions for passage of the measure next Saturday. They believe now that minor committee revisions, possibly of the liquor taxes because of pending prohibition legislation, and debate will prevent a final vote before September 17 or 18.

Mr. Kitchin in his speech said the bill should be enacted by both houses of Congress by November 1 and he expressed the hope that another war revenue measure next year would not be necessary, although he said that if national prohibition is enacted, new tax sources will have to be found to replace the $1,250,000,000 estimate tax on alcoholic beverages provided for in the present measure.

BEER LOSS HEAVY.

Such legislation, Mr. Kitchin said, probably will not be necessary before next year, although the administration order, announced yesterday stopping the manufacture of beer December 1, next, will cause a loss under the present bill of about $120,000,000.

"We feel that the bill is not too hard on corporations. We are not so hard on them as at first blush it might seem. We're not confiscating their incomes," said Mr. Kitchin, in commenting on the increase of corporation income tax from 6 per cent. to 18 per cent. "The allowance for a 6 per cent. rebate on dividends distributed," he added, "would stimulate payment to stockholders and increase Federal receipts from individual income surtaxes."

Representative Longworth, Republican, interrupted to suggest that the only essential differences between the committee and the Treasury Department was over the proposed rebate and the increase in excess profits rates.

"I've seen reports of 'a great contest, a great conflict' with Secretary McAdoo," Representative Kitchin replied. "Every man on the committee knows there hasn't been one report which was not apparently a deliberate misrepresentation and deliberately designed to deceive the public.

McADOO SATISFIED.

"This bill is satisfactory to the Secretary and other Treasury officials," he continued, confirming Representative Longworth's statement of the only two essential differences, which he said, were pleasant and not acrimonious differences.

Representative Moore of Pennsylvania, Republican, observed that the Treasury had made many suggestions to the committee which it had not accepted and Representative Kitchin said all these had been "threshed out."

Democrats applauded when Representative Longworth said that as the bill raises only part of the revenues needed it was no derogation of House dignity to consult with Treasury officials.

Regarding the difference over increasing excess profits rates, Representative Kitchin said the committee had been unanimous for the increase despite the Treasury's objections.

"It was the only right, wise and fair thing to do," he said. "Otherwise some successful corporations would be guaranteed that their taxes should not be raised a penny while 90 per cent. would have taxes increased from 50 to 300 per cent."

HALF BRITISH TAX.

The corporate income tax rate of 18 per cent., he said, will be less than half of the present British tax, and the committee had made provision against the excess profits taxes bearing heavily on small corporations by placing only approximately 10 per cent. of burden on excess profits and 90 per cent. on war profits.

The excess profits plan, the majority leader said, would raise more revenue than the war profits plan, but he and Representative Moore emphasized that alternative plan of taxing corporations under both the war and excess profits plan—whichever will bring most to the government—is made mandatory upon the Treasury Department.

Explaining inheritance tax increases, Mr. Kitchin said the raise from 25 to 40 per cent. in the maximum rate (on estates over $10,000,000) was "a pretty good, healthy increase."

To the suggestion that orders of the War Industries Board are resulting in curtailment of manufacturers' profits, Mr. Kitchin said:

"In estimating revenues from this bill, we estimated that conditions would go along about as they have been. Of course, the War Industries Board could issue orders that would destroy one billion or even two billions of revenue, but we're hoping and assuming that they will not so exercise their power as to materially reduce revenues."

LUXURIES ALL COVERED.

Several members asked if any thought had been given to sources of revenue to supplant losses from prohibition, suggesting consumption taxes on coffee, sugar and other luxuries.

"I think we've covered about all the luxuries we could think of," Mr. Kitchin said, explaining that a 1-cent tax on tea brings only $1,000,000.

"We will have to wait until conditions then existing when a new bill is written are seen," he continued. "Some time we may have to come to more taxes, but conditions will be different if it is necessary next year to write another revenue bill. I hope it will not be necessary.

"Maybe we might get $200,000,000 to $300,000,000 more from tariff increases. Also we could levy consumption taxes, gross sales taxes and we might increase the income tax, on the small brackets, and get $100,000,000 to $200,000,000. But you could not get any $300,000,000 out of tea and coffee."

When asked how soon the increased beverage taxes would go into effect, Representative Kitchin said:

"As soon as the Senate passes the bill."

Windham of Long Beach, and Miss Mary Barnett, daughter of Job Barnett, capitalist, who resides at Ninth street and American avenue, Long Beach. The wedding, which probably will take place next week, will be the culmination of a high school romance. Both are graduates of the Long Beach High School.

In Collision.

J. STITT WILSON'S SON IS AIRPLANE VICTIM.

WILLIAM GLADSTONE WILSON, son of J. Stitt Wilson, former Mayor of Berkeley, was instantly killed at Mather Field, near Sacramento, yesterday afternoon when his airplane tumbled to earth after colliding head on with another machine at a height of 3500 feet. James E. Wilson of Pueblo, Colo., piloting the other plane, died of his injuries a few minutes after he was removed to a hospital. The two men are no relation. Their bodies now lie, draped with American flags, at a Sacramento undertaking establishment.

William G. Wilson, better known as Gladstone Wilson, was drafted a year ago and trained in the artillery. His qualities of leadership were so marked that he was retained on the Coast to assist in the drilling of recruits when the rest of the regiment was transferred. He had been flying only a few weeks and was still a cadet in aviation.

Wilson was 25 years old. At the University of California he took prominant parts in dramatic activities. Both his sisters are of histrionic prominence. Mrs. Gladys Conway of No. 257 South Vermont avenue, this city, was at one time in the Belasco stock company; Mrs. Violet Pischel is now at St. Louis, giving her services for cantonment entertainment. Young Wilson became known also as an orator when he toured the State in a campaign against saloons after his graduation from the university.

It is not known how yesterday's accident occured. The collision occured at Walsh Station, just south of Mather Field, and a civilian witnessing it telephoned the news to the field. Witnesses declared the two machines came together head on. One of the planes dropped as straight as a plummet, turning over and over. The other appeared to be descending for a landing, but struck with great force.

AUSTRIANS SUFFER BIG LOSS BY FRENCH BLOW.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

ITALIAN HEADQUARTERS IN NORTHERN ITALY, Sept. 7.—(Havas.) French troops yesterday executed a surprise attack to the east of Asiago after a short, but intensive artillery preparation.

The enemy resisted stubbornly and lost heavily through the French artillery fire and grenades.

The French destroyed a number of enemy shelters and took prisoners. The losses of the French were slight.

PECULIAR ACCIDENT.

Bakersfield Woman Rendered Temporarily Blind by Injury to Head.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ORANGE, Sept. 7.—Struck on the head by the tongue of a wagon and made blind for several hours was the peculiar experience of Mrs. T. J. Stone of Bakersfield, a visitor at the P. A. Burbank home in Olive. Mrs. Stone was standing in the yard in front of a farm wagon, the tongue of which was standing in a perpendicular position, and was talking to a member of the family about to leave in his machine. In turning the car it struck the wagon, knocking the tongue down upon Mrs. Stone, who suffered severe head injuries. While conscious, she was unable to see for some hours, the blow having impaired the optic nerve.

Just Once! Try Dodson's Liver Tone! Take No Calomel! Listen To Me!

If bilious, constipated, headachy or sick, I guarantee relief without taking dangerous calomel which sickens and salivates.

Stop using calomel! It makes you sick. Don't lose a day's work. If you feel lazy, sluggish, bilious or constipated, listen to me!

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile, crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are "all knocked-out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, breath is bad or stomach sour, just try a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone.

Here's my guarante — Go to any drug store and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents. Take a spoonful tonight, and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous by morning, I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it cannot salivate or make you sick.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep the entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe and they like its pleasant taste.

TO START A NEW CLASS IN FRENCH.

FACILITIES OFFERED BY "THE TIMES" ARE FREE TO WAR WORKERS AND SOLDIERS.

A new class in French, free of charge to draft men, Red Cross nurses, Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. workers, and to others enrolled in government service, will be started Monday under the auspices of The Times by C. Harry Allis, the well-known artist, whose advanced classes in French, also given under auspices of The Times, are proving a great success and are heartily indorsed by members. The new class will meet Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday from 10:45 until 11:45 a.m., the Times Assembly Hall, second floor The Times Building, First and Broadway.

The instructor has announced further that the other classes, which meet, respectively, from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m., 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. and from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m., on the four above days, will be continued throughout the winter. These are advanced conversation courses, and include practical, spoken French.

The new class, however, will ground the students in correct French conversation, in addition to instructing them in the pronunciation of cities and towns in the war zone. Mr. Allis, who was for many years a resident of France, where he taught in the school for boys at Cucq, is a fluent linguist who teaches the natural method, that of acquiring by the student's contact with the instructor.

DISCUSS FLOOD CONTROL

Capt. Charles T. Leeds, United States Engineer, appeared before the Board of Supervisors yesterday with reference to the proposal to ask the Federal government to requisition the land for a right of way for a temporary channel in Long Beach to carry off the floodwaters this winter, which otherwise might endanger the harbor industries.

Capt. Leeds thought the best step would be to prepare a signed agreement and send it to Washington, the county undertaking to pay the damages for the right of way.

CLAREMONT SCHOOL FOR BOYS

A school of limited number for recommended boys preparing for college or for business. Beautifully and conveniently located, thoroughly equipped, competently manned. Small enough for careful individual attention to the needs of every pupil. Large enough to be a real school.

The formation of high ideals of life and the development of clean, manly character are the first consideration.

Health and physical training come next. Every boy has systematic physical exercise every day, suited to his needs, and based on a careful medical and physical examination. All forms of athletics. Forty-acre campus, athletic field, tennis courts, swimming pool. There is much out-door life. Camping trips and hikes are frequent. The location at the edge of the mountains and the Angeles National Forest makes such trips very convenient.

Sound Scholarship. Thoroughness in all academic work is absolutely required. The faculty consists of college and university-trained men (representing Yale, Harvard, Pomona, etc.) and the standards of scholarship are high. Special attention is given to preparation for college entrance board examinations, admitting to all Eastern universities.

Military Training is given, including drill in close and extended order, manual of physical training, construction work, signaling, map-making, rifle practice. The life and organization of the school are not military, but the military training is given with thoroughness, and aids in the development of obedience, promptness, courtesy and patriotism.

The Location of the School is near a college town, thirty-five miles from Los Angeles, accessible, but free from distractions. The school was filled to its capacity last year.

TO BOYS WHO ARE IN EARNEST!

Within the past week the War Department has provided for the organization of the STUDENTS' ARMY TRAINING CORPS by which boys from 18 to 21 may be trained at certain colleges before being sent overseas. Such student-soldiers will be in the army immediately, in uniform and receiving pay, and being prepared for advancement as commissioned and non-commissioned officers. But only those who have finished a high school course and are ready for college can get the benefits of this arrangement at once.

BOYS OF ABOUT SEVENTEEN, who lack one or more years of being ready for college but are nearing the draft age, must consider whether they wish to reach that age as trained or as untrained men. Such boys, if they are in earnest and want the most thorough training for service, may do as follows:

First, ENTER THE CLAREMONT SCHOOL FOR BOYS, to complete the preparatory course as quickly and thoroughly as possible; and, at the same time,

Second, JOIN THE STUDENTS' ARMY TRAINING CORPS AT POMONA COLLEGE.

This plan made possible by the convenient nearness of the Claremont School for Boys to Pomona College, affords the best facilities now available to the older boys of High School grade to continue their education and at the same time to receive the most complete preparation for early service in the army.

The younger boys will receive their military training at the school as heretofore.

"A BIG SCHOOL FOR LITTLE BOYS"

COL. R. P. KELLY

The new term opens September 16. We have increased our accommodations so that we can take care of twenty more boarding pupils than a year ago. This constant growth is due to merit.

Owing to the rapid growth of the school it has been necessary to get a superintendent capable of sharing administrative burdens with Mr. Gibbs, the head master. Col. R. P. Kelly has been chosen for this work. He has been commandant for six years at the Harvard School in this city and for the past eight years has been Supt. of Physical Education in the Tacoma, Washington, public schools. The following letter speaks for itself:

"I should regret exceedingly to have anything take Col. Kelly away from the Tacoma public schools, for he has made himself almost invaluable. He has unusual ability in organization and discipline and he has made a splendid success of his work here.

"Col. Kelly has shown great power in handling the four hundred teachers with whom he has to work. He is so courteous and efficient that he has their fullest respect and co-operation. His influence with pupils of all ages is remarkable.

"Col. Kelly is a natural leader. He is well trained in military affairs, has an excellent education and is a most loyal and tireless worker."

(Signed) WM. F. GEIGER,
Supt. Tacoma Public Schols.

"VIOLATE" LAW IF YOU WISH.

Prosecutor will not Issue Complaints for Keeping Open Today.

City Prosecutor Widney announced yesterday that he will not issue complaints for violation of the Sunday-closing ordinance in case violations occur today.

It is the opinion of Mr. Widney that the issuance of complaints would not be justified, in view of the fact that the City Council seems disposed to repeal the ordinance next Tuesday.

As a result of the city prosecutor's announcement, the police were instructed not to make any arrests today or pay attention to stores selling any of the heretofore-forbidden things.

FOLLOWS HIS NOSE; GETS MAN HE WANTED.

DEPUTY SHERIFF GOES TO MARKET FOR ORIENTAL MUCH WANTED.

Japanese look alike to Joe Nolan, deputy sheriff, and it requires a specialist in criminology to distinguish one from another, he says.

So when Joe received a communication from the Sheriff of Orange county to arrest one T. Kushino, wanted there on a bad check charge, he sat down at his desk in the Sheriff's office and pondered awhile. The description of the Oriental was very meager—eyes oblique, blue-black hair, clean shaven, and so forth. All Japanese bear such a description.

Nolan, therefore, went along on his instinctive genius, born of long experience. He wandered along Main street to Ninth, and then down toward San Pedro street. Then he rambled through the market there. When Japanese come into town from over Santa Ana way they usually have something to do with produce. They generally find a market.

At a stall there Nolan inquired after one T. Kushino, and was told he could be found two stalls further down. T. Kushino appeared and was placed under arrest to await the arrival of Santa Ana officers.

"These Orientals are as inscrutable as a bronze Buddah; the only way to locate them is to follow your nose," was Nolan's comment on his capture.

HUGE TENTS UP FOR TRACTOR EXHIBIT.

GREAT CROWD EXPECTED AT DEMONSTRATION OPENING ON TUESDAY.

The coming third annual tractor demonstration, which opens the 17th inst., is casting its shadow before it. Already huge tents are being erected at the site on Wilshire Boulevard at La Brea avenue. Yesterday officials of the Traction Engine and Implement Dealers' Association were busy helping exhibitors get their space allotments into shape for the big demonstration.

The exhibit grounds cover a quarter-section of La Brea ranch, while the extra demonstration field is 1175 feet by 1200 feet in dimension. Elaborate arrangements have been made to care for the comfort of the 150,000 visitors expected. There will be an immense restaurant on the grounds, several comfort stations, and drinking water is being piped to several points.

An artificial landscape will be added to the demonstration field for the purpose of showing unusual conditions with which the tractor is especially fitted to cope. Citrus and deciduous trees, balled, will be set out, annual plants set out and artificial gullies and ravines made.

Imperative.

CALL FOR MEN IN CLASS ONE.

Demand to Release Loafers from Shipyards.

Local Boards are Asked to Put 'Em in Army.

Dangerous Phase of Work of Alien Enemy.

The following communication is indicative of the co-operation that the Emergency Fleet Corporation extends to local draft boards. All boards are earnestly requested to comply with the requests, as it is believed that this will net many men to the Class 1 list and eventually solve all questions concerning the slacker who is hiding behind the Emergency Fleet Corporation bulwark.

August 15, 1918.

To All Local Boards:

The branch office of deferments and transfers for California has been trying to release from the shipyards as many as possible of the Class 1 men who are physically qualified for general military service. I have repeatedly urged the shipyards to notify me as to all men whom they could release, and this office has conducted investigations on its own part. It seems, however, that this work cannot be done adequately without the co-operation of the local boards; therefore, I request the assistance of the boards so that we may have a complete housecleaning of the Emergency Fleet list, particularly in so far as it affects Class 1 men. I trust that the local boards will feel that I am bound by obligation of duty as well as by personal desire to enforce the selective service regulations as vigorously as the local boards themselves, and I desire to have not one man upon the fleet list who is not of more value to the government in the shipyards than he would be in the army.

The policy of this office is as follows: All men who loaf on the work or who are absent from the work more than two and one-half days per month, exclusive of Sundays and holidays, except for bona fide illness, are to be removed immediately from the fleet list. Only those men who are working heart and soul in the construction of ships can be retained upon the fleet list. Notorious slackers, that is, men who have gone into the yards to avoid military service and who are boasting about it, should be taken off the list as soon as possible. Men who have gone into the yards to avoid military duty, but who are keeping their mouths shut, will also be removed from the list unless their services at the present time are obviously of more value in the shipyards than in the army. All men in Class 1, who entered the yards as unskilled workers, will also be removed from the list unless within the course of the last four or six months they have advanced rapidly in their work and have become semi-skilled or skilled workers, so that their places cannot be filled by new men who are in deferred classes because of dependency claims.

In order to obtain the full co-operation of the local boards, I would request that each board send to me (325 Exchange Block, San Francisco,) a list of all the Class 1 men on their fleet list. It is necessary that this list should contain the men's order and serial numbers, and should also give, without fail, the name of the shipyard in which the man is employed, as all the records in this office are kept according to the company, and it is impossible for us to look up any name unless we know for which company he is working. It is not the mere list I want; that I, myself, have. I particularly urge the boards to express their views as to the propriety of a man's name being upon the fleet list. I appreciate that the boards know more about each man than does this office because they have the questionnaire at hand and, in each case, I hope the board will look over the questionnaire and will add a statement of any facts appearing therein which will indicate the propriety of leaving the registrant's name upon the list or of taking it off. As soon as these lists are received, the cases will be investigated immediately and every man whom we can possibly release to the local boards will promptly be so released by having the proper cancellation card mailed to the local board.

One of the dangerous phases of the work of this office is the removing of names from the list as soon as men cease working in a shipyard. The shipyards are under the most stringent orders to notify us as soon as a man leaves their employ. If a local board should hear of any man who is no longer in a shipyard, and for whom no cancellation card has been received, I urgently request that the board notify this office at once. In such cases a cancellation card will be sent out forthwith, and a vigorous investigation begun to see why the shipyard did not notify us as to the termination of the man's employment.

I would request, also, that the local boards notify me of all cases where they understand a man on the fleet list is loafing or who is absent more than two and a half days per month, exclusive of Sundays and holidays, or who is taking an unpatriotic attitude toward the war.

The Department of Justice holds, and properly so, that alien enemies should not be employed in a shipyard. Some of the yards, in some instances, do employ such men, and this office would greatly appreciate information from the boards as to such cases.

I appreciate that the request which I have made entails further work for the already hard-pressed, overworked local boards. Nevertheless, I am sure that the boards are anxious to co-operate with me in properly enforcing the Emergency Fleet list. I appreciate, too, that there has been some just criticism of this list in the past, but I hope that I can co-operate with the local boards so that there will be no room for criticism in the future.

Very truly yours,

Branch Officer, Deferments and Transfers.

Losers.

LOW ONES SAY THEY ARE OUT.

Candidates for Judgeships Admit Situation.

Recent Primary Freak Puts Five Off Ticket.

Are Eliminated from Justice of Peace Slate.

The new light cast by The Times yesterday on the political situation as regards the local judicial candidates was a complete surprise to the candidates for the various offices and was widely discussed. It had been expected that most of the candidates would get on the November ticket, but the interpretation of the primary law as amended last year, eliminates all but the majority candidates and one or more additional for each office.

Judge James C. Rives of the Probate Court, who led the judges with 62,447 votes, said:

"I believe that the primary law is correctly interpreted in today's Times. I can draw no other conclusion from the law."

Judge Valentine, who ran tenth with a vote of 37,335 for the judiciary, declared:

"That settles it; I am out of it. I had read the law, but I confess that I had not gathered the import of it, as The Times puts it."

Miss Orfa Jean Shontz, woman candidate for judge, frankly stated that she is eliminated under the primary law.

Other candidates for various offices hoped that the estimated percentage of the vote cast (30 per cent.) given in The Times was excessive and that the official returns will show a lesser percentage which would put them on the November ticket.

Registrar of Voters Lyons stated that as far as he could tell, it was a 30 per cent. vote. It may be slightly below or slightly above that figure, but in either case the result is not materially different. The registered vote in the city is 182,215; county (total,) 292,959; township, 181,814.

As stated yesterday the majority candidates for judge on the 30 per cent. basis are: Rives, 62,447; York, 60,449; Wellborn, 59,169; McCormick, 58,260; Houser, 58,741; White, 47,053. As seven are to be elected, Judge Avery, with 44,158 votes, and Henry J. Stevens, with 43,516 votes, will be the additional names to be placed on the ballot under the primary law. Those eliminated are Wood, 42,784; Valentine, 37,335; Shontz, 34,405; Bradford, 17,225; Shapiro, 8704.

The city registration was 182,215. On the 30 per cent. basis, none of the candidates for police judges is a majority candidate, and ten will be candidates. Five are to be elected. The candidates are: Chambers, 25,452; Chesbro, 24,409; Fredericks, 23,243; Crawford, 20,397; Richardson, 19,671; Chamberlain, 19,622; McConnell, 14,436; Heath, 13,207; Curtin, 12,865; Palmer, 12,696. Those eliminated are: Pope, 12,112; Spring, 8465; Theager, 7402; Luter, 6669; Rappaport, 4258; Gottsdanker, 2611.

The registration in Los Angeles township was 181,814. On the 30 per cent. basis, Summerfield is a majority candidate with 29,338 votes. Six are to be elected, and under the law the candidates will be Hinshaw, 22,105; Forbes, 21,713; Brown, 20,347; Baird, 18,426; Hanby, 17,050; Wood, 16,163; Palmer, 15,386; Lincoln, 13,884; Brady, 11,884; Dougherty, 11,615.

Those who are thus eliminated are Grossman, 7036; Widman, 5388.

Until the official returns are computed, it is probable that the candidates eliminated on the 30 per cent. basis will rest on their oars, hoping in some way to win places on the ticket.

NEAR CENTURY MARK. THEY ENJOY PICNIC.

OLD FOLKS' ASSOCIATION HAVE SEVENTH ANNUAL GATHERING AT SYCAMORE GROVE.

When, at the opening of the programme of the old folks' picnic in Sycamore Grove yesterday, Secretary F. W. Hart called for a volunteer to lead in singing "America," Rev. H. L. Canfield, aged 90 years, arose and started the song, and 1500 quivering voices joined in the praise of the land where their fathers died and in which so many of their brothers so bravely met the grim destroyer half a century ago.

On the platform were twenty-two persons, mostly men, whose combined ages totaled 1870 years. Among the group was a sprinkling of doctors, clergymen and poets, while every one of them were patriots, and nearly all of them veterans of the Civil War.

It was the consensus of opinion of the speakers that physicians live a long time because they know the secret of health, and keep it; that poets are long lived because God pities them; that preachers live long because they love God; that a few women manage to stay above ground for a considerable time in spite of man's inhumanity to woman, and that patriots of both sexes reach old age because their country cannot do without them.

In the audience were about 1300 persons past 70 years of age, about 200 who were more than 80, and nearly fifty who had passed the 90-year milestone.

This was the seventh annual gathering of the Old Folks' Picnic Association, and was attended by more members than ever before. During the interesting programme the present great war was not forgotten, but the speakers and their audience lived mostly in the past, fighting the battles of the 60's over again in imagination. Unpublished stories of Lincoln and Douglas were told, old songs were sung, old memories revived and old acquaintances renewed.

Secretary Hart told of having walked fifteen miles to hear Lincoln speak. "Of course, I went as a young Democrat," he smiled, "but I came away as a loyal Republican." Dr. L. W. Beck recited his own poem, "Oh, Flag of Our Country," considered by many to be the best poem on "Old Glory" ever written.

The address of welcome was delivered by Col. Frank True, and he was followed by Capt. L. A. Ross, Walter G. Lincoln, a four-minute man; H. A. Arnold, who recited Lincoln's Gettysburg speech; A. M. Morrison, 98 years old, and others.

Those occupying seats of honor on the platform were as follows: Rev. H. L. Canfield, aged 90 years; A. A. Annas, 97; Dr. L. W. Beck, 87; Rev. Thomas McClary, 77; Samuel Parker, Glendale poet, 88; C. R. Norton, Department Chaplain for the Grand Army of California and Nevada, 73; G. W. Haig, 80; W. T. Callaway, 88; W. R. Bullard, 89; W. H. Marvin, 77; W. V. Evans, 72; A. M. Morrison, 98; W. P. Lowrey, 76; A. H. Gamage, 83; Dr. A. M. Sherman, 93; Capt. L. A. Ross, 83; Isaac Wilson, 88; James P. Spillman, 81; W. W. Baker, 84; Jacob Hain, 88; Mrs. Deborah Dodson, 94, and Mrs. F. E. Harwood, 84.

MAJ. FARBER'S FUNERAL.

Last Rites for Military Man Who was Instantly Killed in Collision with Electric Car.

Funeral services for Maj. C. W. Farber, U.S.A. (retired,) who was instantly killed Friday night when a Pacific Electric train struck his automobile squarely in the middle and dragged it 200 feet at Beverly Hills will be held at the chapel of W. E. Strother Tuesday morning at 10:30 o'clock. The body will be cremated at Forest Lawn.

Maj. Farber had been in charge of the army recruiting station in the San Fernando Building until six months ago. He leaves a widow and one son.

Maj. Harcourt Hervey.

HARCOURT HERVEY IS NOW YOUNGEST MAJOR.

LOS ANGELES MAN RECEIVES PROMOTION TO HIGH RANK IN THE ARMY.

Along with the splendid news of the successes of the Allies on the western front comes the news that another Los Angeles boy has been promoted to high rank in the army. Harcourt Hervey, who has now been on the firing line since the beginning of the war, and for six months as captain of heavy field artillery, was made a major on August 15. This makes Hervey the youngest major of the Regular Army, he being but 25 years old on the 6th inst.

Harcourt Hervey is a Los Angeles boy. He received his education in the high schools of this city. In 1916 he was the honor graduate of the University of Southern California, military honors being bestowed upon him by the university. His parents are ex-Judge and Mrs. William Rhodes Hervey of No. 601 Shatto place. His younger brother, Edward Hervey, is now a second lieutenant, and is now at Camp Lewis.

Immediately after the sinking of the Lusitania, Harcourt Hervey joined the Regular Army, and after his training at Fort Sam Houston, Leavenworth, he received a commission as second lieutenant in the Third Field Artillery. His ability was soon recognized in his transfer to the Fifth Field Artillery and his promotion to captaincy of Battery F.

This battery was in the first contingent that went over in Pershing's Expeditionary Force. The Christopher, the boat on which this battery started over, was sunk, but all the men in Battery F were saved, although all their ammunition and personal effects were lost. They were brought back to New York and given thirty-six hours to renew their equipment, which they did. In thirty-six hours from the time of their arrival in New York they were put on another ship, which was well convoyed, and were on their way to France, where they arrived in safety.

The news of Harcourt Hervey's promotion was received by Bernal Dyas, an intimate friend of the young man.

SERVICES HELD FOR LATE FRANK HICKS.

ACTIVE IN BUSINESS HERE FOR THIRTY YEARS AND DRAFT BOARD CHAIRMAN.

With members of the family and intimate friends present, funeral services were held yesterday for Frank S. Hicks, chairman of Exemption Board No. 10, who died here on Wednesday. The services were at St. Vincent's Catholic Church and interment at Calvary Cemetery.

Mr. Hicks was intimately associated with the business and social life of the city for thirty-two years. He was born at St. Louis, Mo., fifty-seven years ago, coming to Los Angeles in 1886. He leaves a widow, daughter of Ozro W. Childs, and two daughters, Mrs. George Gross, now at Panama, and Miss Elizabeth Hicks. Mr. Hicks, who was a member of the insurance firm of Childs, Hicks & Montgomery, lived at No. 832 West Adams street.

The active pallbearers were, W. E. Dunn, A. H. Wilcox, J. W. Montgomery, Dr. Granville MacGowan, Frank Griffith and M. J. Connell. The honorary pallbearers were J. C. Drake, Capt. C. H. Harlow (retired), Fred W. Flint, Jr., John T. Gaffey, George S. Patton, J. E. Plater, John G. Mott, Fred H. Howard, W. A. Barker, R. J. Dillon, H. M. Robinson, Dr. E. A. Bryant, J. F. Sartori, Boyle Workman and Dean Mason.

SUIT IS TRANSFERRED.

Action of Gavin McNab Against Clara Baldwin Stocker for Fees to be Heard Here.

The suit of Gavin McNab of San Francisco against Clara Baldwin Stocker to recover $77,466.61, alleged to be due for professional services, will be tried in the local courts. The action was transferred here on an order for a change of venue from the San Francisco courts.

Attorney McNab brought suit through Frank B. Whipple, as assignee. He claims that he had an agreement with Mrs. Stocker to represent her as her legal advisor in connection with her share of the estate of her father, the late E. J. (Lucky) Baldwin. The compensation was to be $25,000 a year for three years, in addition to traveling and other expenses.

ICE DRIVERS TO GO BACK.

Strikers Expected to Return Tomorrow Pending Arbitration.

The striking ice-wagon drivers of the city are expected to return to work tomorrow morning, following a request to that effect made to them yesterday by Federal Mediator Connell. Capt. Connell's request was made "in order to prevent further waste of foodstuffs," and on the understanding that the differences between the drivers and the ice companies would be arbitrated.

Capt. Connell said that the misunderstanding between the arbitrator named by the employers and the arbitrator named by the drivers is likely to be cleared by the naming of a third man to take part in the discussions.

PLAN SUNDAY-SCHOOL TRAINING CAMPAIGN.

TEACHERS DRIVE TO START WITH MANY MEETINGS IN THE SOUTHLAND.

With fifty-four simultaneous meetings being held in all parts of Southern California, a thirty-day "International Sunday-school Teachers Drive" will be started next Sunday, September 15. In Los Angeles a mass meeting of all evangelical denominations will be held at 3 o'clock in the First Methodist Episcopal Church, with Edgar L. Ide, president of the Los Angeles County Sunday-school Association, presiding. The principal address will be by Prof. J. H. Montgomery of the University of Southern California, dean of the Los Angeles Community Training College. Prof. Trowbridge of the Bible Institute will conduct the music.

These simultaneous meetings will be addressed by representative leaders from all evangelical denominations, the purpose being to organize teachers' training classes in every church in the State and to establish community training schools of religious education wherever practicable. The Sunday-school management for Southern California is planning to conduct three new schools this year in addition to the one already in operation in Los Angeles at the Y.W.C.A. Building. The centers chosen for these schools are Pasadena, Pomona and Long Beach.

The five objects of the Teachers Training drive include at least one teachers' training class in every Sunday-school, a monthly workers' conference in every Sunday-school, a midweek teachers' training class for present Sunday-school teachers, an effort to help in the selection of the right kind of literature for Sunday-schools and a co-operative community training school of religious education where practicable and desired.

TELLS HOW TO PAY NEXT YEAR'S TAXES.

TREASURY CERTIFICATES OF INDEBTEDNESS ARE ADVANTAGEOUS MEDIUM.

"Pay your next year's income and profit tax with Treasury Certificates of Indebtedness," is the advice of Chairman Henry S. McKee of the Southern California Liberty Loan Committee.

"Few persons realize the advantage of buying these Treasury Certificates of Indebtedness to use as payments for their next year's taxes," said Mr. McKee yesterday. "Besides being a great benefit and help to the government, there is a distinct saving advantage to the taxpayer. Most persons will have to pay the government a very heavy tax about June, 1919. Sound financing on the part of the government makes it absolutely necessary that the government shall not wait until next June to get this money, but shall get it in advance and be using it throughout the year.

"It is in order to accomplish just this purpose that the government has issued what is called Treasury Certificates of Indebtedness 'Tax Issue.' Certificates of indebtedness have been issued by the Treasury Department in anticipation of Liberty Loan payments, and these certificates are issued in anticipation of next year's taxes."

Each bank has been provided with full information regarding these Treasury Certificates of Indebtedness, "Tax Issue," and all individuals who are now anticipating the payment of a large tax next spring are urged to get in touch with their banks at once and secure this information.

ACCUSE SECRETARY.

Officer of Superior Poultry Growers' Association Must Answer to Charge of Embezzlement.

Accused in two instances of embezzlement, John H. Haughton, secretary of the Superior Poultry Growers' Association, Inc., was lodged in the County Jail yesterday, and will be arraigned in Justice Court tomorrow.

It is charged that he embezzled from the association the sum of $250 on August 22 and $250 on August 24.

SUCCESS IN LOVE RESULTS IN ARREST.

Rapid progress in love yesterday brought Giovanni Posini, an alleged deserter from the army, into the City Jail. He was arrested by members of the war squad on information furnished by a man whom Posini displaced in the affections of a pretty Italian girl, whose name the police will not disclose.

According to the police, the suspect confessed. He is alleged to be a deserter from Camp Lee, Va., where he was a private. He left, according to the story, because he was disciplined for a minor offense.

POLICE DEPARTMENT INVESTIGATING BOARD.

COMPLAINTS AGAINST PATROLMEN TO BE SIFTED BEFORE GOING TO COMMISSION.

A step toward placing the police department on a better basis of democracy, and at the same time increase the efficiency in handling complaints made against members of the department, was made by Chief of Police Butler yesterday, when he announced the formation of a board of investigation.

The board will consist of a captain, one lieutenant, one sergeant, one corporal, and a secretary. In addition, there will be at least one patrolman sitting on the board and having a part in its deliberations.

It will be the duty of this board to make complete investigations into cases and complaints made by citizens or others, and involving any member of the police department. The board will be empowered to take testimony, have it transcribed, and call witnesses. A written report, together with the board's recommendation, will be submitted to the Chief at the end of each individual investigation, for action by the Chief and the Police Commission.

In addition to working out for better harmony of the department, and assuring a fair trial and complete investigation into each case, the new plan will relieve the Chief of a great deal of the ordinary investigations connected with the ordinary investigations, as well as remove a lot of this type of work from the Police Commission. At the same time it will add to the democracy of the department by giving each rank a representative on the investigating body.

It is also believed by police officials that the new board will assure a greater amount of attention to the complaints of any citizen, by allowing more time for investigation. All complaints, as in the past, will have to be made to the Chief, and by him referred to the investigating board.

Members of the board will serve for two months. The order creating the board is effective September 9, and names the following as the first members:

Capt. Murray (chairman,) Lieut. Kriege, Sergt. Grogan, Corp. H. C. Allen and Secretary Thomas Graham. The patrolman or patrolmen are to be named later.

The first meeting will be held next Wednesday at 2 p.m.

MANY JOINING FREE NAVIGATION SCHOOL.

STEADY INCREASE OF APPLICANTS IS REPORTED BY COMMERCE CHAMBER.

The Chamber of Commerce reports a steady increase in the number of applications received for admission to the government free navigation school in the old Los Angeles High School building on North Hill street. Applications also are coming in for entrance to the marine engineers' school in Berkeley and the school ship at San Francisco.

Last week sixteen men applied for admission to the Los Angeles school, twenty-two for the marine engineers' school and 1000 youths who will be called in the new draft applied at the chamber for admission to the training ship.

The day class in the Los Angeles navigation school now has an enrollment of twenty-four members—an increase of sixteen since August 1, when sessions were resumed. Several men whose applications have been approved are ready to start their studies tomorrow. New students are accepted every Monday. The night class maintains its usual attendance of nearly a score. This course offers special advantages, in that the student does not have to forsake his usual daytime occupation in order to complete the course in navigation.

Scores of graduates from the Los Angeles school are now deck officers in the United States merchant marine.

SERVICES FOR REALTOR.

Funeral of Late J. C. Cribb will be Held at Ocean Park Tomorrow Afternoon.

Funeral services for the late John C. Cribb, real estate operator, who died while undergoing an operation on Friday, will be held at the Kerkelie undertaking establishment, No. 162 Marine street, Ocean Park, tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. The services will be under the direction of the Knights Templar. Mr. Cribb was a Thirty-second Degree Mason and a member of the Modern Woodmen of America.

Active pallbearers at the funeral will be George Beach, F. Ed Brown, F. A. Gerard, Mark B. Harris, F. W. Langley, J. Widdicombe. The honorary pallbearers are Claude I. Parker, R. D. List, W. B. Scarborough, A. F. Kadock, Motley H. Flint, Joseph F. Rhodes, H. K. Humfreville, Charles M. Smith, G. A. Brock, E. S. Hamill.

WILL FORM MORE WAR SAVINGS SOCIETIES.

TWO HUNDRED TO BE ADDED TO THE LOCAL LIST BY TOMORROW NIGHT.

Two hundred additional War Savings Societies will be added to Los Angeles' credit by tomorrow night, as a result of the vigorous organization campaign which is being carried on during "Round-Up Week." This is the prediction of Motley H. Flint, Los Angeles city and county chairman for the National War Savings Committee.

Practically every War Savings Society in Los Angeles has scheduled a meeting for tomorrow evening, a few exceptions being planned for Tuesday night. These gatherings will be for the purpose of checking up on the results of the campaign; for reports of work accomplished and for stimulating interest in the War Savings programme which lays before the societies during the next three months.

Los Angeles is still behind in its prescribed quota of War Savings Societies, but a strong effort is being made to organize additional societies. The last official report from Washington listed California (South) in seventeenth place. More than fifty War Savings Societies have been formed in San Bernardino and Riverside during Round-Up Week.

Tomorrow has been officially designated by Gov. Stephens as Special War Savings Day, and it is earnestly urged that every citizen will make a special investment then in War Savings Stamps.

Los Angeles yesterday was bombarded by a fleet of twenty-four airplanes, which in their flight over the city dropped more than 150,000 War Savings bulletins.

In the aerial pageant, which made the flight from San Diego to Pasadena, there were eighteen army planes and six navy planes.

This afternoon the two squadrons of airships, in battle formation, will give an aerial circus over Los Angeles, in the vicinity of Washington Park, where the big baseball game between picked teams from the Submarine Base and North Island will stage a special game for the benefit of their athletic funds.

IS THE TAX LEVY INVALIDATED?

Minutes of the Board of Equalization Incomplete, is Charge.

George D. Platt, formerly an assistant clerk to the Board of Supervisors, charged before the Supervisors yesterday that the tax levy for the past two years may be invalidated because the minutes of the Supervisors sitting as a Board of Equalization, were incomplete.

The charge was referred to the county counsel for investigation. In the opinion of the Supervisors, however, the tax levy is valid and no fear was expressed that it would be invalidated.

LYON McKINNEY SMITH CO
737-741 SOUTH HILL

To the Patrons of the Citizens Independent Ice & Cold Storage Company, City:

We take this method of expressing our regrets for the inconvenience which you have experienced during the past week. This was from no fault of ours, for the reason that no matter what trouble might arise between the Ice Companies and the Ice Drivers' Union, we felt that the same would have no effect upon us, because we have been working under a contract with the Ice Drivers' Union of this city which has not yet expired, but which the Union has deliberately ignored and broken.

Very truly yours,

CITIZENS INDEPENDENT ICE & COLD STORAGE CO.

THE LETTERS OF LEMUEL BEAN.

Looking for a Place to Live in.

BY ROY K. MOULTON.

SOMEWHERE IN NEW YORK.

DEAR FOLKS: If you are going to live in New York, you have got to have a place to do it in. It is all right to hang on the lower limb of a tree in Central Park in the summer, but along about this time of year one has to begin looking about for a place to spend the winter.

We are all fighting just now to make the world a decent place to live in. After they get through making the world a decent place to live in, our problems here in this city may be less severe, but just now they are multitudinous and multifarious.

One of the hardest ways to find a place to live is to start out and look for one. That really isn't the way at all. A person who does that is lost. It doesn't do to look. The place you want is always just around the corner. You never quite reach it. If you find a place which embraces 50 per cent. of the features you think you require, the thing to do is to move in before the landlord finds out who you are and refuses you.

A lone couple wandering among the forests of granite and steel looking for a place in which to pitch their lares and penates, or "liars and peanuts," as my wife says, have about as cheerful a time as the babes in the woods.

Really, the thing to do is to go immediately and abandon yourself to the clutches of some renting agency, and then be thankful that you have come through it alive. You will not get what you want, but you will get something, and these are war times. One can't be too particular.

LUELLA SUGGESTS.

The other day Luella, my wife, suggested that it was about time for us to move. The only way you can see this city is to move around every so often. In this way your furniture lasts about three years, but a person gets tired of the same old furniture, anyhow.

"I am willing," I said, "but there is nothing wrong with this place, so far as I can see."

"You are nearsighted," she replied. "If you would like to have me start in and tell you what is the matter with this place I will do so."

"No," I said, "I have an engagement next week, Thursday, and I wouldn't care to miss it by sitting here and listening to you."

"Well, I will tell you what I want," she said. "I want to live in a flat that has more than one bath. I must face an open space and must not be higher than the tenth floor. The rooms must be large and airy and well lighted."

"It will be no problem this time," I said. "I know the very place. I can go to it blindfolded. It was pointed out to me yesterday by a bus conductor."

"Is it a comfortable place?" she asked.

"It is," I replied. "It is, I believe, the only comfortable apartment in New York. It is on Fifth avenue and is occupied just now by Simon Guggenheim."

"Is he going to move?"

"Presumably."

"For what reason?"

"The rent is too low. It is only $35,000 a year."

I might have known there was a catch in it somewhere," said Luella. "The idea of your ever stumbling onto a comfortable place to live in didn't sound good to me from the start."

ASK A FEW QUESTIONS.

I told Luella I would make some inquiries that very day, and I did so.

I asked a friend of mine, who is a cartoonist, Rube Goldberg is his name. I said: "Rube, do you know where I can find an apartment that faces the outdoors and has more than one bath?"

"Certainly," he said. "Riverside drive."

I took Luella out there and we began looking. We started looking down at Seventy-second street, where the drive starts, and by the time we had looked as far as One Hundred and Eighty-first street Luella began to show signs of weariness. We had looked at apartments all the way. In most cases we just looked at the outside of them. Once in a while there was a superintendent who would let us in. The apartments we saw suited us exactly except in one minor detail. By close calculation we figured that by pooling all our interests and placing a mortgage on Luella's father's farm, we could live in one of these apartments for twenty-four hours. I was tempted to do it, but in all cases they required a six months' lease.

The farther out you go, of course, the cheaper they get—that is to say, the relatively cheaper they get.

We sat down on a park bench and I took my pencil and an old envelope and figured. The result was that I figured if I got a motorcycle capable of ninety-seven miles an hour, and rode it straight north on Riverside drive for two days and a half, I might find an apartment which I could afford to live in.

ONE FAREWELL LOOK.

We took one farewell look at the Hudson River and bade it farewell forever. Then we started down side streets. We found that side streets were more expensive than the main thoroughfares. All the real bloods live on side streets so as to be away from the traffic and the common herd of sightseers.

After two days Luella had an inspiration. "Let's look in the 'For Rents' in the papers. It only costs 2 cents to go house-hunting that way." So we took an evening paper famous for its classified ads home with us. I cut the columns of "For Rent" out with shears and snipped away until midnight. We did not try to count the bargains offered, but there must have been somewhere in the neighborhood of 27,000. And all of them were beautiful, desirable, sightly, comfortable apartments, convenient to subway and "L." To judge by the ads, there wasn't an undesirable apartment in New York. These ads never give an apartment any the worst of it.

But we didn't know where to start. So I hung all the clippings up on the wall very close together. They covered the west wall of our dining-room and slopped over into the living-room. Then I blindfolded Luella and she stuck one finger out ahead of her and walked to the wall. It was agreed that we would go and see the apartment called for in the want ad which her finger should touch when she reached the wall.

The first nine times, she landed in the Bronx and the Bronx was taboo. Then I took her by the shoulders and turned her around swiftly several times to make her dizzy so she could get out of the Bronx. It was like shaking the dice box and hoping for a full house. She finally landed on one near Central Park. The next day we went to look at it and it had everything except modern improvements. The only thing modern about it was the price.

Eight times we tried it and all I have to say is that the boys who write those "For Rent" ads ought to be working in the Kaiser's press bureau. Imagination rampant.

TRY TO SEE THEM ALL.

Then, for a month we tried going to see places recommended to us by our friends, all of whom had moved away from said places. When we had exhausted this supply, we tackled the agencies. What the agencies can do to one leaves nothing to be desired. Every agent is a trained hypnotist who can make 10-cent wall paper look like Persian tapestry and can make a dark inside room seem like the sun parlor at Buckingham Palace. Every agent gives you just ten minutes to decide because "there is another party who is crazy for the place, etc., etc."

After five days with agents, Luella said:

"It isn't the fashionable thing to do and nobody but hicks do it, but I am in favor of staying in the same apartment for another six months. If I have to worry about this thing for another week I shall go wild."

So we signed up with the old landlord and thereby let all the neighbors know that we were not regular New Yorkers.

But we accomplish the same thing whether we move or stay still. In either event, we get an entirely new set of neighbors.

After dragging one's self about for six weeks looking for a place, the place one has been living in looks better and better, and the old landlord with all his faults is not so bad. Better pay the bills you have than fly to others you know not of. And a person may just as well be unhappy in one place as in another.

Hoping you are the same, I remain.

Yours, LEM.

Statistics.

GIVES FIGURES THAT STARTLE.

Relationship of the Motor Vehicle and Nation.

"Hossless" Cars Cease to be Things of Pleasure.

Present War Could not be Fought Without Them.

The Chandler Motor Car Company, in a statement to dealers and distributers, a copy of which has been received here by Earl V. Armstrong, Inc., points out some salient features of the relationship of the motor vehicle and the nation. The statement says:

Suppose you had to carry 25,000,000 people 100 miles in a day. How would you go about it?

You would say, probably, that the thing could not be done.

But 5,000,000 automobiles now in use in the United States could do the thing easily.

What comes to your mind when you hear the word, "automobile?" Do you think people are riding along the road, going nowhere in particular, because they have nothing else to do? If so, you have a false idea.

The automobile is first of all a machine of use, of absolute necessity, one, for instance, without which the carrying on of the war on the present basis would be absolutely impossible.

ONE HUNDRED SPOKES.

Let the automobiles of the country be represented by a wheel with 100 spokes. One spoke would represent the automobiling that is done, as it is wrongly called "for pleasure." The ninety-nine other spokes would represent the use of automobiles for farming, forestry, industry, business, professional life. Of all the automobiles in the country more than half are used in farming, forestry and the raising of animals. The modern cattleman goes out across the plains in an automobile and does in a day more than fifty old-fashion cowboys do on horses.

The farmer, far from the village, goes back and forth in half an hour, or his young daughter or young son goes for him while he works.

You might as well question the value of food to the human race as discuss the value of the automobile.

The doctor with an automobile doubles his work and his usefulness. Think what this means with the war taking half of the available doctors.

The commanding general in his automobile travels at almost a hundred miles an hour from one command to another, sleeping as he goes. Instead of arriving exhausted by a long ride on a horse, he arrives rested, ready for his planning and fighting.

Automobiles in scores of thousands carry the soldiers, their

Mr. Gould has since become assistant superintendent of Los Angeles public schools.

The strike of the High School pupils fanned San Diego public opinion to white heat and actuated the organization of a committee of 200 citizens, who took up the fight for recall. REAL ESTATE COMPANY LOSES IN LITIGATION.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SANTA BARBARA, Sept. 7.—Judge Frank R. Willis, of Los Angeles, occupying the Superior Court for Judge S. E. Crow, in the trial of an action brought by Margaret Bowen Shepard, against the Pacific Improvement Company, to open a paved highway through Hope ranch park, today returned judgment for the plaintiff, opening the west gate of the park, but permitting the company to close the cliff drive gate.

Several years ago the corporation sold lots in the park. The subdivision venture wasn't successful so the lots were bought back, Mrs. Shepard refusing to sell. Gates were then maintained at both entrances.

The decision practically closes one of the most scenic and famous drives in this section, that along the ocean cliffs.

SCHOOL'S OPEN; BOYS WITH WHEELS SCARCE.

SIGN IN WINDOW LEADS TO A MISUNDERSTANDING TILL THE LIGHT DAWNS.

The cub reporter has a grievance. It came with a scoop, too.

Walking up Broadway he stopped a moment to look into a window. He did not notice the sign, "Boy Wanted with a Wheel," prominently displayed.

"If you haven't a wheel, maybe you might rent one," a voice said in his ear.

"Bicycle?" the cub ejaculated. "Why, I haven't ridden one since I left grammar school and I'm not hankering for a ride now."

"Well, move along and let some boy read the sign then," continued the voice which proceeded from the proprietor of a drug store on the block.

The cub snorted at being taken for a delivery boy and moved on to the next window. As he peered at a tie in the window he again heard a voice saying:

"Six dollars a week and Sundays off."

Glancing around he saw the owner of the store and glancing in the window the sign appeared: "Boy Wanted with a Wheel."

"Ugh," he grunted as he moved along and then the great idea came.

He walked down one side of Broadway and back on the other from First to Ninth and discovered that fifty-one boys with wheels were wanted by distracted business men.

School is open.

I have been troubled with very bad feet for the past ten years, and I have tried every foot preparation that I have ever heard of. Am now using LIBERTY FOOT POWDER and have obtained instantaneous relief from its use.

H. E. Waddell, 730 Oakwood St., Inglewood, writes: I have been a sufferer from sore and calloused feet for several years, during which time I have used most of the powders sold in drug stores for this condition, and most of these preparations gave me little relief.

Seeing your ad. in the newspaper, I thought I would give LIBERTY FOOT POWDER a trial, and I want to tell you that I obtained relief from the very first application.

I have now used it three times and I now feel that I will not have to use it again this summer. Believe me, it is the best powder on the market for sore feet. I know.

SHIPBUILDING ARMY OF SIXTEEN THOUSAND MEN, PAID TWO MILLION DOLLARS A MONTH, SENDS LOS ANGELES VESSELS INTO SEVEN SEAS.

ve Great Plants, Worth Six Millions in Aggregate, Hold Government Contracts for Eighty-two Cargo-Carriers for the Vast American Fleet that is Putting the B on the Boche—Thirty-three Hulls Will be Launched this Year and Rate will Soon be Seven a Month. How Our Biggest Yard Does its Twenty-four-Hour Day's Work.

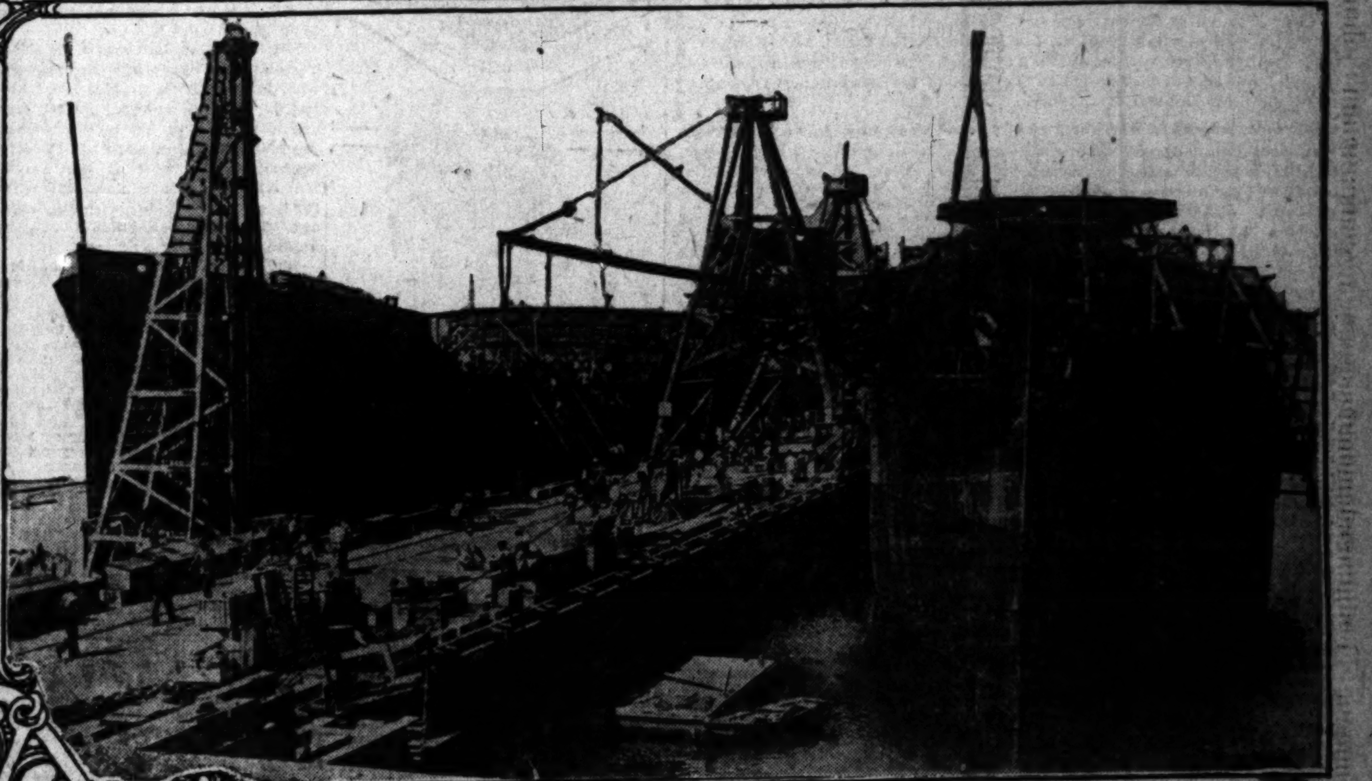
Laying the "floor" of a new hull.



Finishing two vessels after the launchings

16,000 men are employed in the shipbuilding industry of Los Angeles Harbor and g Beach, and the five shipbuilding plants are valued at $6,000,000. The pay roll ounts to close to $2,000,000 a month.

e government has placed contracts for sixty-six steel vessels and sixteen wooden vessels shipyards here since the beginning of the war and Director-General Schwab declared, recently, that the Los Angeles shipyards can have all the contracts they can take care of.

e Los Angeles Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company at present is maintaining an output ships per month. It possibly will make a record of three ships this month. The South- Shipbuilding Company's yard will soon launch its first big vessel, and the wooden ship- plants of the Fulton Company and the Ralph J. Chandler Company have already sent vessels down the ways, as has also the Long Beach yard. The number of vessels launched, classes, so far in 1918 is twenty-one. Even at the present rate, which will doubtless be ex- the total by the first of the year will be thirty-three vessels. With all the yards working at our rate of construction will be about seven vessels a month.

Emergency Fleet Corporation, by the United States Ship- Board, rubbed its Aladdin's of Ardent Desire and ear- wished for a great fleet of ships to help defeat the Huns. The Genie Necessity made his presence felt, spread forth his powerful hands, and, lo, within a twelvemonth great shipbuilding plants have arisen like magic on water frontages where for years past there has simply been dreams for an ambitious future.

Los Angeles Harbor quickly felt the impetus of the new forward move, and the Los Angeles Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company came into existence. Within an incredibly short time, a big tract of tidelands that had been submerged under from eight to ten feet of salt water at high tide was raised above sea level, channels were dredged, ways for the hulls of ships were constructed, buildings were erected, and all departments of shipbuilding were put into action.

War was the motive power that propelled this marvelous activity. More than 10,000 men have been assembled in the working forces of this one shipyard, and their earnest labor is put forth to help put an end to the war that brought the enterprise into existence.

"MORE SHIPS."

"Ships and yet more ships," is the slogan that has rung throughout the United States. Los Angeles Harbor is proudly doing its best to help create the "bridge of ships across the sea" that is the big factor in winning the most momentous war of history. Every man and every woman taking part in this work may well be proud of their participation in the task.

While the Los Angeles Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company was the pioneer in creating a great steel shipbuilding plant at the Los Angeles Harbor, it was also the forerunner of further expansion. Today the Southwestern Shipbuilding Company has its plant, on Terminal Island, well organized, and it is forging ahead in the same patriotic enterprise. The Fulton Company and the Ralph J. Chandler Company, at Wilmington, are building wooden ships, and various other plants, both at the harbor and in the city proper, are engaged in auxiliary work on ship equipment or machinery.

Altogether, at this time, it is estimated that there are fully 15,000 men engaged in Los Angeles in work on shipbuilding and ship equipment for Uncle Sam's vessels. Close at hand, at the Long Beach Shipbuilding Company's yard, 1000 more are engaged in similar labors, and the management expects to increase this to over 3000 in the near future.

Although for many years past the building of small craft has been an important industry at the Los Angeles Harbor, and the fleet of boats and trawlers accredited to this harbor numbers about 500, it is only a few months since the first big hull of a cargo carrier built at this port glided down the ways and received its baptism in the waters of the Pacific.

Now the Los Angeles Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company has to its credit six 8800-ton cargo carriers that have been fully completed at this yard, tested on trial trips, formally delivered to the government, and that are now engaged in carrying cargoes to help win the war. Two of these vessels carried from this port cargoes of relief supplies for France, contributed by the people of Los Angeles and Southern California.

The list of vessels completed and turned over by this yard to the government includes the Accomac, Wakulla, Wampuc, Wassaic, West Galoc and West Galeta. The vessels now being fitted at the yard are the West Zula, West Zucker, West Grama and West Erral.

Contracts for thirty of the 8800-ton steel cargo carriers were awarded to this yard. The cost of one of these vessels, complete, is in round figures $1,500,000.

Contracts for eight steel cargo carriers were first awarded to this yard. So pleased was the Emergency Fleet Corporation with the manner in which the work on these eight vessels was being handled that while they were still in progress the yard was given a contract for ten more vessels. Recently another contract for twelve vessels has been awarded to the Los Angeles Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company, and the corporation now has under consideration, it is understood, the advisability of placing an order for eight more vessels with this yard.

NO PROFITEERING.

Right here is an opportunity to refute a pernicious report that has been persistently circulated regarding alleged employment of unnecessary numbers of men at the shipyards for the purpose of running up the total cost of construction of a vessel, the report being that thus the contractors receive a larger sum from the government.

On the specific authority of local representatives of the United States Shipping Board, the statement is made that the contracts for each vessel call for a payment of a lump sum; and it is, therefore, obvious that the reports regarding the employment of a large number of unnecessary men, in order to increase the pay roll are untrue.

Nowhere in Southern California is such a sight of wide activities to be found as is presented daily at the Los Angeles Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company's yard. Here the wheels never cease their turning—it is a continuous performance, with a considerable portion of the force of 10,000 men divided into three eight-hour shifts. About 2000 sturdy artisans are working on shipbuilding every night at this yard. The shifts overlap, so that there is actually no lost time on the constant progress of the construction work.

MORE HOUSES NEEDED.

Unfortunately, the harbor district, like many another place where shipbuilding has sprung into existence as a war necessity, is short of adequate housing for the men employed. As a result, for the present at least, the great assemblage of workmen is called in from a wide area of territory. They come from all parts of Los Angeles and from the adjacent suburban towns. Very early in the morning a special car service is operated for their benefit. The men pour in from the local lines to the Pacific Electric at the main station, or at boarding points along its line, and they are poured into the harbor district literally by the thousands. Many automobiles are also pressed into the service of transportation, and daily in front of the yards may be seen a massed formation of parked cars, reaching well out to the bluff that stands back of the yard. From the city proper to the harbor, every morning and evening, like the ebb and flow of the tide, there is a constant procession of automobiles carrying shipyard workers. Five thousand men a day are carried to this work on the electric cars, and from 1500 to 2000 autos are pressed into the transportation service.

Both at San Pedro and Wilmington considerable has been done to provide new housing, and still other extensive plans are under way, but the supply of housing thus far has been entirely inadequate for the demand, and this necessitates the gathering in of men daily from long distances. A considerable number of the men have resorted to camp life, and the hills back of the yard are dotted with canvas houses and temporary "shacks"—shelters of the most primitive style that are "home" for men who are, as a class, drawing the highest wages of any industry in Southern California.

ALL WAR WORK UNDER ONE ROOF, ONE HEAD.

State Council of Defense Merges Functions of City and County Bodies; Everything in One Place.

FOLLOWING are the salient features of the war-work consolidation just effected:

Los Angeles Division, State Council of Defense, takes over actual supervision of all war activities in Los Angeles county and city.

County and city councils of defense pass out of existence as such.

The functions of the local War Donations Board, of which E. G. Judah is chairman, are taken over by the State Bureau of War Donations of the State Council of Defense. This bureau will have supervision of all war collections and war-work speakers. The bureau goes on record as opposed to communities forming "war chests" for making one collection for all funds.

R. W. Pridham is chairman of the Los Angeles Division of the State Council of Defense under C. C. Moore, State chairman.

Local headquarters of all Liberty Loan, Red Cross, War Savings and other drives will be at No. 719 South Hill street, where the entire building will be devoted to the work of the Los Angeles Division of the State Council of Defense.

Co-ordination of all war activities, long sought after, has become a fact in Los Angeles under the supervision of Charles C. Moore, director of the California State Council of Defense, with R. W. Pridham, chairman of its Los Angeles division. The building at No. 719 South Hill street has been leased for the period of the war and from this building will be directed Liberty Loan, Red Cross, War Savings and all other organized patriotic work in this community.

When America jumped into the war every one in every community wanted to help, and in Los Angeles, as well as in every other city, old organizations and new ones started out on independent campaigns to do their share to help. On every side one was confronted with worthy appeals, but made with no regard to any other appeal. Duplication was bound to result and did result. In some cases fraud was discovered. Happily, Los Angeles has been practically free of anything but lack of organization, or rather from too many organizations. It was to be expected. War was a new business. Gradually order is coming out of chaos.

The County Council of Defense now passes out of existence. Judge Wellborn, as presiding judge, headed this by reason of his office. It was composed of representatives of various county departments and when Mr. Mooke took charge as State chairman he asked all members of this council who were running for office at the election this month to resign to clear the way for a new organization.

LOCAL PERSONNEL.

Mr. Pridham, appointed by Mr. Moore as chairman, then gathered about him as members of a new Los Angeles division of the State Council of Defense the following: George I. Cochran, vice-chairman; Frank P. Flint, representing the State council; Henry S. McKee, representing the Liberty Loan Committee in Los Angeles county; Edward D. Lyman, Red Cross; Motley H. Flint, War Savings; Victor H. Rossetti, Fuel Administrator; Marshall Stimson, chairman of the county four-minute men; Louis M. Cole, Food Administrator; Emil J. Bernatche, Federal employment bureau; J. Eliot Colt, County Farm Administrator; Harold Janss, director of publicity; Miss Anne Mumford, Mrs. J. F. Sartori and Mrs. T. J. Anderson, representing women's organizations, and Dr. J. Willis Baer, Los Angeles county.

With this committee, Chairman Pridham, and in turn State Director Moore, has an organization which will be on the job at all times fully conversant with all forms of government war work and capable of conducting any kind of war work desired in Los Angeles county and city.

WAR DONATIONS.

One form of supervision built up in Los Angeles, Director Moore approved of very much and that was the plan here of supervising all collections made for war relief or activities. The State Council of Defense, therefore, appointed a State War Donations Board, modeled after the Los Angeles board, and its chairman is Jesse H. Steinhart of San Francisco, and its Los Angeles members are Frank P. Flint, Seth Brown, H. W. O'Melveny, George I. Cochran, and Stoddard Jess. All applications requesting permits to ask the public in Los Angeles, for example, for money for war work, such as benefits, street collections and tag days, must be filed with the Los Angeles division of the State Council of Defense, and will be forwarded to the State Council's War Donations Board before the permit is granted. The old county council's War Donations Board, of which E. G. Judah was chairman, is superseded, though it stands as a model for the larger board. Mr. Judah, it is probable, will be in charge of war donations work as a member of the Los Angeles branch of the State Council of Defense.

Already, the State War Donations Board or bureau has made one important decision—prohibiting joint war and nonwar drives, or what is known as the "war chest" plan whereby a town estimates what it believes all war and charitable activities will need for a year and takes one collection and then from this fund or chest pays out to each activity what it desires. The Red Cross is opposed to the war chest plan. No restrictions are placed on war savings, Red Cross or Liberty Loan drives by the bureau. Speakers for war fund collections must obtain permits from this bureau and nongovernment campaigns will be compelled to hold their funds for ten days for investigations.

The Los Angeles City Council of Defense goes out of existence and gradually is being concentrated, in a business-like central organization all of the war work of the county and city in the committee of which Mr. Pridham is chairman.

The local division of the National Council of Defense, represented by Motley H. Flint and a committee headed by Boyle Workman, representing the war savings societies are working out a plan whereby the 1200 precinct war savings organizations will be utilized for all war work drives—Liberty Loan, Y.M.C.A., Red Cross, Jewish Welfare, Knights of Columbus, etc., under general supervision of the State Council of Defense. This plan will eliminate separate or duplicate organizations now existing and promote efficiency for the war work done.

It is an enthusiastic committee which is now directing the efforts to make every bit of war work effective and is endeavoring to eliminate wastefulness and duplication.

Needless to say, Chairman Pridham and all the members of the Committee give their time to the work of the new Los Angeles division of the State Council of Defense without salary and they are all pleased with the co-operation with which the work of consolidating the war work of the city and county is being received.

Chairman Pridham again cautions the public to make no contribution to any war charity whatsoever unless the solicitor can produce a signed authority from the State Council of Defense.

WAS HE RAILROADED?

Music Dealer Tells Grand Jury of Alleged Conspiracy Against Him.

That he was "railroaded" to the insane asylum by persons conspiring to defraud him of his property formed the basis of charges made before the county grand jury yesterday by Emile Levy, a music dealer of No. 940 West Seventh street.

Levy is said to have declared that he was detained sixty-two days at Patton, two years ago, before he could obtain his release. Albert Chappelle, formerly an investigator in the office of the District Attorney, who was familiar with the case, was called as a witness.

BADLY HURT WHEN AUTO TURNS OVER.

A. W. Gregor, a resident of Compton, was seriously injured early yesterday when an automobile in which he was riding toppled over at Compton and Manchester avenues, pinning him beneath the car.

Samuel Adams, a neighbor, escaped with minor injuries after having been thrown a considerable distance. According to Deputy Sheriff Sweasy, Gregor attempted to take the turn at a too swift pace.

LEAVES TO DO WAR WORK FOR THE Y.M.C.A.

John Duckworth, a building contractor of No. 2225 Bellevue avenue, left yesterday for New York in response to a telegram from Y.M.C.A. headquarters stating that his application to do war work for the association in France had been accepted.

Mr. Duckworth has been a resident of Los Angeles twelve years. He served two years under Kitchener in South Africa and has four brothers serving with the Canadian troops in France.

CHARGED WITH SEDITION.

Louis Dietrich, charged with sedition, was arraigned before United States Commissioner Long, yesterday, and was held in a bond of $1000. The hearing was fixed for September 14. It was alleged that Dietrich had remarked to Fred Jordan and Don R. Baum, that it would not be long until the United States would be down on its knees to Germany in this war.

FATHER FOUGHT WITH, HE AGAINST THE HUNS.

SON OF LOS ANGELES MAN NOW ENSIGN IN NAVY—ARCHITECT IS A PAYMASTER.

Though his father fought under the Prussian standard in the Franco-Prussian War, Ensign William F. Sutor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Sutor, No. 1716 Arlington avenue, is now on his way to the European war zone to pit his strength against the Hun war lords of today. The ensign volunteered in the U.S.N.R.F. and reported at the Naval Training Camp at San Diego, December 4. In two months he entered the officers' school at Los Angeles Harbor and in May was appointed an ensign. Being sent to Mare Island, he was put in command of a gun crew on a ship and in charge of athletics and discipline. He is a graduate of the Los Angeles grammar and high schools and at the time of enlistment was manager of the roofing department of the Hammond Lumber Company.

Another Los Angeles young man now an officer in the navy is Ensign Harold B. Abbott, a brother of Arthur J. Abbott of this city, who gave up his position with Myron Hunt to fight. Ensign Abbott enlisted as a seaman last winter and went into training at Los Angeles Harbor. He was recently commissioned as assistant paymaster, ranking as ensign, being the only successful candidate of twenty-six in his class. He is a graduate of the University of Michigan engineering school, and an architect by occupation. He has just left for Annapolis for a special course in the payofficers' school.

GAIL B. JOHNSON DIES SUDDENLY.

Attack of Indigestion Proves Fatal in New York.

Was Attending Convention of Life Underwriters.

Body will be Brought to this City for Burial.

Gail B. Johnson, first vice-president of the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company and for nearly a third of a century prominent in the financial affairs of this city, died suddenly at the Astor Hotel in New York early yesterday forenoon. He expired within ten minutes after an attack of acute indigestion came upon him.

Mr. Johnson had gone to New York about a week ago, in company with a number of officers of the Pacific Mutual company, and was attending the annual convention of the National Association of Life Underwriters. Officers of the Pacific Mutual now in New York will start for Los Angeles today with the body, and funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Mr. Johnson, who was in his fifty-ninth year, was a native of Texas and lived in that State until near his majority. He came to Los Angeles thirty-three years ago and engaged in the building and real estate business. He also was vice-president of the Guaranty Trust and Savings Bank for several years, resigning that position to become first vice-president of the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company twelve years ago, which position he held during the intervening period until his death. He also was a director of the Los Angeles Trust and Savings Bank.

For twenty years Mr. Johnson served as a trustee of the University of Southern California and he was deeply interested in its development and expansion. He was a member of exemption board No. 17 for some time, resigning last January. He also was a member of the Capital Issues Committee for the Twelfth Federal Reserve District.

Besides the widow, whose home is at No. 245 Westlake avenue, he leaves three daughters — Mrs. Laurence Burck and Mrs. Harry B. Morse of this city, and Mrs. Harold S. Cook of San Francisco. He also leaves two brothers, Dr. Milbank Johnson and Waldo Johnson of this city, and two sisters, Mrs. Isaac Milbank of Los Angeles and Mrs. John B. Miller of Pasadena.

Y.W.C.A. WORKING OUT BIG WAR CAMPAIGN.

COMBINED DRIVE FOR VARIOUS ACTIVITIES TO BE LAUNCHED IN NOVEMBER.

Preliminary organization plans for the national campaign to be made in November for funds by the Y.W.C.A., in connection with the Y.M.C.A., the Training Camp Activities, the Camp Libraries, the Jewish War Council and the Knights of Columbus, are being worked out by representatives of the Y.W.C.A. who will head the campaign activities of the organization in this division.

The combined campaign for war funds by these organizations, will be for an approximate $135,000,000. The western division will include California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Nevada, Utah and the Hawaiian Islands.

Lyman Pierce, department director for the Y.M.C.A., will be the senior director for this western division. Miss Cora L. Tatham has been chosen as the department director for the Y.W.C.A. department, and State headquarters will be maintained in the Flood Building in San Francisco.

California, owing to its size, is to have a headquarters committee in Los Angeles, as well as in San Francisco, and each committee will have two chairmen, one in the north and one in the south. Miss Mary Tracy has been selected to serve as State director, with headquarters in San Francisco, while the southern half of the State will be in charge of Mrs. Chester C. Ashley, named as associate State director. There will be five State committees.

The organization of the various State committees has not yet been completed, although the appointment of Mrs. Warren Olney, Jr., to the position of State chairman of the Committee on Education and Publicity has been made, and Mrs. A. B. Cooke, vice-chairman of this same committee, will be in charge of this work in Southern California.

NEED STENOGRAPHERS.

Women Typewriters Also are Wanted by the Government at Good Salaries.

Notwithstanding that thousands of stenographers and typewriters have been appointed in the government service at Washington, D. C., since the country entered the war, the United States Civil Service Commission announces that there is pressing need for several thousand more workers of this class. Women especially are urged to offer their services for this office work and thus help in a practical way in the nation's great undertaking.

Entrance salaries range from $1000 to $1200 a year. Most appointments are made at $1100. Higher salaried positions are usually filled through promotion, original appointments at salaries in excess of $1200 being rare.

Examinations are held every Tuesday in 550 cities, and the commission states that an examination will be held in any city, day or night, when there is prospect of assembling a class of as many as three competitors. Eligibility for appointment may be obtained through passing an examination in practical tests in shorthand and typewriting, or in typewriting alone. It is practical to complete such an examination in one hour. Representatives of the Civil Service Commission at the postoffice in Los Angeles and other cities are prepared to furnish definite information to persons interested.

Semi-Annual.

DIGNITY AND SIMPLICITY MARK NEW FALL STYLES.

Exceptional Array of Garments will be Seen at Fashion Show.

THE march of fashions keeps step with the progress of the world, and this year unusual care has been taken by all designers to provide attire of dignity, beauty and simplicity. Los Angeles merchants are providing an exceptional array of garments for autumn and winter use. They will display these to the public in a notable exhibition to be held throughout the business section of the city beginning next Thursday and continuing through Friday.

The semi-annual fashion show has come to be a notable event in the local merchandising world. Since the autumn of 1910 the Retail Dry Goods Merchants' Association has arranged this twice-a-year display of fine fabrics, wearing apparel and those incidentals to the home, the summer or winter camps, which are a portion of the equipment of modern households.

This year much emphasis will be placed upon the general utility frock and suit. Many women who in the past have known no higher demands than that of selecting a becoming boudoir frock for morning are now engaged in war relief work and don street attire early in the day. Such women demand gowns of distinction, however simple their lines.

Los Angeles women are expected to be eager to see the display of new styles, to search the ranks of serges, of velvets and satins for that which best suits their requirements, and will realize that, with conservation, the selection would best be made early. Varieties for this show are abundant, and styles to suit every need. Dinner frocks show new lines, and for these the fabrics will be as gay and as filmy as delicate taste can imagine. Boudoir gowns, lingerie and hats will all be included in the displays, in which practically every shop of the city will show its best for the occasion of the seventeenth semi-annual fashion show.

The poster which has been designed to advertise the show is the work of Miss Lorita Bates, a young Los Angeles High School girl, who has been successful in designing these posters for the last several seasons. The military suggestions lie largely in the background and atmosphere of the drawing, and colors are smartly suggestive of the vogue of the season.

The officers of the Retail Dry Goods Merchants' Association are Leo Jacoby, president; J. K. Wilson, first vice-president; William Lord, second vice-president; W. A. Faris, treasurer, and Alfred E. Adams, secretary. The association includes the firms of J. W. Robinson Company, the New York Store, Coulter Dry Goods Company, Bullock's, the Fifth Street Store, Myer Siegel, the Ville de Paris, Jacoby Bros., Hamburger's Sons, the Unique and N. B. Blackstone.

JURY DISAGREES.

Fails to Return a Verdict in Second Trial of Woman Charged with Setting Fire to Her Home.

For the second time a jury has disagreed in the case of Margaret L. Tree, charged with arson, failing to return a verdict in Judge Houser's court yesterday after deliberating the greater part of the day. The first trial resulted in a hung jury.

Mrs. Tree is accused of having set fire to her home at No. 1101 East Eleventh street on January 14, last. She was represented in court by Attorney M. G. Phillips. Mark Keys, Deputy District Attorney, prosecuted the case.

Annual Report.

POMONA VALLEY CITRUS OUTLOOK ENCOURAGING.

High Prices Rule for Both Oranges and Lemons—Solution of Cull Problem in Marmalade.

THE San Antonio Fruit Exchange, the selling agency for the big Pomona Valley citrus-growing district, has rounded out the first quarter of a century of its successful existence and the twenty-fifth annual report has been prepared by Manager Knox.

The report is remarkable in many respects. It shows that while the fruit crops in the exchange district was only 28½ per cent. of that of the previous season, the returns were 56 per cent. of the greatest returns ever brought to this district. The operating expense for the exchange for the season was $9770.25, or 1.57 cents per box.

The report, just issued at Pomona, reads, in part:

"The extreme hot spell in June, 1917, caused a very heavy drop in all varieties of citrus fruits, but especially in navels, which comprise the bulk of the crop of this district, so that we have shipped only 1408 cars, or 28½ per cent. of the shipments of the previous season. This shortage, coupled with prosperous conditions throughout the country, created a strong high market throughout the season, with greater variation of prices than we have ever experienced in the history of the industry.

"Our returns amount to $2,276,590.06, being 56 per cent. of the greatest returns ever brought to the district.

THE ORANGE CROPS.

"Navels were most seriously affected by the heat wave, our shipments being only 526 cars as against 2736 cars last season.

"Our returns are $826,224.89, an average of $2.93 a box, which is $1.78 a box higher than the price realized in 1913, the frost year, which was another year of shortage and which was up to this time the highest average price we ever received for navels.

"Miscellaneous varieties, such as seeds, sweets, St. Mikes and bloods, all brought high prices on account of running medium to small sizes, and as the heat did not affect these seeded varieties to the extent that it did the navels, the crops were more nearly normal and large returns per acre were realized.

"Valencia shipments were commenced early from Tulare county and from parts of Orange and Los Angeles counties, interfering with our last navel shipments.

"On April 1, estimate for the State showed approximately 12,500 cars, but as the fruit was picked, it became apparent that practically all the fruit was on the outside of the trees and the estimate was too high.

"Before this shortage was discovered, too much fruit had been shipped and a very high market was created. With the small quantity of fruit yet to be shipped, the Valencias to go forward from this time on should bring extremely high prices.

LEMON MARKET.

"The lemon market has been very active practically the entire season, permitting us to keep our stock of fruit closely cleaned up and placing on the market fruit which was of the best keeping quality and of fine appearance.

"Foreign importations were interfered with to some extent during the first part of the year, but in the last few months large cargoes have arrived and the supply has been above normal. Due probably to shipping facilities being badly disorganized, a shortage of labor and slow time en route of steamers, the cargoes have been arriving generally in poor condition and our fruit has never shown up to better advantage in comparison, so that even with sales of 25,000 and 50,000 boxes of foreign fruit in New York, that market has been able to sell Californias at satisfactory prices and at a big premium over foreign stock.

"The restriction on the use of sugar will no doubt affect the use of lemons to some extent, but with the advertising campaign centered on more general uses of lemons, we feel that the demand thus created will take up most of the slack created by sugar regulations.

LOW GRADE FRUIT.

"This season we made a contract with Thomas Crawford, Inc., to take all cull navels from our various associations at 1 1-4 cents per pound. The contract led to investigation of this company, with the result that the districts of the A-C-G, Covina, O. K., and this exchange purchased a controlling interest for the purpose of enlarging the operations of the company and using the orange and grape fruit culls from these districts for the manufacture of marmalade.

"This movement has now developed into an exchange organization covering all the State and means the solution of the cull problem as the company will now have control of the greater part of the culls in the State. It will mean the elimination of this low-grade fruit from competition with the better grades and at the same time insures the grower a better return for culls than was received before.

LABOR SCARCITY.

"Scarcity of labor is a serious factor which looms ahead of us in the successful operation of our business. We must consider the solution of this difficulty seriously and everyone should endeavor to accomplish more in order to release every available man for some other work.

"Last season we set aside $2000 to meet the contract with the State Board of Control, which appropriated $2500 for protection of the San Antonio Canyon water shed. Five hundred dollars was put up by the San Antonio Water Company, making our joint appropriation equal to that of the State as provided in the agreement."

Barnum and Bailey's.

EUROPE'S BEST ACROBATS TO BE HERE WITH CIRCUS.

THE war in Europe, which has closed most of the continental circuses, has brought to the United States many of the best European acrobatic performers and equestrians, and the agents of Barnum & Bailey's circus were kept busy during last winter contracting the released performers to appear in this country. The result will be seen in many distinct novelties when the circus comes to Los Angeles for a three days' stay on September 16.

The programme which will be seen here is said to feature more foreign performers than ever before. In the present day of novel and thrilling circus performances only the most difficult and best acts are considered, good enough for the great show; and it is said to be a fact that America cannot supply these novelties. In Europe the circus is not only the most popular, but also the oldest of amusement institutions, and the foreigner seems to have a natural talent for performing.

Also, the law of primogeniture obtains in most European countries. Whatever occupation the father follows the oldest son nearly always follows also. Naturally the rest of the family is also inclined toward the same profession or trade. Thus the circus performers of Europe generally have generations of circus ancestry.

The foreign performer, as a rule, has no other ambition in life than to be a performer. He knows and thinks only of the circus profession. His children, instead of receiving a general education, are taught from infancy to follow in their father's footsteps and to be performers. In America conditions are exactly the reverse. The greatest ambition of the American performer is to educate his children for some other walk of life.

The circuses and music halls of the continent are watched closely for new acts and thrilling sensations, and the majority of European performers are obtained in this way. More than 480 performers, most of them foreigners, are said to be on the circus programme this season.

Patriotic Motive.

TO SPEED UP DRIVE TO USE MORE HOME GOODS.

IN COMPLIANCE with the request of the government that people everywhere use substitutes for supplies that are needed at the war front and to use local products to save transportation and increase the supplies of essentials, the Southern California Industries Association plans to redouble its efforts to promote the use of local products wherever possible.

Speakers are being supplied to address every gathering of women that it is possible to reach. These gatherings include women's clubs, Red Cross auxiliaries, parent-teacher associations, schools, churches, carnivals, benefits, etc., and also precinct meetings of the Council of Defense.

The purpose of the association is to aid the government during the war by conserving transportation and producing more goods for home consumption and the armies in camp and field, and to feed and take care of people at home without outside assistance, thus saving these transportation facilities for governmental use and increasing supplies for shipment to the war zones.

"It is the patriotic duty of everyone to insist and demand goods of local manufacture, thereby bringing the industries into line, strengthening them, making prosperity here, developing the resources of the State and putting it on a war footing," said Peter A. Kelly, president, yesterday.

LIBERTY BOND PLAYS PART IN ARREST.

Basilio Caballero of No. 2707 South Grand avenue, who conducts a cafe near one of the shipyards at Los Angeles Harbor, was arrested at the harbor yesterday on a warrant sworn to by Angelo D. Simone, a shipyard employee.

Simone alleges that Caballero volunteered to come to Los Angeles to obtain a $100 Liberty Bond mailed from Bisbee, Ariz., to Simone, which bond he failed to deliver to its owner. Caballero was arrested by Detective Miklauchautz.

Editorial For Everybody

It is somewhat customary to call a store "high price" and "exclusive" when it gains a high reputation for reliability. Take Robinson's.

For more years than it is necessary to say, this has been the "high class" store of Los Angeles. But its exclusiveness has consisted only of the fact that its customers were discriminating people. And the "high price" myth has not been justified at all.

The trade of Robinson's is composed of people of all callings, who realize that it pays to buy good things and that prices at the best store are cheapest in the long run.

This house never could have been built by serving a limited class of people.

SOUTHLAND'S GREATEST HORSE SHOW ASSURED.

Will be a Featnre of the Liberty Fair; Big Tractor Display Planned; Success is Predicted.

PLANS for the greatest horse show ever held in Southern California, to take place at Exposition Park, while the Liberty Fair is in progress next month, have just been completed. The show will run from October 17 to 19, inclusive. Five thousands dollars in cash prizes will be given to the winning exhibitors. Dr. A. J. Scott is chairman of the Horse Show Committee and Ferdinand R. Bain will be master of ceremonies.

Great interest will center around one of the Baldwin entries at the show. Mrs. Anita Baldwin plans to exhibit a great array of noted thoroughbreds, foremost among them being Rey El Santa Anita, American Derby winner. This famous stallion is 26 years old. Mr. Bain will show the pick of his fine stables.

While the show is in progress the public will have an opportunity to see many fancy-gaited horses from the park grand stand and there will be a magnificent array of polo ponies and truck horses. The heavy horse will claim quite as much attention as the light one, and the war horse will be conspicuous, too. Some of the best types of cavalry horses will be exhibited. In addition to the $5000 in cash prizes, many silver cups and ribbon trophies will be awarded.

THE LIBERTY FAIR.

Plans for the Liberty Fair are rapidly taking shape. People are beginning to feel that it is their fair. It has been indorsed by the Los Angeles City Council, the Chamber of Commerce, the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, the Santa Monica Beach Improvement Association, the Tractor Engine and Implement Dealers' Association, the Southern California Industries' Association and various other civic, commercial and industrial organizations of influence in Southern California.

The Tractor Engine and Implement Dealers' Association has already arranged to exhibit more than forty different types of tractors, in addition to a choice assortment of other heavy and light farm implements. This will give the farmer an opportunity to pick up more first-hand information on new implements than he ever got at the county fairs back home.

The Santa Monica Beach Improvement Association, of which Col. J. B. Lankershim is president, has arranged to celebrate Santa Monica Day at the fair. On that occasion special trains will be run from the beach direct to the park, and thousands of persons will represent Santa Monica while many thousands of Los Angeles city and county people will join in welcoming the beach folks.

TIPS FROM STATE SHOW.

Several members of the Liberty Fair Association have been in Sacramento during the last few days, borrowing from State Fair officials a few ideas to use in connection with the local exhibition.

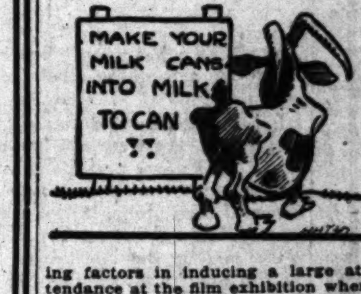
Director-General R. W. Pridham declares he believes that the Liberty Fair will be one of the greatest successes ever recorded here. He says all signs point to the heartiest co-operation on all sides and that the machinery is well oiled and running smoothly.

The horse show feature of the fair is attracting the attention of many Los Angeles firms, which are making liberal donations to the prize funds set aside for winners in special classes. Among these firms and individuals are: Cooper, Coat & Casey, Mullen & Bluett Clothing Company, Rancho Santa Anita, Security Trust and Savings Bank, Jesse L. Lasky Company, Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, the H. W. Hellman Estate, the J. W. Robinson Company and D. M. Linnard of Pasadena.

LIBERTY FAIR CAMERA TO TELL WHETHER GOATS EAT TIN CANS.

THAT the milch-goat industry will be represented at the Liberty Fair in this city in October, not only through the probably more than 250 entrants from among the local goat aristocracy already assured, but through the films has been announced by the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce. Arrangements are being made to intrude into the privacy of the daily life of this mysterious creature and prove to a skeptical public what its diet really is.

Though this may not be the primary object of the serious undertaking inaugurated by the earnest commerce body, doubtless curiosity in this respect will be one of the leading factors in inducing a large attendance at the film exhibition when shown at the big fair. Whether or not goats eat tin cans has so long been a mooted question that the hope of seeing them caught in the act by this merciless means of exposure will be an undoubted drawing card. And, of course, the secret of what the camera caught will not be revealed by the wiley perpetrators until the curtain finally goes up in the fall.



MAKE YOUR MILK CANS INTO MILK TO CAN !!

Meanwhile it will behoove owners of especially voracious bands to be gathering up the evidence against the coming of the camera man. For milk produced from cans—an admirably economical method—if once proved beyond question, would surely mean fame and fortune for the discoverers of the plan.

VOGUE OF THE GOAT.

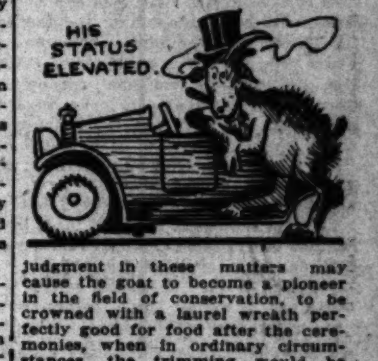
Instantly the vogue of the goat would be established. No longer the but of cartonnists and backfence wits, the status goat would immediately be elevated. Shipments of salvage in large tonnage could be disposed of in this way, thus relieving the freight congestion through the simple solution of digestion.

Salvage goats could even be conveniently stationed at certain alley points as precinct headquarters to aid more effectively in redeeming waste material of consequence to no one but these two conservation agencies—conservation and the goat. "Make your milk cans into milk to can!" might be the slogan at these conservation stations.

In time past when conservation was not the reigning style, children were admonished never to eat the last mouthful on the plate; one piece of pie or cake at the very least and one chop had to be left for the platter, and it proved niggardly and reprehensible "closeness" to save butter from the after-dinner butter dish for cooking-fat. Perhaps then, the shyness in openly acknowledging the now admitted enviable characteristics of the goat was merely due to a human frailty in desiring to conform to public opinion.

COMPLETE REVERSAL.

Certainly if such was the case, the complete reversal of popular judgment in these matters may cause the goat to become a pioneer in the field of conservation, to be crowned with a laurel wreath perfectly good for food after the ceremonies, when in ordinary circumstances, the trimming would be wasted.



HIS STATUS ELEVATED.

There is no end to speculation as to what may come of this enterprising movement to reveal the true place of the goat in modern economy. That idea of eating the trimmings, for instance. It might well be that this would prove a simple and utilitarian disposition of Christmas trees and the tempting wreckage of weddings, banquets and graduating exercises alike. No stage would be too high to mount, no decorations too inconvenient for this means of disposal. Just call in the band of conservation goats, working, of course for war service.

At any rate the truth of the matter will soon be revealed if the movie man on the job proves to be a good sleuth—and this announcement doesn't give it all away. The story the films will tell a few weeks hence will show; and in the meantime, while suspense must be borne, collect the tin cans assiduously—but give them to the Red Cross. Because a sure thing is worth two not yet caught.

HUNDREDS MORE JOIN COMMERCE CHAMBER.

"GLORY PLEDGES" IN LARGE NUMBERS CONTINUE TO BE RECEIVED.

Indications are that this week's mail will bring nearly 700 additional glory pledges into the Chamber of Commerce, enlisting as many citizens in the vital war work in which the organization will be engaged "till Berlin falls," it was announced yesterday. The signatures to these pledges were not obtainable during the recent membership campaign, owing to the absence from the city of many former and prospective members, but a careful checking of the list gives promise that very few names will be eliminated.

Although volunteer workers ceased solicitations a week ago, a steady stream of signed pledges has poured into the chamber offices each day since the drive ended. A general notice was sent our yesterday by Sylvester L. Weaver, informing prospective signers of the glory pledge that there will be no further solicitation, but requesting that they either call at the chamber offices or mail in their applications for membership. The new annual dues are not in effect until October 1, and remittance may be made at any time before that date. There is no initiation fee.

"The Chamber of Commerce is a cosmopolitan commercial organization, open alike to the little and big business man," said Mr. Weaver yesterday. "Loyalty to city and country is the chief requirement and every patriotic citizen is invited to join."

WE NEED THE MONEY.
Next thing we know the government will be advertising for help in devising new forms of taxation.

WE WERE, TOO!
The total war expenditures for last month amounted to $1,750,000,000, breaking all records up to date. And yet we imagined we were doing a tremendous thing when we built the Panama Canal at a cost of less than $400,000,000—and we were!

THEY KNOW IT.
The government at Washington has sent word to the striking film employees that they are helping Germany. It needs no representative of Uncle Sam to tell them that. They know it well enough. They are traitors, but they are not quite fools. Today every striker declares by his act of striking that he is disloyal.

GERMANY MUST SAVE HERSELF.
A Swiss citizen, returned to Berne from Berlin, declares that revolutionary fires surpassing the Bolshevik explosions in Russia are now threatening the throne of the Kaiser. Let the flames sweep on! The Allies will save the world from Germanism, but, in the last analysis, only the German people themselves can save Germany from the rotten, tyrannical system to which they have so long submitted.

STILL ON THE JOB.
German propaganda says that 2000 American deserters are confined in one camp! Every soldier who overstays his Saturday-night leave in New York or Los Angeles is chalked up as a deserter by the Germans. Some of these "deserters" are now meeting the Huns face to face and showing them what they think of them. There won't be much deserting until Von Tirpitz's whiskers are nailed to the White House fence.

WAR BREAD AND PRISONERS.
Some of the prisoners in the County Jail have been complaining about the "war bread." It is too bad that gentlemen who have seen fit to retire from the world and assume a monastic seclusion should be troubled by matters of diet. But if the sort of bread on which the rest of the nation is depending continues to displease these gentlemen, we suggest that the jailer at once remove the cause of complaint—until such a time as a resurgent appetite makes them less finiky.

CONGRATULATIONS!
The Times congratulates Hon. Henry Mix Hurd, formerly Republican State Senator, upon his marriage to Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Steddard, through whose efforts the Los Angeles Florence Crittenton Home was founded and who for years has been the most prominent woman in social welfare work in Southern California. Mr. and Mrs. Hurd have been associated in business and in charitable organizations for some time and their marriage will doubtless result in much good to the city as well as in increased happiness to themselves.

RANDALL AND ROLPH.
An inquirer asks The Times: "Why is not Randall in the same fix as Rolph, inasmuch as he, also, ran on two tickets and was defeated on one, in the primary? Why is Randall not barred from having his name printed on the Democratic ticket in the November election?"

Many voters do not understand this quirk of the Primary Law. The answer to the question is that Randall is not barred because he won in the Primary on the ticket of the party of his registration—Democratic; while Rolph is barred because he was defeated in the party of his registration—Republican. Under the Primary Law a candidate who loses in the party of his registration loses altogether, no matter if he is highest man on another ticket. As for Mr. Randall, he must be met at the polls and beaten in November.

MAXMILIAN HARDEN.
One of the miracles of this most astonishing war is the manner in which Maxmilian Harden can speak out without being clapped into prison. Some people venture the opinion that he knows so much that is intimate regarding certain persons of importance that they do not dare prosecute him. Anyway, in his paper he has lately been defending democracy; and in denouncing a leader of the Junkers, said: "What does he know of the continent that gave birth to the idea of the rights of man, and that during the hundred years from Washington to Walt Whitman, bore a veritable springtime of free spirits, cheerful in the service of humanity—a continent that has become the storehouse of idealisms such as the world before had never seen?"

Bold words those, even though Harden does know which bootseller of Picadilly it is that has the right to call the Kaiser "Papa."

THE SOULS OF WOMEN.

THIS war, which is being fought against the Hun and his unholy desire to trample a free world under his feet, is fought by men—men who are proving themselves to be of the stature of gods. It is men who have suffered the unspeakable horrors of the trenches and the agony of the battles.

But they never could have faced it all at the beginning, they could not carry on and endure as they are doing now, nor could they have in them the indomitable will to see it through to the end, were it not for the souls of women that enfold them with the spirit of God and a spirit of love and sacrifice that is unbounded and indescribable.

"Last at the Cross and first at the Resurrection" is the record of woman in the New Testament; nor in lesser place does she stand in the Testament that went before. Without the souls of women the world had never been a world at all.

Without these same souls now the freedom of the world were long since a lost heritage. In the souls of women the altar fires of liberty have burned when every other altar that it had reared was cold and black and dead.

In the world's dark hours, women's hands have done what no other hands could or would do; their feet have gone where the feet of men had neither the courage nor the strength to go.

"A woman shall encompass a man," said the prophet. This, indeed, she has always done, but never so much so as now in this the world's most tragic hour. It is her foot that is on the serpent's head.

It is they who suffer most; it is they who most endure. From under some woman's heart was every man-child torn who storms the ramparts and flings his bared heart against the merciless guns. And, in every heart so bared, there is a woman's memory. Without that memory there is no battle won.

When the soldier dies, that is the earthly end for him. His work is done, his burdens slip from his shoulders. And when he dies, life as she had known it dies also for some woman. But her work is not done, nor does her burden fall.

She must carry on. She encompassed the man in life; she must take his place in death. She gives the most and takes the least, glorifying both the gift and the sacrifice.

If you will but look out upon this broken world today, you will see how true is all this that here is said. You will see that it is the souls of women that light the darkness of the valleys and keep aflame the beacon fires on the hills.

II.

WE HAVE from Rome and Carthage, from Attila, Alexander and the Vikings, sad tales of women's woes and tortures in the bloody butcheries of the wars they waged.

Women were the chief spoils of those wars. They were carried off as slaves, and worse. They were bound to the chariot wheels.

But nothing that women have suffered in the wars of the past can be compared with what the women of France and Belgium have endured in this war. What they have suffered can never be set down upon a printed page.

A man girds a sword upon his hips and goes forth to fight. He puts a gun upon his shoulder and feels the cold steel of a bayonet in his hands. The worst that can happen to him is death.

But the women of Belgium and France have suffered things compared to which mere death is a small and a trifling occurrence. They have endured a living death, and they have endured it over and over again. They have gone through that hell which is apart from any other and through which there is no way that a man can go.

They have lost not only their sons, their husbands, their fathers and brothers, but they have lost something else beyond even all that, and for which there is no name.

But there is one thing that these women have which the Hun could not kill, and that thing is their souls.

From out the horror and the blood, from the darkness and the despair that drenched and palled the skies of France and all the sunny fields of Flanders, the souls of women flamed out in quenchless fires. Through all that the fiendishness of man could put upon them, their souls endured.

We have the testimony from living lips; we have it from the written word that can never perish. And we know that, never since time began, have the souls of women been so cruelly assailed, and never have their souls shone with such glory.

The soul of the Maid of Orleans shining through the armor that encased her white body was not so great as the souls of the women of Flanders whose humble feet stood on humble ground, and upon whose brows God had set only the insignias of humble lives.

III.

FROM what women have done and are doing in this war, the world over, we can gather all the hope we need for the future.

Not alone have we the vision of women in the countries where the fighting has been done, but the vision of the women of Britain and America whose shores were not invaded.

In France and Belgium women have set their hands to the plow. We see pictures of them dragging harrows over the fields as they took the places not of men alone, but of the horses, as well.

Throughout all Great Britain it were difficult to find the idle hand of a woman, or the heart of a woman that has not made the fullest sacrifices. And now that America has gone into the war on the huge scale planned for it, the women of America have risen as fully as women anywhere else have risen to the needs of the hour.

It would be a wonderful sight if, by means of a camera obscura, or some other magical device, we could behold at one glance the women of America as they are devoting themselves to the world's deep call for help.

Busy are their fingers from morning till night at their unselfish tasks; busy are their feet on errands of mercy. Not only are their hearts set on service for their own men in the war, but they are doing countless things for the people of the Allies.

But for the women of America, only God knows how many little children in stricken Europe would shiver in the cold for want of clothing, or how many would go supperless to bed for the want of food.

The most touching thing, almost, that has come to our notice is the work of American women for the war's orphans, over there. We have found an endless fascination in looking at the little garments that our women have made for these children. Such pretty and such useful articles for wear. It is a pity that our women cannot have the happiness of seeing with their own eyes the joy of the children who have been so blessed by their sweet charity.

But, God sees it, and we may be sure that God will not fail to reward the tireless and kindly hands that have wrought these mercies.

Rich women and poor women of the land—they have all given the best that was in them, and they will continue to give to the end. If Anne Morgan, Mrs. Vanderbilt and other rich American women have erected whole hospitals out of their own resources, their less materially endowed sisters are giving their time and their energies and often their dollars, too, that were hard to spare.

It is as Wallace Irwin said in his song of San Francisco:

"The colonel's lady
And Judy O'Grady
Are sisters under their skins."

Their hearts are the same, rich and poor alike. But, more than that, their souls are the same.

IV.

THIS, which is by far the most terrible of all wars, will some day come to an end. And, when that day comes, the souls of women will have to be reckoned with.

In the new world in which we shall then live, there will have to be made tremendous effort to make impossible a repetition of this ancient curse upon mankind.

The effort will have to be made for woman's sake if for no other reason. Surely the time has come at last when we can no longer ask woman to make the double sacrifice that she has always made in times of war.

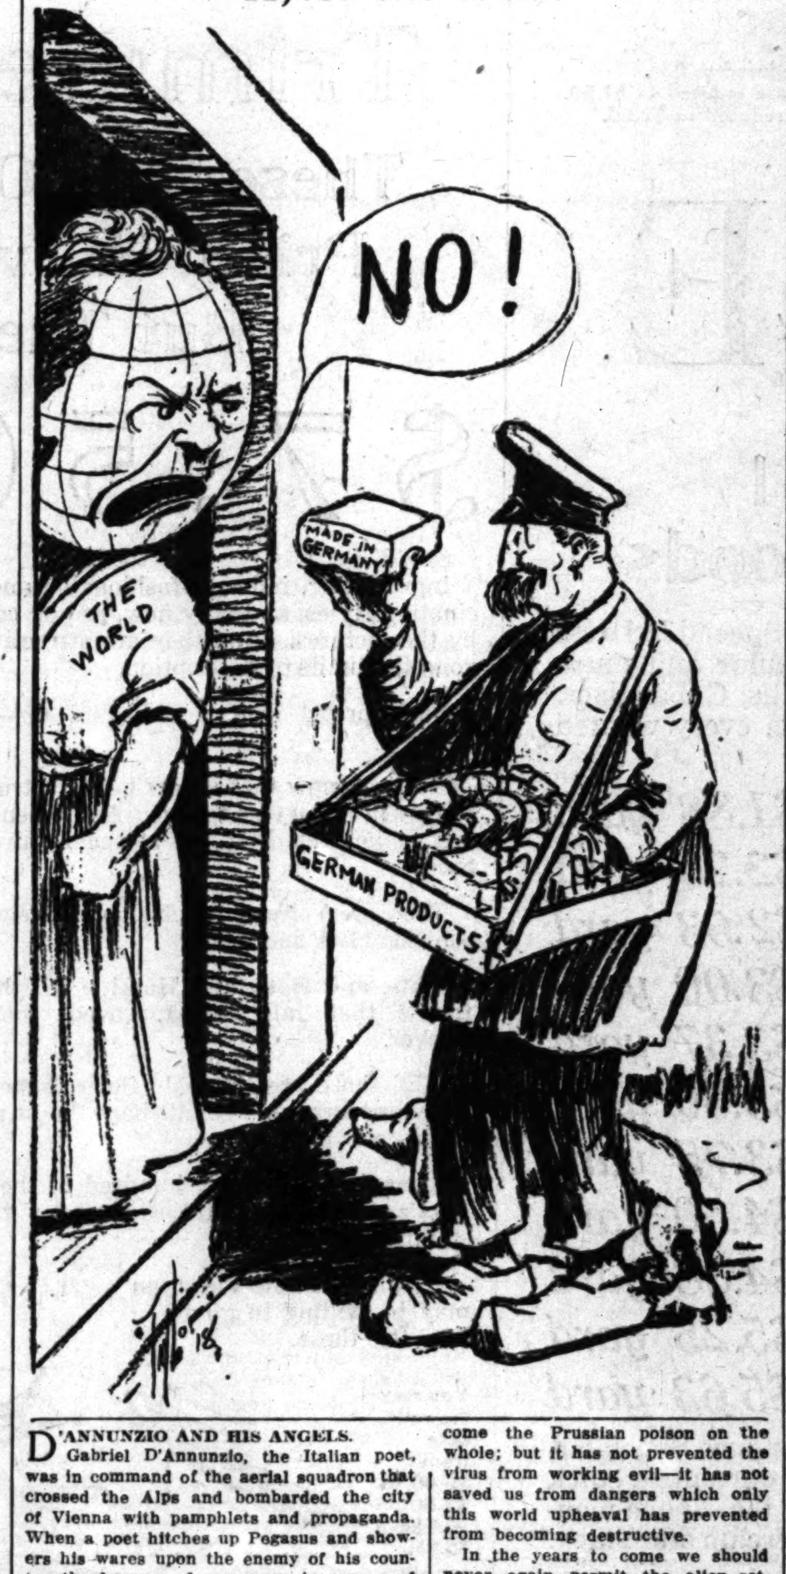
For, it is truly a double sacrifice that woman makes. What is life to her when all that was dear to her has been taken out of it? Yet she must go on, bearing her dead heart, facing again a world in which she stands robbed of her treasures.

It is not just that she should be made to pay twice when a man pays but once. Shall we go on asking her to bear us men only to see them slaughtered before her eyes?

We think the end of wars will come about in a way that the seers and the economists have never thought of. It will come about through the souls of women.

They have climbed patiently, through tears and blood and pain, to a position of authority now. Out of the travail of the ages, woman is, at last, to stand in her rightful place. And, in her mind there is no room for the thought of the waste, the folly and the crime of war.

After the War.



D'ANNUNZIO AND HIS ANGELS.
Gabriel D'Annunzio, the Italian poet, was in command of the aerial squadron that crossed the Alps and bombarded the city of Vienna with pamphlets and propaganda. When a poet hitches up Pegasus and showers his wares upon the enemy of his country the horrors of war seem in course of mitigation. But the mean part of it was that, while the gallant Italian aviators were bombarding the citizens of Vienna with the writings of Wilson, D'Annunzio and other champions of democracy, the Austrian aerialists dropped high explosives on a defenseless Italian town and succeeded in getting away after killing four helpless and harmless women. This shows the difference in temperament and training on opposite sides of the Alps.

The Italian air squadron consisted of seven large planes. They covered a distance of 315 miles, crossing the Alps at the altitude of 15,000 feet. On reaching Vienna they circled over the city for an hour or more at a height of not more than two thousand feet. When they had demonstrated to the terrified citizens their ability to bomb and destroy at will they began their shower—not of explosives, but of literature! They certainly gave the people of Vienna something to think about, and they also furnished them some information concerning the status of the war which their officials had denied them. The flight of D'Annunzio and his angels should help make history in Vienna and should advance the cause of peace and justice in the double-headed empire. That the literary invaders successfully defied the Austrian aircraft artillery and returned unharmed to their native heath added to the forcefulness and potency of the demonstration.

THOROUGH AMERICANIZATION.
It is stated that there are still a number of German societies in this city, as well as churches, which use the German language. In the light of developments on the war front it is an amazing thing that any organization using or tending to preserve the use of the German language should exist in this country. Every society which fosters an alien spirit and tongue is, in fact, a menace to American interests. But no other nationality has so thoroughly and persistently—and as we now know—so subserviently preserved their native tongue, their national spirit and traditions as have the Germans. That their most powerful and far-reaching societies have been subtly inspired and controlled by the German government is now evident.

The time has been when the German language was taught in American public schools on equal terms with English. At one time German was taught in all grades of the St. Louis schools. This was also done in the Milwaukee schools, while in country districts where the population was German that language was given the preference over English. German church schools have been another important factor in keeping up traditions and a spirit foreign to our institutions. The German press has been a recognized factor in our political and social history, while it was—consciously or unconsciously—an instrument in the programme of Kaiserism.

Yet in all this effort the carefully-laid Germanic plans have failed largely of their purpose. The acid test of the past eighteen months has shown that the population of this country of Teutonic origin has become American in spirit, in spite of all the institutions designed to keep them aliens. The free air of liberty has overcome the Prussian poison on the whole; but it has not prevented the virus from working evil—it has not saved us from dangers which only this world upheaval has prevented from becoming destructive.

In the years to come we should never again permit the alien settler in our country to preserve his alien atmosphere. We must have no more German schools and press; no more "little Russias." It must never again be possible for men and women to live in this country for years, speaking a foreign tongue and thinking alien thoughts, while preserving the habits and traditions of the country they have fled. It must never again be possible for children born in this country to grow up without being able to speak or understand the English language and knowing more of some other country and its customs than of the land where they live and make a living.

It is true that much of our virility comes from the mingling of bloods in our veins; that we owe much to the tendencies and heritages brought to us by our foreign-born citizens. In the past we may not have sufficiently appreciated some of the qualities of our immigrants and adapted their knowledge and methods to our needs, rather than ignoring or eliminating their good. But every individual seeking residence in our country, hereafter, should become a citizen within a reasonable time and should be obliged to learn and to use the English language. He should read papers printed in English and attend schools teaching our tongue and our spirit. If societies or organizations distinctively belonging to his former nationality are to be kept up they should promote the cultivation of Americanism—not the maintenance of alienism.

Foreign language press, schools, organizations — every element that tends to separate one nationality from another or to keep a nationality distinct instead of making for good American citizenship—must be forbidden.

RIPPLING RHYMES.

GOOD-BY SUMMER.

Oh, summertime, farewell! It's time to toll your knell, and no one sheds a sigh; you've been on deck so long, you've spread it on so strong! Oh, summertime, good-by! Oh, summertime, in books, you, with your babbling brooks have had a lot of praise; but people now on earth have had their money's worth of sizzling, scorching days. The poets, lyres in arm, have often sung your charm, their melody enchants; but no one sees them rise to sing about your flies, your chiggers and your ants. They sing of bosky dells and zephyrs wearing bells, and sunsets rich and red; they have no language sweet concerning prickly heat, and sleepless nights in bed. Oh, summer, fade and flee! Your name is twenty-three, your motto is "Avaunt!" You've put us all in bad, and all of us have had a lot more than we want. Oh, summertime, so long! You live in tale and song as something grand and fine; with me you make no hit; I'm willing to admit I've had enough in mine.

THE LANCER.

I ONCE heard of an insane snake that got mixed in its dates and tried to swallow itself; but that is the only thing I ever heard of that suggests the present predicament of the California Dimicrats.

They have not only swallowed themselves; but they have chased themselves off the map.

They make me think of a cat I once saw who reached through a picket fence to grab off a bone; he wouldn't let go the bone and he couldn't get his head back through the pickets with the bone in his face. So he just stood there clawing the grass and yowling bloody murder.

Which is just what the Democrats are doing in this State election.

If they successfully attack the primary law in the Supreme Court the effect will be to put Rolph, a Republican, on the Democratic ticket against Gov. Stephens.

Much of the male white population of this State is squatted on one or another of the celebrated State commissions.

They have commissions for taking the fleas off of dogs and, I don't doubt, commissions to put the fleas back on the bereft dogs again. Oh, they have every kind of a commission for which a salary could be invented. Of course, the real mission of every State commission is to get busy politically when the Governor gives the high sign.

Now y' see, Gov. Stephens only inherited these commissions from Hiram Johnson. But he had every reason to suppose they were housebroke, hadn't he?

And here, when he sounded the tocsin, this Carnahan person rushed out to work for Rolph.

Whereupon grandpa fired him. Don't blame him. These commissions must be for something. If they are not for political nose-wipers, then what are they for?

And now only Carnahan's gore marks the spot where he sat and commissioned. The Governor seems to be having a little difficulty in finding as Carnahan's successor somebody who will pass the amazing gauntlet of "progressive" laws.

As for Heney, my heart really bleeds for Heney. Still there's this consolation:

He has the most wonderful assortment of speeches explaining why he was beaten that I ever heard of.

He has had so much practice that it comes easy for him.

Some of these morning-after addresses are sweet and low and sad; some of them are curt and sarcastic; some cold and bitter.

Of course, I haven't read them all. Being still in the draft limit, my experience does not reach back to the time when the sovereign voters first began denying themselves the honor of electing Francis J.

What was Francis running for when they first began smoking Smeet Snaporels? Ask dad; he knows.

One of the great national magazines has started a symposium as to whether children should be whipped at home and in school.

I am rubbing my eyes and pinching myself. Is this the twentieth century or am I in a dream and will I wake to find myself back in the time of the Inquisition!

Great snakes, I thought these bestial ideas had been abandoned about the time they stopped flogging men at sea.

It is, of course, self-evident that a child who needs beating in school is evidence of a teacher who is deficient in intelligence. Taking it as a general proposition, the teacher who cannot interest eager, growing children in any subject to the point of their wanting to do right is a fool.

It would be very much more sensible to beat up the teacher when the discipline of a school becomes slack.

A child who is worth while never gets over the indignity of a whipping.

I remember reading an article in the Atlantic Monthly by Zit-ka-la-sa, the Sioux girl who became a distinguished writer. She said when she was a little girl, about 4 years old, she was sent to a government Indian school. One of the visitors, struck with her cunning air of grown-up dignity, picked Zit-ka-la-sa up in her arms, tossed her up at arms' length and then kissed her. Zit-ka-la-sa said she was heart-broken and cried bitterly for days in her room thereafter on account of this affront to her dignity and honor.

You can imagine what it would mean to such a child to be whipped. And there are more children with that innate sense of dignity than a lot of us imagine.

If the American girls have anything to say about it there will be a clause in the peace agreement compelling all the French girls of marriageable age to knock out their front teeth and have their noses broken.

The cool, level philosophy; the frugal, courageous spirit with which the French girl faces the difficult problems of life; and, most of all, the charming comradeship which she offers her husband in his business affairs have caught the Yanks.

Sad to say, neither the American girl nor the Frenchman find a similar attraction in each other.

The Frenchman finds the American girl entirely too mannish, and the American girl will not submit to the restrictions that surround the young French girl.

THE LANCER.

She Was Probably Right.

Mr. Styles: But, really, you're not going to wear that dress to receive your friends?

Mrs. Styles: Why not?

"Well, dear, it's very short and very much on the decollete."

"Well, they're coming to see me, aren't they—not the dress?"—[Yonkers Statesman.

TEAM WORK NEEDED TO MAKE THIS GREAT PORT.

Merchants and Business Men Must Co-operate with Federal Bodies, Says Traffic Expert.

LOS ANGELES will be a great shipping port and the magnificent facilities of its harbor will be fully utilized, if the merchants and business men of our city will co-operate with the Shipping Board and the Railway Administration now and give this port their combined aid. This is the opinion of Samuel L. Kreider, a local foreign trade traffic expert with offices in the Pacific Electric Building.

Mr. Kreider attended the recent conference at the Harbor Commissioners' office at which J. H. Rosseter, director of operations of the United States Shipping Board, told of possibilities of foreign trade going through this port and praised the plans and accommodations to handle this business. All [illegible] goods to fill the ships, Mr. Rosseter.

Mr. Kreider spoke at that hearing and Mr. Rosseter took issue with Mr. Kreider's views as to just how Los Angeles is to get a flow of merchandise into the ships using the harbor facilities. Mr. Rosseter said it is up to the merchants here [illegible] and get the business. Mr. Kreider believes that first of all the government should give kindly and sympathetic attention to the claims of Los Angeles Harbor for a place in foreign-trade business.

NEED STARTING PUSH.

The start of Seattle as a port was when the local merchants got Toyo Kisen Kaisha Japanese steamship line to make regular sailings to Seattle. Then the merchants went out and got business on the basis that this line would move the goods regularly across the Pacific," Mr. Kreider said.

"Now that the government is running both shipping and the railroads, what a splendid opportunity Los Angeles has to receive that starting push to success like the coming of the Japanese line to Seattle. For instance, if Los Angeles could advertise regular monthly sailings, after the war, of a line to South America and another to the Orient, think what a starter that would be! Then, if the Railroad Administration would relieve the freight tie-ups in San Francisco and Portland and Seattle, where thousands of tons lie idle in cars waiting room to get to the water to be moved, by routing even 100 cars a month for foreign freight, you have the starting of business here. Before the war, it was of no financial interest to the Santa Fe or the Southern Pacific to route Pacific-bound or South American-bound goods through this port. Further, they did not do it because there was no way of knowing whether a steamer would call here to take the goods away.

TO GET TOGETHER.

"Now is the get-acquainted period. After the war the goods will be sold. Now is the time for Los Angeles business men to get together and get the start which will make this port one of the big ports of the world. Ultimately, Los Angeles, with goods flowing in and out, should be a free port, where foreign shipments could come in for redistribution without duty, as for example goods from Japan for South America. This will keep our port busy and establish it as a trading center, as was done with the free port of Hamburg.

"But first, let us get more railroad shipments by way of Los Angeles and regular sailings of ships. Remember, the United States after the war will own for charter 3000 cargo-carrying steamers of a combined tonnage of 25,000,000 tons, and these ships mean foreign business for this country. Our merchants, our Chamber of Commerce, can take the lead now in presenting the claims of Los Angeles to the Railroad Administration and the Shipping Board."

ASSURES FAIR RENTALS TO SHIPYARD WORKERS.

Proper Housing Facilities the Purpose of Bill Before Congress.

THE provisions of a bill unanimously reported for passage in the House of Representatives enable the Federal government to take drastic action to secure proper housing for the shipbuilders of the country. As the administration is solidly back of the bill, it is almost certain to become a law within the next few days. The bill hits profiteers squarely "between the eyes."

The pertinent sections of the bill, affecting conditions as they may now or hereafter exist, are as follows:

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, that by reason of the existence of a state of war it is essential to the national security and defense for the successful prosecution of the war, and for the support and maintenance of the army and navy, that reasonable rental charges be provided and maintained in those areas to be designated from time to time by the President where industrial workers reside who are engaged in arsenals, shipyards, navy yards or other agencies of the United States and in industries connected with and essential to the national defense. For such purposes only, during the continuation of the existing war and until the close thereof, as proclaimed by the President, the powers hereinafter set forth are conferred:

"Section 2. That in the event that the rental charge for any building or part thereof situated in any area designated by the President, in accordance herewith, is deemed by the President to be unreasonable and excessive, and he is unable after due notice to bring about the establishment and maintenance of a rental charge therefor which he deems to be fair and just, then, and in that event only, the President is hereby authorized and empowered to requisition any or all right and interest in and to the use or occupy of such building and of the land on which the same is situated, or in and to any part thereof for such term as he shall deem advisable, not to exceed the period until the close of the existing war as proclaimed by him.

"'Rental charge,' as used herein, shall be deemed to include, not only the sum or sums agreed upon as compensation in any lease or sub-lease, but also any additional sum of money or thing of value paid or payable as a premium or bonus, or for the purpose of increasing directly or indirectly the compensation to be received by any person for or in connection with the use or occupancy, or the acquisition of the right to use or occupy any land, building or part thereof.

"Section 3. That whenever the use or occupancy of any land, building or part thereof is requisitioned hereunder, the President is hereby authorized and empowered to lease the same to such person and upon such terms and conditions as he may determine.

"Section 4. That whenever the use or occupancy of any land, building or part thereof is requisitioned hereunder, the President shall make just compensation therefor to be determined by him. In determining such compensation, he shall take into account the rental charge which was made for such land, building or part thereof prior to the first day of August, 1914. If the amount so determined is unsatisfactory to the person or persons entitled to receive same, such person or persons shall be paid 75 per cent. of the amount so determined and shall be entitled to sue the United States to recover such further sum, as added to such 75 per cent., will make up such amount as will be just compensation therefor in the manner provided by section 24, paragraph 20, and section 145 of the Judicial Code.

"Section 5. That the President may exercise any power or discretion herein granted through such agency or agencies as he may create or designate.

"Section 6. That if any clause, sentence, paragraph or part of this act for any reason shall be adjudged by any court of competent jurisdiction to be invalid, such judgment shall not affect, impair nor invalidate the remainder thereof, but shall be confined in its operation to the clause, sentence, paragraph or part thereof directly involved in the controversy in which such judgment shall have been rendered."

GOVERNMENT CALLS FOR EIGHTY-TWO SHIPS HERE.

This is Total of Present Contracts; More to be Ordered Later.

esting phases. The steel plates come in carload lots from Gary, Ind., and Pittsburgh. They range from three-eighths of an inch to one and one-eighth inches in thickness, and are six and a half by twenty-four feet in size. Fifty tons of sheet steel are allotted to a car, and it takes seventy-five carloads of steel to build one of these cargo carriers.

The cars of plate are set off into the material yards, and there the plates are stacked on edge. From the storage yard they are taken to the assembly yard, where they are marked from wooden patterns, or templates. The exact shape of the piece as it is to be when finished and every rivet hole is indicated in this marking. After marking, the plates go to the machines for punching, shearing and rolling into shape. Angles and channel plates are heated and pressed. They then proceed to the assembly yard again, right in front of the ways, and are ready to be placed in position on the sides of the vessel.

To the keelplate of the vessel is attached the "floor," a series of cross-plates, sections of which have holes through them large enough for a man to crawl through. Then will come a solid section, or bulkhead, dividing the sections of the "floor." The end compartments are used for water for ballast. Another section is for oil and a central section for fresh water.

From the keelplate arch out the ribs of the vessel, and to these the huge plates of steel are riveted. The record for riveting in this yard is 3270 in a nine-hour day. A good riveter drives an average of 600 rivets per day under favorable conditions. He has a heater, and sometimes two of them; a passer and a holder-on. Compressed air is the force used in this work, and natural gas is used for the heating in all parts of the plant.

Three rivet-making machines are kept constantly at work. The long rods of steel are thrust into furnaces and heated almost to a white heat. Between these furnaces and the workmen there fall constant sprays of water, in order to make the conditions more comfortable. When at proper heat, the rod is pulled from the furnace and fed into the machine, which champs it up into regulation-sized rivets that tumble down into water sprays and are rolled away. Each machine eats up 170 rods per day. There are approximately 750,000 rivets in an 8800-ton cargo carrier. The vessel, when completed, has about 250 tons of rivets in its construction, and its total weight is 4200 tons.

MAKE IT ALL.

Practically everything but the boilers that is used in the construction of these vessels is made right at these yards, even to the fine cabinet work and furniture. The castings are manufactured at the Baker Iron Works and then sent to the yard for facing and dressing. The machine shops show activities on huge cylinders, immense columns for the engines, pumps, etc., and outside a large force of men engaged on the great smoke stacks, the masts and tanks.

There are so many mazes of activity that one not familiar with ship construction simply becomes bewildered. The one big impression is that here is a vast industrial concern, thoroughly co-ordinated, with a corps of thousands of employees imbued with the idea that they must do their best as a direct aid to Uncle Sam. In the pattern rooms, the sail lofts, the machine shops, the cabinet shops, the shops of this and that and the other, and swarming up and over the sides of the vessels standing at the fitting-out wharf, the groups of men present a striking picture of activity.

When the noon whistle blows, there is a grand rush for the exits, for every man off duty is expected to leave the yards for the lunch period. Thousands pour through the gates, and at once the little town of stores and shops and eating houses outside the yards is transformed into a mart of commerce so active that the men line up in regular American fashion, so that first come may be first served.

There is a crackerjack band—every member of it a man from the working force of the yard—and on occasions, at least once a week, these men grab their band instruments as they march out, and give a short concert on a raised platform in the large area in front of the main office. Frequently short patriotic speeches are given in conjunction with these concerts, and the men return to their work, after their lunch, inspired with the thought that they are doing a vital work in helping to win the war.

WOMEN HELP.

Nearly 100 women are employed in the Los Angeles Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company's yard. Most of these are engaged in office work, but there are women in the department where the furniture is finished, working on shellacking and leather chair coverings, and also in the pattern shop.

An emergency hospital, fully equipped, is maintained, with physicians at hand both day and night, and with three trained nurses. Despite the vast number of men employed, the number of serious accidents is small. In most cases, the accidents require only one treatment and dressing. There have been six fatal accidents since the work was begun at this shipyard, which, compared with the fatal accidents on big construction work in the East, is said to be far below the average. State inspectors have commented very favorably on the manner in which workman here are safeguarded.

Government inspectors are constantly at the yard, and a government office is maintained there. A corps of government men inspects all riveting and caulking, as it proceeds, and on the sides of the hulls may be seen the markings of yellow and blue and green and white, indicating the passing of the various inspectors at every small section.

Extensive improvements are in progress at this yard, including the laying of concrete roads and walks, and the construction of resident officers' quarters, etc.

The pay roll at present is about $300,000 a week, and the great outflow of currency goes into all channels of trade throughout Los Angeles.

The shipbuilding yards of Los Angeles Harbor, an industry created within a comparatively few months, has become a marvel of activity, an inspiration to patriotism and a factor that gives promise of becoming a most valuable industry that will continue after the war as one of the really big things of Southern California.

FEDERAL JUDGE HERE IN OIL SUITS MATTER.

United States District Judge Franklin H. Rudkin of Spokane, Wash., whose connection with various oil cases has made him familiar with the litigation growing out of the efforts of the government to secure the cancellation of patents heretofore granted to the Southern Pacific Company and others, came to Los Angeles yesterday on business connected with the receivership operations of Howard M. Payne.

Receiver Payne has been acting for about fifty oil companies and individuals in the government suits and has impounded more than $10,000,000, which is being held awaiting the final outcome. Yesterday Receiver Payne presented his reports for the past year, and the approval of Judge Rudkin of his dealings was made a part of the court record.

For Workmen.

EXPERTS SEEK TO HELP TRAVEL TO SHIPYARDS.

Federal Board Representatives' Visit May Bring About Solution.

THE visit of representatives of the United States Shipping Board, J. H. Rosseter and his assistant, Hill Blackett, may go a long way toward solving the problem of transporting shipyard workers to and from their work. Another representative of the board, with jurisdiction over housing and sanitation, arrived a few days ago. Between the two departments it is expected that important recommendations will be made.

One of the hardest problems to solve is the mechanical handicap upon the Pacific Electric in trying to take care of more traffic than its equipment is intended to handle. The overloading during the peak of the shipyard traffic night and morning is a serious strain on the electrical equipment of the company. This means that the service upon which between 5000 and 8000 men depend is hanging by a slender thread.

How to give efficient service and at the same time avoid danger of serious interruptions is a problem that has resulted in much loss of sleep on the part of the electrical engineers. When the new connection permitting direct transfer from the yellow cars to the Pacific Electric just north of Gardena is completed, the traffic can be divided between the two lines to relieve the overload and at the same time save a long ride for the men living in the southwestern part of the city who work in the shipyards; but there will still be a shortage of rolling stock to take care of the peak load during the rush hours.

NEW FERRY NEEDED

This service will also require a new ferry service to reach the new yard of the Southwestern Shipbuilding Company at East San Pedro. Negotiations have been entered into to bring down from San Francisco one of the big ferry boats formerly operated by the Santa Fe there. It is understood that the new ferry company contemplates handling this traffic from the Pacific Electric terminus at San Pedro to East San Pedro.

While San Pedro and Long Beach have been doing much building as a result of the shipbuilding activity, neither place has been able to keep up with the increased number of employees and Los Angeles has had to house a majorty of the men.

All of the various enterprises directly involved admit that the best solution to the problem would be more houses at the harbor, but how these are to be provided is a question. A good deal of the property at the harbor is owned by nonresident speculators, to whom improved property does not appeal.

THE BUILDING RECORD.

Between putting a stop to profiteering by rent sharks and encouraging property owners to build, the Shipping Boad has been keeping in the middle of the road. The general policy has been laid down that the government will not expend its own money for housing where private capital can be induced to build and that lack of housing facilities will be taken into consideration in awarding contracts to additional yards.

Although the permits issued at the San Pedro branch of the building department show that nearly 1000 new homes were put up during the first six months of this year, the demand is greater than ever. The building permits at San Pedro and Wilmington during the first seven months of this year amounted to $1,559,977 compared with $371,675 for the same period last year, an increase of 415 per cent. During the same period the building at Long Beach jumped from $348,352 to $1,824,983.

RECLAIMING WAR'S WASTAGE ONE OF BIG JOBS IN FRANCE.

American Salvage Depot Largest Establishment of Kind in the World—Old Uniforms, Shoes, Helmets, Etc., Restored for Fresh Service.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS,
Staff Correspondent of The Times.

SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE, Aug. 23.—War is the world's greatest despoiler in material things. Even that which it creates is created for the purpose of destroying or being destroyed.

The cyclone, the typhoon, the earthquake, the tidal wave, the conflagration in forest or city, Vesuvius and Mt. Pelee hurling death and destruction down their slopes, or any other of nature's cataclysms are puny as compared with that released by the hand of man. Nature in all her violent and most inhospitable moods has not, since the beginning of conscious time, brought into the world the death and devastation that man has inflicted on a fair earth in four short years.

To reclaim and save some of this material wastage is the purpose of a salvage depot which America has established at a point somewhere along the line of communications, said to be the largest establishment of its kind in the world.

Down from the north daily, trainload after trainload, comes the grist from the mills of war—thousands of frayed puttees, worn shoes, ragged uniforms, punctured rubber boots, shot-riddled harness, ailing camp kitchens, leaky garbage cans, broken axes, faded brassards, vermin-eaten blankets, crushed airplanes and wrecked locomotives—the flotsam and jetsam of a mighty conflict flowing ceaselessly in a turgid, disheveled stream from the front—war stripped of its sheen and tinsel.

EVERYTHING SAVED.

At the salvage depot this is rehabilitated. Everything is saved, even to the smallest button. Even though a uniform still contains but one piece of serviceable cloth no larger than the palm of your hand, it is cut out and laid away. It may prove useful as a patch on another uniform. Even a use has been found for field service hats no longer fit for wear. They are converted into felt slippers for the hospitals.

Many of the articles, such as rubber boots, slickers and ponchos, are returned to the front practically as good as new. In the course of a year this establishment will save millions of Liberty dollars. During May the value of articles sterilized, washed, salvaged and otherwise made fit for use and which otherwise would have been discarded amounted to more than $900,000. The cost of salvage ranged from 9 to 44 per cent., the higher rate being in leather articles, due to the cost of leather for repair purposes.

But the articles actually returned to circulation do not represent the full saving. To replace these with new material would require considerable shipping. To the other must be added a monthly saving of 5000 tons in shipping. Also, time, an important element in this conflict, must be computed. Material is salvaged here in a few days which would require approximately three months if it had to be shipped from the American factory to the front.

DONE BY WOMEN.

Most of this work is done by French civilians, largely women. Practically every woman accustomed to work, or qualified for it, in a city of 50,000 or more is given employment. More than 4000 are employed in the depot proper, while many others, whose household duties will not permit of this, take work home with them and do it by the piece. The pay roll runs over 500,000 francs per month, and the result is that Uncle Sam has brought a new era of prosperity to an entire city. Thus some of the money which America in the early years of the war exacted from a people in distress is finding its way back into the pockets of those of the poorer classes who have suffered most from the war and from whose meager savings our own nation became drunk with wealth. "Blood money," I have termed it before. There is a breath of wholesome justice in the way this is working out.

The French women, being saving, frugal and provident by habit, are especially adept at this sort of work. Patching done by the French women, a special process known as "stoppage work," is a work of art. I have seen them graft a patch as big as a meal sack on the back of a uniform and do it so adeptly that you could not tell but that the garment was of whole cloth.

I visited room after room with batteries of sewing machines running into the hundreds, and these machines were made in America. Sewing machines, I guess, are one thing that few of us figured for a role in the world war. But here they are, humming away in the war zone and keeping pace with the rapid firers. The "man behind the gun" must share his laurels with the "lady behind the bobbin."

The canvas department is one of the largest, being where all cloth goods are laundered, sterilized and mended. In here there was a veritable mountain of puttees, hundreds of thousands of them. From some of these only the straps and buckles could be saved, but these were worth the efforts. Uniforms not only are sterilized, but the seams are opened and the "cootie" eggs removed. Scraps of these uniforms which it is necessary to cut away are sold for old rags.

The leather department proper is devoted to harness, saddles, horse equipment in general, belts, etc.

THE ITEM OF SHOES.

Shoes are such a big item, some of the trench brogans having a ninety-inch wheelbase, that they are in a separate department. There was one stack alone containing 100,000 pairs of Trilbys requiring half soles. This made me think of my own private cobbler, George Smith, who runs an establishment about six feet square. I tried to figure out how long it would take him to do a job like that. Imagine somebody bringing in 100,000 pairs of shoes on Thursday to be half soled and saying that he wanted them not later than Saturday night. That happens here right along.

Repairing rubber goods is an important function, the war having made a tremendous drain on the world's supply of that material. The English system of doing this by hand instead of vulcanizing is employed. While the work is not quite as neat, it is said to be more durable, as the high heating required for vulcanizing weakens the resistance of the rubber. I saw them glueing heels on rubber boots so you couldn't pry them off with a can opener.

One class of slickers and ponchos, which are not quite serviceable enough to stand the rigors of trench wear, are repaired and made water proof especially for the use of our German prisoners. These provide them with adequate protection for what little exposure they undergo. Wonder if the Germans exercise the same care and concern for the comfort for our men who are prisoners in that country?

A MAMMOTH LAUNDRY.

The laundry here, which is only in its infancy, has a capacity of 200,000 pieces a day, which is said to be a high mark for washing establishments in this or any other country. This should make the burden of the faithful housewife humping herself over a washtub seem light. Let her lift up her voice in song at the thought that Uncle Sam has not drafted her to do the washing for the army. Here, they not only wash purple and fine linen, but they wash shoes and boots—an average of about 5000 pairs a day. Washing, starching and ironing hobnailed boots is another onerous duty which the average wife and mother is not required to perform.

Ah, what a cinch she has without knowing it. The other day an order for 200,000 pairs of socks to be renovated and washed came in. These were run through the suds and hung out to dry in record time. There are few more inspiring sights in the world than 400,000 government socks unfurled to the breeze. Something like half a ton of rich, alluvial silt was extracted from this one batch of socks and scattered on the surrounding fields to aid the growing crops. Nothing is wasted. How many families in America after the weekly foot-washing ceremony on Saturday night ever think of using the sediment to enrich the geranium bed or feed the tender young hollyhocks?

The French custom of a ten-minute intermission at 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. is followed in the depot. During these periods the employees divide the time between eating native bread and chewing the rag in their native tongue. These intermissions do much to keep up the morale of the force, and give opportunity for the exchange of the latest neighborhood gossip, while the food strengthens the body, refreshes the mind and exalts the soul. Social life is sadly neglected in our American factories during the working hours. How much better it would be if the horny-handed sons and daughters of toil in America were given twenty minutes each day in which to flit from flower to flower along the primrose path and nibble war bread.

Among the articles which I observed being salvaged between intermissions, and which otherwise would have found a resting place in the junk heap, where axes, bags, belts, blankets, blouses, boots, brassards, breeches, bridles, halters, bugles, buckets, cans, cuspidors, caps, shovels, chevrons, combs, hat cords, cots, canteens, canteen covers, coffee cups, stove pipe, gloves, harness, haversacks, helmets, jerkins, jumpers, kettles, kits, pans, moccasins, overalls, Yukon packs, pads, tent pins, tent poles, ponchos, pouches, puttees, field ranges, scabbards, scarfs, shelter halves, shoes, slickers, slings, socks, music stands, straps, sweaters, tents, trousers, underwear, (union and non-union,) vests, wristlets—but why burden the censor with further details. If Wanamaker carried in stock all the articles handled here he would have to build a lean-to on his Broadway shack.

FAVORS GOVERNMENT.

Oregon District Judge Reports on Action Against Various Oil Companies.

United States District Judge Bean of Oregon yesterday transmitted to the local Federal court his opinion in the action brought by the government against the Chanslor-Canfield Midway Oil Company, the Recovery Oil Company, Fred H. Hall, Western Water Company, Sunset Western Railway, Standard Oil Company, Visalia Midway Oil Company and the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway Company, to recover a quarter section of land in Kern county, alleged to be valuable for oil bearing. The opinion favors of the government's contention.

The oil area was sought to be recovered by the government on the claim that it was withdrawn from all form of public entry on September 27, 1909, being one of the numerous "withdrawal" suits.

Judge Bean in his decision says there were only two points raised in the transcript, namely, whether the paper location under which the defendants claim title to the land is legal and valid, and whether the defendants were, on the date of the withdrawal order, in the diligent prosecution of the work of developing oil. The court finds on both points in favor of the government.

The paper location was made on January 1, 1903, by Fred Hall, in the name of Mrs. Stokes, his mother-in-law and seven of their neighbors.

GIVEN THREE YEARS FOR OPPOSING WAR.

COURT INTIMATES HE WOULD LIKE ALSO TO SENTENCE SOME CONGRESSMEN.

Gibson L. Hogan, convicted by a jury in Judge Bledsoe's court of violation of the Espionage Act, was sentenced yesterday to three years in the Federal penitentiary at McNeil's Island. Judgment was imposed by the court just before the calling of the second day's calendar of the naturalization court, and the room was packed with applicants for American citizenship.

Judge Bledsoe recognized the psychological moment and read a patriotic lecture to young Hogan that might have brought out a demonstration of applause if the court rules had warranted it.

Judge Bledsoe declared that it is time to throw the "fear of God" into the hearts of those who oppose the course of the government in the conduct of the war. Referring to the statement in behalf of Hogan that he had not talked any more unpatriotically than members of Congress in debates on the floor, Judge Bledsoe said that was probably true, and intimated that he would like to be in a position to visit the judgment of the law upon such "high" offenders.

The charge against Hogan was that he sought to discourage Roy Haskell of Pasadena, who had entered the army, by telling him that the government would not take care of his wife while Haskell was in the service, and intimating that he was a "fool" for enlisting.

KEARNY BUSY TURNING SELECTS INTO SOLDIERS

Over Seventy Doctors and Large [illegible] Operate Medical Machine to T[illegible] Out Our Draft Men.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

CAMP KEARNY, Sept. 7.—More than seventy physicians and surgeons, and perhaps twice that number of enlisted men acting as clerks and assistants, operate the medical examination machine here, through which draft recruits have begun to pour at a rapid rate. The organization so far has not "struck its pace," but the corps which examined the California June draft quotas, sent here for training, examined more than 700 men in eight hours, and the present unit is expected to do at least as well, especially as many of its members served in the former corps.

The examination was carried on in a series of five buildings, connected with tents or canvas passages, and in special tents opening off these passages. Except for vital personnel work, nothing else was done in these buildings. The examination work went on until an early hour tonight, and tomorrow will start early and continue late. No rehearsals were held, as was the case with the former machine, but notwithstanding this, every portion of the organization functioned well, and today's work went forward rapidly.

FIRST, THE BATH.

The first step toward the examination was a bath, which the recruits took under the showers in their company wash-houses. Then they were lined up in single file at the entrance to the examination buildings to wait their turn. Each man carried with him all the papers he needed during the examination, clipped together in the order in which they were required.

The long line of recruits was fed into the examination machine like wire into a nail-making apparatus, and after about an hour, the completed product began to click forth at the other end. Occasionally a man who failed to meet some standard was thrust out at some stage of the procedure.

The first section of the machine was devoted to finger prints. In a tent set aside to them, eight men trained in taking finger prints operated at as many stands. Printers' ink was used. Then the recruit washed his finger tips with gasoline, fastened the bag bearing the camp serial number assigned to him around his neck and stripped. Enlisted men detailed to that duty tied his clothes into a bundle and tagged it with his name.

In a small section next to this room, groups of enlisted men at scales and height measuring stands took the weight and height of each recruit, which other enlisted men entered on a blank from the recruit's bunch of papers. Here also all tattoos, scars and other marks were entered on a [illegible] form which showed [illegible] cation. ON THE WAY to BERLIN

by Harry A. Williams

PARIS, July 12.—A strange, new crime must be laid at the door of Germany.

It was called to my attention during a recent trip in the south of France, where many of those driven from the north by the Germans have taken refuge.

The experience through which these distressed people have passed—many of them driven from their homes for the second or third time—has resulted in almost an epidemic of spasms.

These are confined to the women, especially those of considerable age, or who are rather frail. My attention was called to their pathetic condition by a Red Cross nurse, Miss Mable H. Wade of Hollywood, Cal., who has been doing work among them. She is the daughter of C. J. Wade, secretary of the State Mutual Building and Loan Association.

Doctors are puzzled by this new malady, and it differs in some ways from similar attacks. For want of a better name they classify it as an "explosion of nerves." They do know, however, that it was brought on by the misery inflicted on these people by the Germans.

"Ah, I am sorry to cause you all this trouble," said one French woman, half apologetically, after one of these paroxysms, "but you never will know what we have suffered in the past four years."

The condition of these people is another awful indictment of Germany and her kultur.

Celebrates Birthday.

Jack Moyet of Mobile, Ala., U.S.A., celebrated here today. It was a birthday celebration, and marked the attainment of his majority.

This event is chiefly important as showing the age at which he enlisted in the Foreign Legion, that daredevil organization which for years has put fear in the German heart.

Moyet enlisted in this three years ago. He has seen it reduced from a formidable 45,000 fighting men to a mere 2000. This gallant remnant is still in the ring.

I met Moyet here where he is recuperating from a wound received at Soissons during the German smash a month ago. Learning that he has formerly passed some time in Southern California, I became particularly interested in his case.

Of an adventurous disposition, after quitting high school, he made his way west from Mobile and was "busting bronchos" out some place beyond San Bernardino when war broke. He remained comparatively neutral for four or five days, and then suffered in silence for a few months while reading of German atrocities. Finally, he could stand the strain no longer and early in 1915, turning in his saddle and lariat, he took a short cut for France. Arriving here he enlisted in the Foreign Legion for the duration of the war. He doesn't know how much longer it will last, and doesn't care particularly, as long as he can get a German occasionally. He knows that he has killed four, because he was close enough to see them flop, and has a hunch that he may have inadvertently killed a few more while pumping thousands of rounds of ammunition at the enemy through his trusty rifle.

He was in the battle of the Somme in 1916, at Champagne and Verdun in 1917, and at Amiens and Soissons in 1918. It was during the latter engagement on May 31 he received the wound as a result of which he is still hors de combat. This was caused by a fragment of a high-explosive shell striking him in the right arm, but he will not be permanently incapacitated. He will soon be back on the firing line seeing it through to a finish or getting killed in the attempt.

In this exploit he was accompanied by Bob Scanlon, also of Mobile. Scanlon, who is a colored boxer of some renown, enlisted in the Foreign Legion early in the war. They were sent out one evening to locate, and if possible capture, a machine gun which was causing considerable annoyance. They succeeded in their undertaking, and were taking back as prisoners the two Germans in charge of the gun when they found their retreat cut off by a patrol of fifteen Germans.

This made it necessary for them to turn loose their prisoners. Moyet and Scanlon opened fire on the Hun patrol, which was rushing them, and dropped two of them. The patrol closed in and called on them to surrender. They refused. A German officer fired at Moyet's head point-blank with his revolver. He was so close that the powder burned the American's face. Moyet figured that he was a dead one, and was the most surprised fighting gent in the world when the bullets merely grazed his cheek. He whipped out his bayonet and ripped it into the officer's stomach. Meantime, the negro, Scanlon, had pulled out a knife, and had cut another German to ribbons. When the officer fell the rest of them scampered back to their trenches. Moyet and Scanlon shot two of them in the back, which is sometimes the only way possible to shoot a German. The two legionaries made their way back to their own trenches, but in the way Moyet received the aforementioned wound in the arm from a high-explosive shell.

editions refer primarily registration, but there are phases of the draft to Within a week or day of registration, all will receive a question- respect to the mailing questionnaire, registrants understand that the government holds that failure to receive a questionnaire does not constitute an excuse for not filing one with the local board having jurisdiction over the registrant.

Attention is called to the significant clause in the third edition of the questionnaire, Section C of "Notice to Registrant or Interested person," which, in brief, says that the mailing of such questionnaire or the entry of date of such mailing shall constitute the giving of notice to the registrant and all concerned, and shall charge the registrant and all concerned with notice of the day upon which such duty shall be performed or the beginning of time allowed for the filling out of the questionnaire and returning it to the local board.

WHAT NEGLECT MEANS.

Failure to return the questionnaire seven days after the date appearing on it will result in loss of all rights and privileges in the draft. This would also prevent the registrant or his wife or other interested person from claiming deferred classification. Failure to claim this will result in the registrant, if physically fit, being placed in Class 1 G and cause him to be subject to immediate service.

Therefore it behooves the registrant to watch either the newspapers or the classification lists posted at the headquarters of his local board, in case he does not get a questionnaire within a reasonable time.

If the registrant does not understand the questionnaire, he should seek advice, which will be given free by experienced lawyers at the Legal Advisory Board headquarters, No. 518 Marsh-Strong Building. The best advice, given by board members, is, "If in doubt, make sure you are right." Failure to register, a crime, punishable by one year in prison, may lead to more serious charges, such as desertion, which can bring a sentence of twenty years. Technically all men within the prescribed ages are soldiers of the United States now. It is urged that all read the cover page of the questionnaires carefully.

JUST A FEW "CAN'TS."

There are certain things with relation to the army you cannot do. You cannot enlist now in any branch of the service, army, navy or Marine Corps. You cannot enter an officers' training school unless you become a part of the big Liberty Army, where you will have an equal chance with other men for promotion and can file an application for entry to such a school providing you get in and work and make your abilities apparent. You do not have to be a noncommissioned officer to obtain appointment to these schools.

You can register at any registration place within your district, but not outside the district, unless you register in advance, because you anticipate being away on September 12. If you do not speak English, interpreters will aid you in answering your questions and in filling out your questionnaire later.

In this draft, not even the draft officials themselves are exempt, and will have to register as do all others. Men employed by the Emergency Fleet Corporation, of whom there are about 15,000 altogether in Los Angeles county, and who may not be considered necessary at their employment, will not be held there, it is understood.

THE QUESTIONNAIRES.

In the earlier drafts, according to selective service boards, a very high percentage of the cases where men did not get what they call a "square deal," as Adjt.-Gen. Borree put it, were due to a misunderstanding of the questionnaires. The greater number of these were among the foreign-speaking. The intention of the questionnaire is primarily to place men in the classes which indicate their respective military responsibility.

Here are a few samples:

If a man has a wife dependent upon him for support, it is not intended that his wife, even though she be skilled and able to work, be forced to take up an occupation. The wife can claim deferred classification on his behalf as her sole means of support, if she does not receive a regular income from a source other than her husband's employment.

By the regulations of the Selective Service Act, a man has certain defined rights, among them the right to claim exemption or deferred classification. If neither he, nor his wife, nor other dependents claim deferred classification or exemption for him, he is automatically placed in class 1-G, and is subject to immediate call to service.

DUTY OF BOARDS.

Through a misunderstanding, an idea has gained strength that no claim for exemption or deferred classification is necessary to get it. National draft officials state that to place men in classes automatically without referring to claims for deferred classifications or exemption would require months of hard labor on the part of boards. Under the present system, the board members merely pass on whether deferred classification is claimed for a registrant, and, if it is, they pass on his claims for the same, thus eliminating a great deal of work. A wife may claim these rights for a man, or he may do so himself.

There are very few persons actually exempt from military service, but within the reading of the regulations and from the drafts already made, it is shown that most selective service men are taken from one of the ten divisions of class No. 1. There is only one exempted class, that known as class No. 5. All persons placed in that class are either discharged or exempted.

THE EXEMPT CLASS.

Class No. 5 includes: (A,) Legislative, executive or judicial officers of the United States, or a State, Territory or District of Columbia; (B,) duly ordained ministers; (C,) divinity students on May 18, 1917, or on May 20, 1918, or since May 20, 1918, preparing for the ministry, or medical students under same conditions in recognized schools; (D,) person in military or naval service; (E,) alien enemy; (F,) friendly alien claiming exemption; (G,) person physically or mentally unfit for service; (H,) morally unfit to be a soldier (prisoners;) (I,) licensed pilot employed in his vocation; (J,) person discharged from army on ground of alienage or upon diplomatic request, and two new classifications, namely, (K,) subject of cobelligerent country who has enlisted or enrolled in the forces of such country under the terms of a reciprocal military service treaty, and (L,) subject or citizen of neutral country who has declared his intention of becoming a citizen of the United States and has withdrawn such intention under provisions of the act of Congress of July 9, 1918. He thus loses his right to citizenship later.

These are the only persons who are entitled to exemption. All others are deferred classifications and a man is entitled, by the spirit and letter of the regulations, to claim and receive classification according to his military responsibility only. The law expects no more of him, but it does expect that.

THE OTHER CLASSES.

All registrants placed in Classes 2, 3 and 4 will thus be temporarily discharged, subject to call only when Class 1 has been exhausted, to be called only in the order of 2, 3 and 4. If a man signs the "waiver of claim of exemption or deferred classification," he thus places himself automatically in Class 1-G, and is subject to immediate call. If he has a wife or children mainly dependent upon him for support, he would be placed in Class 4-A.

Other divisions of Class 4 are: (B,) mariner employed in sea service of citizen or merchant in the United States; (C,) necessary sole managing, controlling or directing head of necessary agricultural enterprise; (D,) the same with relation to an necessary industrial enterprise. Class 4 men will be called only after Classes Nos. 1, 2 and 3 are exhausted.

Class 3 has twelve divisions, as follows: (A,) man with dependent children (not his own,) but toward whom he stands in the relation of a parent; (B,) man with dependent aged or infirm parents; (C,) man with dependent helpless brothers or sisters; (D,) county or municipal officer; (E,) highly trained fireman or policeman in service of municipality—this formerly said for three years; (F,) necessary customs house clerk; (G,) necessary employee of United States in transmission of mail; (H,) necessary artificer or workman in United States armory or arsenal; (I,) necessary employee in service of United States; (J,) necessary assistant, associate or hired manager of necessary agricultural enterprise; (K,) necessary highly trained specialized, technical or mechanical expert of necessary industrial enterprise; (L,) necessary assistant or associate manager of necessary industrial enterprise. Class 3 men will not be called until Classes Nos. 1 and 2 are exhausted.

IN CLASS TWO.

Class 2 includes: (A,) married man with chilrren, or father of motherless children, where such wife or children or such motherless children are not mainly dependent upon his labor for support for reason that there are other reasonably certain sources of adequate support (excluding earnings or possible earnings from labor of wife) available, and that the removal of registrant will not deprive such dependents of support; (B,) married man, without children, whose wife, although registrant is engaged in a useful occupation, is not mainly dependent upon his labor for support, for the reason that the wife is skilled in some special class of work which she is physically able to perform, and in which she is employed, or in which there is an immediate opening for her under conditions that will enable her to support herself decently and without suffering or hardship; (C,) necessary skilled farm laborer in necessary agricultural enterprise; (D,) necessary skilled industrial laborer in necessary industrial enterprise; (X,) men transferred to Class 2 from any other class for any cause whatsoever and men not otherwise classified. Class 2 men will not be called until Class 1 men have all been called.

TO IMMEDIATE CALL.

Class 1 men are those subject to be called for immediate service. It is not a deferred class. It includes: (A,) single men without dependent relatives; (B,) married man, with or without children, or father of motherless children, who has habitually failed to support his family; (C,) married man dependent upon wife for support; (D,) married man, with or without children, or father of motherless children, man not usefully engaged, family supported by income independent of his labor; (E,) unskilled or not a necessary farm laborer; (F,) unskilled or not a necessary industrial laborer; (G,) registrant by or in respect of whom no deferred classification is claimed; (H,) registrant who fails to submit questionnaire and in respect of whom no deferred classification is claimed; (I,) registrant not deferred and not included in any of above divisions; (X,) man taken from deferred classifications and transferred to Class 1 for immediate service, or not otherwise classified.

416 W. 4th, Los Angeles, Cal., August 20th, 1918.
Drs. White & Wainwright:
Gentlemen: About two months ago I noticed your ad in the L. A. Times and though I confess I did not have much faith in your ability at that time to cure a long-standing case of piles (25 years) such with which I was suffering. Especially without an operation. My condition at that time was such I could not walk three blocks without acute pain. In fact, I got no relief day nor night; I was in torment. It was an absolute necessity that led me to answer your ad that decided me to take your treatment. At the first treatment you put a stop to the loss of blood. The relief I experienced changed me from a doubting Thomas to a firm believer. In your wonderful methods today the piles have completely disappeared. I have not lost a drop of blood since that first treatment. Have gained in weight and strength. Am well and happy. Wish I was able to tell everybody suffering from this dread affliction of your scientific methods and almost miraculous cures. Words are too inadequate to convey to you my heartfelt gratitude at my comparatively painless, speedy and complete recovery. Drs. W. & W., I thank you. Yours truly,

We Lived Before We Were Born

Our Primeval Childhood

By DR. JAMES E. TALMAGE

Of the Council of the Twelve, Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, Salt Lake City, Utah.

It is a grievous error to assume that mortal birth marks the beginning of one's individual existence. Quite as reasonable is it to hold that death means annihilation of the soul. The pre-existence or ante-mortal state of man is as plainly affirmed by Scripture as is the fact of life beyond the grave.

We are too prone to regard the body as the man, and this mistake breeds the thought that life in the flesh is all there is to existence. There is in man an immortal spirit that existed as an intelligent being before the body was begotten, and that shall continue to exist as the same immortal individual after the body has gone to decay. Divine revelation attests the solemn truth that man is eternal.

No one who accepts the Holy Bible as the word of God, can consistently deny the pre-existence of the Lord Jesus Christ. In the first chapter of the Gospel written by John ,Christ is designated as the Word, and the Savior's pre-existence and primeval Godship are thus set forth: "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God." We read further: "And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us." (John i:1 and 14.)

Our Lord's personal testimony is to the same effect. Of the disciples he asked: "What and if ye shall see the Son of Man ascend up where he was before?" (John vi:62.) And on another occasion He averred: "I came forth from the Father, and am come into the world: again, I leave the world, and go to the Father." (John xvi:28.) In solemn prayer He implored, "And now, O Father, glorify Thou me with Thine own self with the glory which I had with Thee before the world was." (John xvii:5.)

Nevertheless, as to earthly birth, Christ was born a Child and lived to maturity as a Man among men. Even as His bodily birth was the union of a pre-existent spirit with a tabernacle of flesh and bones, such also is the birth of every human being.

Everyone of us was known by name and character to the Father, who is "the God of the spirits of all flesh" (Numbers xvi:22; xxvii:16) in our ante-mortal or primeval childhood; and from among the hosts of His unembodied children God chose for special service on earth such as were best suited to the accomplishment of His purposes. In illustration, consider the Lord's definite revelation to Jeremiah, the prophet: "Before I formed thee in the belly I knew thee; and before thou camest forth out of the womb I sanctified thee, and I ordained thee a prophet unto the nations." (Jeremiah i:5.)

More than twelve centuries before Jeremiah's time God revealed unto Abraham the fact of the pre-existence of the spirits of mankind, as also the diverse capacities of those spirits, and the Divine purpose in preparing the earth for their habitation. Thus runs the record:

"Now the Lord had shown unto me, Abraham, the intelligences that were organized before the world was; and among all these there were many of the noble and great ones; And God saw these souls that they were good, and he stood in the midst of them, and he said: 'These I will make my rulers; for he stood among those that were spirits, and he saw that they were good; and he said unto me: 'Abraham, thou are one of them; thou wast chosen before thou wast born.' And there stood one among them that was like unto God, and he said unto those who were with him: 'We will go down, for there is space there, and we will take of these materials, and we will make an earth whereon these may dwell; And we will prove them herewith, to see if they will do all things whatsoever the Lord their God shall command them; And they who keep their first estate shall be added upon; and they who keep not their first estate shall not have glory in the same kingdom with those who keep their first estate; and they who keep their second estate shall have glory added upon their heads forever and ever.'" (Pearl of Great Price, Abraham iii:22-26.)

Our life in the flesh is but one stage in the course of the soul's eternal progress, a link connecting the eternities past with the eternities yet to come. The purpose of our mortal probation is that of education, training, trial and test, whereby we demonstrate whether we will obey the commandments of the Lord our God and so lay hold on the boundless opportunities of advancement in the eternal worlds, or elect to do evil and forfeit the boon of citizenship in the Kingdom of Heaven.

The condition upon which mankind may have place in that Kingdom is compliance with the requirements laid down by Jesus Christ, the Redeemer and Savior of the world, whose name is "the only name which shall be given under heaven, whereby salvation shall come unto the children of men." (Pearl of Great Price, Moses vi:52.)

If You Knew What I Know, You Could Save a Lot of Money

The writer knows whereof he writes and what he writes is right—absolutely right. Leather is getting to be one of the scarcest commodities. Government restrictions (war measures) are curtailing the manufacture of many kinds of leather, particularly the colored leathers that have been so much in demand for women's shoes. Women's high shoes with leather tops are not being manufactured at all.

Women who delight in showing a pretty foot and trim ankle encased in colored kid will have difficulty in the future in securing their favorite footwear. If they do succeed in finding footwear to meet their fancy, prices will be very much higher than those prevailing at present; therefore, it behooves every daughter of Eve to lay in a supply of footwear right now, and here is where the knowledge possessed by the writer means a huge opportunity to the reader if she remembers and acts. The Walker shoe stores (there are two of them) are selling some of the prettiest high kid boots imaginable at $4.85, $5.85 and $6.85, offering a direct saving of from two to four dollars a pair. Black, white, brown, gray, tan and some combinations. The very latest and most approved lasts. Toes, heels and every little detail right down to the minute. Oxfords and pumps, too, are included. The styles are most attractive and the values nothing short of wonderful. Walker stores are located at 709 South Broadway, just below Seventh street, and 429 South Broadway, between Fourth and Fifth streets.—Advertisement.

FREIGHT RULES TO BE CHANGED.

"Shipping Day" Schedule Goes Into Effect Soon.

New Conservation Move by the Government .

Plan Applies to Less than Carload Lots.

Revolutionary changes in the manner of receiving and forwarding less than carload lots of dead freight will be installed on all government-controlled steam railroads in California, beginning September 15. The change is designated as the "Shipping Day" schedule which has been in operation on many eastern roads for some time.

The plan is a war measure designed to conserve fuel, equipment, motive and man power and involves consolidation of service to avoid unnecessary duplication at common points. It also provides for the receipt and forwarding of less than carload lots to points having a limited volume of traffic on certain days only. Car conservation is the principal object, aside from the saving of men necessary by reason of the number who will come within the new draft.

The Pacific Electric road does not come under the new change, not being a Federally-controlled road, and shipments by this line will be the same as in the past.

WORKING EXPLAINED.

Explaining the workings of the plan, F. P. Gregson, traffic manager of the Associated Jobbers of Los Angeles, said yesterday:

"The acceptance of freight on certain days is purely a conservation move on the part of the government, and while there may appear many inequalities, yet the shipping public should patriotically co-operate with the San Francisco District Freight Traffic Committee, which will have the adjustment of complaints. At the same time where they see there is an injustice being done they should immediately report the same.

"At Los Angeles there are three steam lines controlled by the government, and shippers have been sending their freight by the Southern Pacific, Santa Fe and the Salt Lake Route. The new plan calls for certain points to have one, two or three shipping days, according to the volume of freight which is destined to or originates at this center. For example, the valley line of the Southern Pacific will accept freight on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, while the coast line will take freight on Monday, Wednesday and Friday. As another example, Pasadena, which has three lines running through it, will send all its freight over the Santa Fe.

NO DISCRIMINATION.

"The Federally-controlled roads are publishing a complete schedule for distribution, showing the stations involved in their alphabetical order, and every Los Angeles shipper should become familiar with it. Shippers should also watch carefully the workings of this new plan in order that Los Angeles receives no unfavorable discrimination. We believe the inauguration of this plan will create an unusually heavy reception of freight on certain days and are especially apprehensive of the Southern Pacific, as the burden of the less than carload lots will be placed on that line.

"It is also understood that shipments of freight will be received only on forwarding days. In addition to the regular forwarding days for dead freight, there will be special days, as at present, for perishables, explosives, and oil which are explained in the circular issued by the Federal-controlled roads. All traveling salesmen should be instructed to watch the workings of the new arrangement closely to see that competing points are not receiving preferential treatment in any way."

FOR JOHN BULL.

Varied Programme Offered at British Ambulance Afternoon Teas.

"My Uncle John Bull helps your Uncle Sam—come to tea with us and help both," is the invitation extended from the screens of downtown motion-picture houses on behalf of the British ambulance afternoon teas and entertainments given at the Westminster Hotel headquarters, No. 111 East Fourth street, daily from 3:30 to 5:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Margaret Hamm, who pours on Thursdays, plans a special war relief programme for her day each week. For this week an attractive programme is being arranged. Pretty Miss Alma Reubens, photoplay star, may be among the entertainers.

Last Thursday Grace Manners Brougham, an English woman visiting here, recited several of her brother's war poems, notably "The Bloomin' Blighter's Dead;" G. Hadyn Jones, accompanied by Miss Grace Jones, sang a tenor solo; L. R. Wharton made a four-minute address, and Mary Louise Hand of the Agnes Woodward School of Whistling completed a well-received programme.

Mrs. Evelyn Robinson has arranged the following programme for the luncheon entertainment at the society's headquarters Tuesday: Mirian White and Signor Brave, in solos and duets; Vivian Stafford and L. L. DeWitt, steel guitars; Eunice May, vocalist; Ruth Thompson, pianiste; Cleta VerDon, soloist, accompanied on the piano by Nor VerDon.

Mrs. L. N. Bennett and Mrs. Dora L. Mellette will be in charge of the luncheon, assisted by young Red Cross workers.

BRITISH GUNNER TO SPEAK THIS EVENING.

"Chief Gunner Waite," serving aboard the English battleship Irresistible when it was sunk at the entrance of the Dardanelles in 1915, and eleven times wounded in trench fighting, will talk at a war savings meeting this evening at 7:45 p.m. in the Farnum Theater at No. 1234½ West Seventh street. His subject will be, "American Democracy vs. German Kultur."

Mothers and relatives of men in service are cordially invited, and Chief Gunner Waite also extends a special invitation to German sympathizers, Socialists and I.W.W.'s.

Admiral's Daughters Don Khaki.

Mrs. Austin L. Sands (left;) Miss Rhoda Fullam,
Daughters of Admiral W. F. Fullam and second lieutenants in the new San Diego Woman's Motor Corps.

At San Diego.

FIRST WOMAN'S MOTOR CORPS REAL WAR UNIT.

COL. HERBERT R. FAY, who mustered into the State military service the San Diego Women's Motor Corps recently at San Diego, experienced serious difficulty when he attempted to give the military orders to the trimly-uniformed young women soldiers. Not because the soldiers did not obey readily, but because the chivalrous instincts of the colonel rebelled against ordering the young women about in a peremptory manner.

"Please fall in, ladies," ordered the colonel, and then, "Ahem, I suppose I should not say please." "Ladies, please go over the top, would sound funny, wouldn't it?" So the officer sternly repeated his command, "Fall in."

A second time he had to choose between duty and chivalry, when, as the soldiers posed for a picture, they demurred at removing their caps and mussing their hair just for a picture." The colonel was adamant, however, because caps must be removed according to regulations when the women took the oath of allegiance.

But in spite of difficulties arising from time-honored customs and institutions, the women are serious in their work and have already performed most efficient service.

IN DEFENSE RESERVE.

This first woman's unit in the United States to be recognized as a part of a State military establishment, is to be known as the Motor Corps of the Home Defense Reserve of the State of California. The members are all skilled operators of motor vehicles and have volunteered their services and motor vehicles for military duty. Other units will be organized throughout the State.

In San Diego the members have devoted their time to ambulance work for the United States service hospital, and to driving salvage trucks for the Red Cross and motor service for the war camp community service. They will assist in the fourth Liberty Loan drive and similar campaigns. They are receiving light infantry drill three times a week at Balboa Park from an officer of the Twenty-first Infantry, and also training in motors in an automobile school.

ORGANIZER OF UNIT.

Maj. Eva Bird Bosworth, the young woman who organized the unit, has been made commanding officer of the State organizations, the rank of major having been conferred by Adjt.-Gen. Borree. Mrs. Bosworth is a newspaper woman, who, in addition to her duties as such, has organized the unit.

Mrs. Ethel B. Doyle, who is captain of the San Diego unit, is a young widow who was formerly a trained nurse, which training is necessary for the motor corps as well as motor vehicle efficiency. Mrs. Luther M. Kennett, first lieutenant of the unit, was former golf champion of the State, and has been prominent in athletics at Coronado, where she is a leader in the smart set. She devotes her entire time now to driving the Red Cross salvage truck about San Diego. Mrs. Austin L. Sands and Miss Rhoda Fullam, daughters of Admiral W. F. Fullam, are the second lieutenants of the unit.

"We hope to go to France some day if they need us, and if not we can at least do our part here," said Miss Rhoda Fullam in speaking of her enlistment.

Capt. Petar Perunovitch.

SERBIAN NATIONAL POET ON RECRUITING MISSION.

Wounded Five Times, He Comes to Enlist Countrymen for Overseas.

"TODAY Serbia is without bread and has nothing to eat. I never expect to see alive my former comrades. But we do not mind the sufferings—all we want is to be free. We look now to America to save us. Every one of the Allies has faith in the United States."

In faltering English, recently acquired, but with sublime faith and a firm, poetic consciousness of the justice of the cause of his country, Capt. Petar Perunovitch, national bard and poet of Serbia and author of the Serbian national ballad, yesterday told of Hun atrocities in his erstwhile peaceful little country. The "rape of Serbia," he asserts, has been even worse than that of Belgium, for the Central Powers, particularly Bulgaria, have done all in their power to decimate the population, in accomplishing which they have proselyted where they have not seen fit to plunder, outrage and burn.

Since the Serbian people first made war on the Turks, some 500 years ago, stated the captain yesterday, never has such a state of vandalism and barbarism existed as now. Bulgaria has had no mercy on things Serbian, he says, and the most costly libraries, the rarest histories and the most noted schools have ruthlessly been destroyed.

BULGARIAN NAMES.

Every Serbian has been given a Bulgarian name, and 10,000 young Serbian girls, ranging in age from 14 to 16 years, have been sold by the Bulgars to Turkish harems. The entire populations of towns and villages have been locked in churches and schools and burned to death. Sixty children and forty women were imprisoned in his uncle's schoolhouse and the torch applied by mixed Bulgarian, Austrian and German troops. People who fled to the protection of the churches were locked in and the buildings set fire, he says.

"In the same place as my uncle's school, 200 old men and women were hanged by the Bulgars and Austrians from the branches of the plum orchards. Girls and young women in my country from 16 to 31 years of age have been insulted, outraged, and nearly all have been afterwards killed. The enemy took all the little boys to Germany, there to convert them to kultur, and they have tried to destroy every trace of our historic Serbian population.

"Germany and Austria tried to buy our Serbian generals, but they were told that every one would die first. The same tactics were tried in our country as in Russia, but we have no Bolsheviki. Serbia is one country that has stuck with the Allies and that cannot be bought. We still have men fighting the Huns in Saloniki."

THE SERBIAN TARGEDY.

On September 20, 1915, Serbia had 200,000 men banked against 1,200,000 of the enemy, Capt. Perunovitch stated. And they withstood the Boche until November 17. Battles were fought throughout the Serbian mountains, with the result that every town was covered with Serbian blood. A crossing was made to Albania on November 17, where the Serbians, including both soldiers and thousands of terror-stricken refugees, proceeded to the Adriatic.

"Albania has been the scene of our great Serbian tragedy," said the captain sadly. "No one will ever know how many of my people died. There were no roads, no food, nothing but snow and ice and mountains, mountains, mountains.

"In Moisjoit, one of the Albanian mountain hamlets, 20,000 young boys about 18 years old died from hunger and exposure. From 15,000 to 20,000 soldiers, women and children died from exposure alone in Elbasan. The rest of our refugees fled to the island of Corfu, where they were saved by the French. If it had not been for them, all would have died. Even after this, 10,000 died from diseases contracted in their flight, and thousands perished from frozen limbs and bodies."

America and the Red Cross have been the saving grace of Serbia, the captain declared. Only for the Red Cross soup kitchens and its material aid there would be almost no Serbians alive today, he said. Now, he asserts, all Serbian hope is vested in this country. Large numbers of Serbs have left the continent and are living here. The rest are struggling along.

HIS MISSION HERE.

Capt. Perunovitch was born in Ostrog, Montenegro, thirty years ago. He was educated at first in the Austrian schools, but finished in Serbia. On his final graduation he became a teacher in the normal training school at Pakrac, Slavonia, whither he was sent by his government to spread Serbian propaganda. As the national bard he has written large numbers of patriotic songs, and Serbians here state that a large degree of credit is due him for having sustained the morale of his troops.

The captain, who wears a royal decoration, is here in the interests of Serbian recruiting. He has been invalided to the United States, after having been wounded five times, and while here has recruited nearly 6000 Serbians for his country's army.

California, he expects, will yield several thousand more, and while here he will, through his connection with the Serbian War Mission of New York City, make every appeal for soldiers.

Capt. Petar Perunovich.

WOMEN WITH AUTOS WANTED.

Emergency Drivers Issue a Call for Volunteers in Patriotic Work.

"The Emergency Drivers" are under such pressure that 100 more drivers could be employed in their volunteer service, and patriotic women who own and operate their own motor cars are urged by the commander to enlist for at least one day a week.

In addition to the Federal and army and navy bureaus, the Emergency Drivers are now serving all patriotic calls possible, the War Savings fund, the Councils of Defense, the Salvation Army war service, Soldiers' and Sailors' Welfare, and many others, and the need for more women to pledge their automobiles, driven by themselves, for one or more days per week, is great.

An application to Mrs. Ralph E. Starkweather, commander, No. 502 The Rex Arms, headquarters of the Emergency Drivers, either in person or by telephone, Main 9560, will receive prompt attention.

TO CONVENE AT SAN DIEGO.

The September term of the United States District Court will convene in San Diego on Tuesday, Judge Bledsoe presiding. The office of the United States District Attorney will be represented by Assistants Clyde L. Moody and Lyle W. Rucker. The court will continue for the balance of the week.

Incorrigible.

IN THE WAR AT SEVENTY-TWO.

Veteran of Civil Struggle is Again at Front.

Illinois Attorney Writes to His Niece Here.

In Relief Work Among Men on the Battle Line.

At 72, N. G. Van Sant is as incorrigible as when he was a boy of 17. He's "run away" to war again, just as he did fifty-five years ago.

A letter dated July 30 and written from a dugout in France "with all the sounds of war around me," tells his niece, Mrs. F. H. Burton of this city, how he is cheering up the grandsons of the men who fought side by side with him in 1864, and what warfare of today is like.

"While I am in my dugout, boom, boom, boom! a battery of heavy artillery is bombarding the Boche line not far from where I am sitting. We get shelled twice each day quite regularly, and this morning things were unusually lively—aircraft guns, machine guns, bursting shells, and all the noises of war.

"I was standing near a squad of men here two weeks ago, when a bursting shell killed six and wounded five. I heard the shell coming, and made myself as small as possible under my helmet." He then explains that an intervening wall stopped any shrapnel that started his way.

In the Civil War, when he was only 17, he ran away from home and fought with the Union forces. Now he is 72 years young and a dignified Illinois attorney. That did not stop him from "running away" again and serving with the Salvation Army workers at the actual front in France. And the fact that he had just recovered from a hospital siege with several broken ribs and a fractured collar bone, sustained in an automobile accident, did not make him hesitate an instant, either.

"I am having a great experience here at the front with the fighters, serving them in every way possible," he tells his niece. "I never felt that I had a more worth-while job in my life and shall always be glad of this experience and this opportunity. We have a fine army and I am proud of them. A good many Christian boys among them, and our religious meetings are well attended.

"I am quite a curiosity among the boys, having been a soldier in the Civil War, which closed fifty-four years ago. They call me 'dad,' and seem to love me very much and give me fine attention when I am speaking to them.

"The quarters here are in a big wine cellar which is shell-proof, and we live there by day and sleep in this man-made cave at night, and let the shells burst, and simply count them when they do not come too fast.

"I write a long letter each week to our home daily, and hope to have the letters pasted in my scrap-book for my grandchildren to read."

Mr. Van Sant's two nieces, Mrs. Burton and Mrs. C. F. Stenz, live in Los Angeles. His brother, Samuel Van Sant, was formerly Governor of Minnesota.

FOR CITY ICE PLANT.

Councilman Criswell will Propose Municipality Go Into the Business.

When the City Council meets next Tuesday morning, Councilman Criswell will introduce a resolution advocating the acquiring or building of an ice plant by the city. He says that the strike of ice wagon drivers is causing large quantities of food to be wasted for want of ice for household refrigerators, and he believes that the city might, at little expense go into the ice business and meet the needs of the public, at the same time realizing a moderate profit out of the business.

He will ask that the proposition be referred to the Public Service Committee for careful investigation.

Suits, Frocks, that Speak Fashion's Last Word

A—Smart Suit

—It's of gray cheviot, with a bit-longer-than-finger-tip-length coat; one of those "efficient-looking" suits that sort of suggests a woman of the alert, progressive type. Skirt is straight-belted and conveniently pocketed. Coat has two box plaits below waistline in back, is black button trimmed and gray satin lined. This suit $29.75.

B—Stunning Frock

—When you see the row after row of black buttons trimming this pretty navy serge frock, you are quite apt to begin to "Rich man, poor man, beggar man, thief"—there are so MANY buttons the game would be interesting! Then, too, there is row after row of black braid, for further embellishment. Skirt is pleated back and front; plain on sides. Miss Business Girl, this is YOUR frock! $29.75.

C—With Excellent Lines

—A suit of nut brown gabardine trimmed with buttons in groups of three. Coat has wide tucks, both front and back, from shoulder to belt—then, presto! from the belt downward the "tucks" continue as pleats! A trim, well-tailored suit of exceptional lines—a representative of The Broadway's idea of value at $29.75.

D—Russian Blouse Frock

—A beautiful dress of fine French serge, with Russian blouse that is separate. Rows of flat black braid and serge-covered ball buttons, with loops form the trimming. Neck is square cut; belt wide and flat. A dress that would be becoming to the slight or the stout—the sub-deb or her mother!

—This is $32.50.

When each garment of hundreds and hundreds that are new—and beautiful—and altogether lovely, seems to deserve individual description, and its "picture in the paper"—just what would YOU do, if it devolved upon you to tell Milady Los Angeles about them?

Wouldn't you do as we have done today—picture a few, briefly describe a few—and then send the invitation broadcast, for all to come, to see, to enjoy, to try on?

Word pictures nor artist's sketches cannot do justice to this beginning-of-Autumn season gathering of garments—Garments that are good to look upon, for they speak of the new season—speak Fashion's very last word!

—To You a Word of Invitation

—Will you come soon—make a regular morning of it—to this third floor garment section? Though you may not have the slightest idea of purchasing now, you'll want to know "what's to be worn."

—There are lovely silk frocks, modish jersey and serge dresses, coats for all purposes, tailored and novelty suits.

—In nearly every case present prices are less than later season copies may be obtained for.

—Tailored Suits and Serge Frocks

—Because women want them just now — have been chosen for this advertisement as representatives from vast assortments—take their value, their style, their through and through excellence as typical of present stocks.

—Mademoiselle in school would enjoy wearing such a frock. —This is $19.75.

F—Of Deepest Blue

—There are many things about this unusual dress to give it its unmistakably distinctive air.

—There's a long, flat Mandarin panel in back; there are touches of white satin here and there—a bit of it showing in front, in true "wescut" effect—and there are embroidered rows and criss-crosses in blue and white. The sort of a dress that makes friends at once.

—It's of midnight blue serge and $49.75.

G—Strictly Tailored

—Tweed, with a gray "invisible" stripe has been used in making this good-looking suit that is strictly tailored in all that the words imply. A single black silk arrow-point, above an inverted pleat, at back and two rows of four-hole black buttons are the only attempt at embellishment. The skirt is slim and straight—the coat gray satin lined. This suit $29.75.

H—With Military Swing

—A semi-Norfolk model, belted, pocketed pleated and buttoned in approved style. The coat has a distinctive military swing and a material more appropriate to the style, than the gray and white tweed, in a small broken plaid, of which it is made, could not be found.

—Just a dandy suit at $29.75. Third Floor.

The New Sweaters of Autumn are Winsome Things!

—(Oh, if all the women of the land would voice a protest against the ugly name!)

—But let's forget the name and revel in their loveliness!

—When sweaters first were—they were anything but things of beauty, but now you may almost apply any of the nice adjectives you know, in describing their beauty, and their modishness, and your words do not seem ill placed. Select any one from this new fall stock of them, here on the Second Floor—see how well made; note the clever new ideas in pockets, sash or belt and collar—

—Some have great collar of Angora, in a contrasting color—others are entirely of Angora, with, say, white collar, cuffs and belt and novelty buttons—this description fits a stunning sweater of the new Liberty blue, that we have in mind.

—The tables and cases where these new fall sweaters are being shown are a riot of gay color—for it seems that the new sweaters are more colorful, if possible than those of the summer season.

—We hope you will be in some of these days to see our "sweater show."

—Prices $9.75 to $22.50. Second Floor.

—Must You Have a New Silk Petticoat Soon?

One of the $9.50 Models

—Is a hand-made shape of exceptionally good lines, developed of nut brown velvet, faced with pink Georgette. The crown is one of the modish semi-draped affairs and its sole trimming is a hand-embroidered design in wool yarn.

The Other is a $12.50 Model

—That is delightful with its new, entirely new, ostrich trimming. An irregular-line shape of black panne velvet; crown soft shirred—and an encircling band and bow of narrow black and gold ribbon. Third Floor.

—The Fall Blouses Are Issuing a Call to Those Who Would Know of the New!

—Then that call is for you, Madame—and you Madamoiselle—for where, oh, where is a lady fair who can truthfully fess up to being "not interested" in the new things that are being shown (blouses especially) at the very beginning of a new season?

—The new Georgettes are almost enough to turn one's head—so adorable are they, in fabric, fashioning and coloring.

—There's one—a white model that shows just an edging of blue on collar and cuffs. It has round neck, side fastening and a motif in fine hand embroidery adds an extra touch of daintiness. This one is $6.50.

—Another attractive blouse, of navy Georgette, has an original treatment in the trimming of French knots done in wool zephyr—this, also, is $6.50.

—Still another is a semi-tailored model, with tucked front and roll collar of taffeta.

—A high-neck, pin-tucked-front blouse, has as its ornamentation, small pearl buttons—and yet it is one of the most effective in, say, a dozen or so! Other blouses—scores of them—are here to show you—some priced as little as $5—others as high as $8.95—others at prices in between. Third Floor.

Your New Fall Business Suit Calls for a "Country Club" Blouse

—Indeed it does!

—What better—more appropriate—more practical—more modish, than a smart silk shirt, built along the most approved tailored lines, to wear with the strictly tailored suit?

—Say with a trig, trim blue serge, a "Country Club" shirt—a white background silk with stripes in gold and blue, and a knotted black bow tie or four-in-hand of black.

—The Country Club is correct in every detail—made by makers of men's shirts—and in a way to make the strongest kind of an appeal to the "tailor-made-girl"—no matter how critical she may be.

—In sizes 34 to 44—at prices from $5.95 to $7.95.

—To make sure that you are getting the genuine "Country Club" shirt for women, you must come to The Broadway for it—it is here exclusively. Third Floor.

INFLUENCES OF THE ARMY GOOD

Moral Atmosphere of Camps is Wholesome.

Officer at Kearny Compiles Religious Census.

Figures Show Soldiers Turn to Spiritual Things.

From all sides questions are being asked army officers regarding the religious and moral aspect of camps in this country and how the soldiers will be influenced here and abroad for good or bad. Many of the inquiries indicate a subtle pro-German inference that the army is not a wholesome place for young men. This is not so. In fact army life has a beneficient influence upon the men, which works toward their moral and social betterment.

Only recently an officer at Camp Kearny, on his own initiative, made what might be called a religious canvass of the men in the development battalion; men who for one reason or another are unable at the present time to go to France. It may be that they are not physically fit for service overseas, though they may perform valuable work in this country, or they may have been simply crowded out of a regiment or other unit which was up to war strength.

This officer was a graduate of Cornell, a man devoted to his special work, which was not that of an army chaplain, nor in connection with any religious organization. His figures are startling and indicate that the army is doing much for the soldiers.

FEW CHURCH MEMBERS.

He found few enthusiastic about religion. These men, it must be remembered, are for the most part practically raw recruits. Generally speaking they have not had an opportunity to benefit from any influence that the army might cast about them. It takes months really to "get under their skin," according to officers who followed these conditions. It was also found that about 90 per cent. of these men were not members of any church. That leaves but 10 per cent. really church members. Not that being a church member constitutes goodness, but it does indicate that most of these men were not thinking seriously of religion. Going further, it was found that only 30 per cent. of these men, about 3500 at the time, admitted they had ever gone to church.

No figures, of course, are available regarding the change that is often wrought in the fighting man's heart and soul. It is not a thing for tabulation. But a constant observer for months at Camp Kearny can say truthfully that the many sides of life at a camp bring a man home to God. One army chaplain in talking to a gathering of soldiers declared that they "surely are going to heaven, so make yourselves ready and worthy."

This same man could not stand still and listen to a hyper-religious visitor at camp repeatedly say that the "boys were surely going to hell by joining the army." The chaplain immediately went out and "talked" a sermon to the men that they were on a more sure road to heaven in the army than out of it, especially the American army.

GOOD INFLUENCES.

The reason is not hard to find. The influences in the army are for good. It is not a case of last resort, for there are many kinds of entertainment in camp, from a wild minstrel show or company smoker to a lecture on how to care for the body. A clean body is one of the first requirements of the army and this is strictly enforced at Camp Kearny. In the trenches it is a court-martial offense on the part of an officer if it is learned that one of his men failed to wash his feet in the morning or whenever the opportunity affords each day.

The body being clean the men seek a pastime and all the forms of entertainment at army cantonments in this country—and the same condition obtains in France—are of a wholesome nature. One learns something new and valuable every day at a military camp. While the Sammy is not surrounded by a lot of preachers of creeds, the influences into which he is thrown are of such a nature that the man is liable, nine times out of ten, to change his way of thinking, and his attitude toward things spiritual. It is a safe bet that the 90 per cent. of men in the battalion mentioned will all feel that they are better men for having been in the army.

TEN THOUSAND MAY TRAIN AT HARBOR.

NEW BUILDINGS WILL INCREASE GREATLY THE ACCOMMODATIONS THERE.

The end of voluntary enlistments and the approach of the new draft is having its effect at the army and navy training stations at the harbor. Few men are now being received, but when the new draft is made it is expected that they will be sent there in greater numbers than ever before.

Under the old plan of enlistments, men were constantly coming and going. Under the new plan, the stations will be conducted more as in times of peace. The men will come in larger classes and be given more thorough training, remaining here for longer periods.

When the accommodations now being built are completed about 10,000 men can be housed at the harbor training stations. At times, quarters have been pretty well crowded in the past and it is expected that under the operation of the new draft law, which will induct men into the various branches of the service where most needed, there will be further need for all the facilities there for some time to come.

Several thousand men have already been sent into both the land and sea forces from the harbor. Many a young ensign in the Atlantic owes his rank to the effective work of the naval training station, and in the ranks of the engineers in France are men who got their first experience out at Point Fermin, where the big guns are located.

FARNUM TO BE SOLDIER

BUT WILL MAKE AT LEAST ONE MORE PICTURE.

By Grace Kingsley.

The slight tipping of the earth toward the south yesterday was caused by the landing of Dustin Farnum at the Port of Los Angeles, on returning from San Clemente with a boatload of fish.

Vacation over, the popular star is laying his plans for the coming year, subject, naturally, to the demands of the new draft. In fact, it is whispered that Mr. Farnum is going after a commission in the army; and there's no question but that Bill Farnum's big brother would look well in shoulder straps.

In the meantime, however, Mr. Farnum is proceeding with arrangements to produce his next feature for release through United Picture Theaters of America, and it is not at all likely that he will be called to the colors before the new picture is finished. It is understood that "Wolf Breed," a story by Jackson Gregory, will be Mr. Farnum's next vehicle, and as the script calls for some unique exteriors, a considerable footage will be filmed in Utah. Winifred Kingston is to play opposite Mr. Farnum in the new film drama.

So successful have been Mr. Farnum's pictures, that it is not unlikely some elaborate plans, outlined before the war, may be revived, and that Mr. Farnum may soon be producing in his own studio.

TRIANGLE IS BUSY ON NEW FEATURES.

Two new feature pictures, starring Olive Thomas and Taylor Holmes, are about to be put into production at the Triangle's Culver City studios. "Carmen Ariza," a screen adaptation of Charles F. Stocking's well-known novel of the same name, has been selected as a vehicle for beautiful Olive Thomas, former Follies favorite, and she and her director, Frank Borzage, are now studying the script and talking over locations. "Carmen Ariza" is a story of Spanish life, and, as many beautiful places can be secured in Southern California, in the old Spanish settlements of cities and in the ancient missions, it is considered that entirely adequate "locations" can be found for the background of the story.

Taylor Holmes's next Triangle picture will be an adaptation of the western comedy, "When the Highbrow Joined the Outfit," by Nina Wilcox Putnam and Norman Jacobsen. Frank Condon is writing the continuity. Lawrence C. Windom will direct.

UNIVERSAL HAS NEW FILMS IN MAKING.

Continuing to run along tranquilly like the w. k. brook, Universal has in work a number of promising stories. Edith Roberts will be seen next in "A Romance for Roma," a comedy-drama of love and adventure written by Joseph Franklin Polland, with Tod Browning directing, and Harry Hilliard playing opposite Miss Roberts.

Having completed "The Brass Bullet," an eighteen-episode serial of mystery and intrigue, directed by Ben Wilson, Juanita Hansen is to take a month's vacation. Priscilla Dean is at work under direction of Jack Dillon on a story by Rex Taylor, entitled "Dealing with Daphne." Pat O'Malley has been engaged to play opposite Miss Dean. Mary Warren, formerly leading woman with William Desmond, has been engaged by Bluebird to play with Carmel Myers in her newest photoplay, "One Bright Idea," which Paul Powell is making from Edgar Franklin's well-known story. M. Rodolpho de Valentina is again playing the lead opposite Miss Myers. Having completed "The Vanity Pool," directed by Ida May Park, Mary MacLaren is having a vacation.

Lovely Betty Compson has been engaged as Monroe Salisbury's leading woman for his newest picture, "Breathes There a Man," a story by George Hull, with scenario by Waldemar Young, and directed by William Wolbert. Dorothy Phillips and her company are now at Bear Valley for the Canadian scenes of "Until We Meet Again," Universal's big war drama. William Stowell is again Miss Phillips's leading man.

LILA LEE DECLARES WILL USE NOAH'S ARK.

Lila Lee, Lasky star, is having as much trouble with animals as a victim of Vernon. A while ago, you remember, a monkey actor led to her getting lost at Catalina, later a baby leopard clawed her, and day before yesterday it was a prairie dog that she had to fondle before a motion-picture camera, which suddenly turned while Lila was registering affection in her sweetest manner and sent its sharp teeth clear through her forefinger. The wound was painful, but after it was cauterized, Miss Lee finished the scene, this time with happier results.

"After this," said Miss Lee, "I shall use only mock turtles and children's Noah's Ark animals."

BREED OF APPLE IS MATTER OF INQUIRY.

"What kind of an apple was it that Eve gave Adam to eat?"

They had just finished shooting the Garden of Eden stuff in "Mother, I Need You," Lloyd Carleton productions new offering, and were sitting around chewing it over, as motion-picture folk are wont to do, when somebody raised the apple question.

Of course, it shouldn't have been asked at all, for that kind of talk never helped win any war. Such questions, in fact, only make war. Everybody looked more vacuous than usual and silence brooded over the studio for nearly five seconds. Then somebody said: "Hedge apple."

"Who said that?" bawled the director. Nobody answered.

"Must have been a winesap," chortled Enid Markey, star of the picture.

"Piffle," quoth Edward Cowen. "I won't venture a name for the apple, but it must have been a green one." Silence. "Give it up," said Lloyd Varleton.

"What do you think about it, Mr. Kreel?" asked Coxen of the secretary, who sat near by on a coil of barbed wire, figuring up the cost of studio chatter.

"Well," said Kreel, reaching for a fresh lead pencil, "judging by the way the game of life has been crabbed, I should say it was a crab apple."

THEATER OWNERS ARE NOW 4-MINUTE MEN.

Members of the Theater Owners' Association were signally honored last Wednesday at the bi-monthly luncheon of the organization, held at Hamburger's Cafe, when it was announced by Marshall Stimson, representing the four-minute men, with whom the picture theaters have been co-operating in an effort to aid the government in its messages to the people, that on September 14 each theater manager would be presented a certificate of membership to the four-minute speakers, in recognition of the assistance rendered the government by the owners and managers of theaters in this city.

The Christie Comedy Company were the guests of honor, and Charles Christie, manager, spoke briefly on the subject of comedy making, while Al Christie introduced the members of his company. Bobby Vernon, who leaves the screen for the Submarine Base tomorrow, sang a farewell ballad, and Smiling Billy Mason and Clarine Seymour likewise sang, while Ethel Lynn, Dorothy Dane and Rose Falconer made short speeches.

J. M. Quinn announced that Mary Pickford would donate a platinum and gold loving cup to the organization's most successful entertainment committee of the year.

Marmalade for Soldiers.

Making orange marmalade may not sound like a particularly patriotic service. Nevertheless, May Allison, Metro star, has found a way to make the delicacy serve an excellent purpose.

Miss Allison is the owner of an orange ranch just outside Los Angeles, and the old colored mammy who has lived with her ever since she was a child in Georgia knows how to make the most delicious orange marmalade in the world. Of the marmalade, a goodly supply is at present being sent to the Red Cross for the use of our boys in the army and navy.

Bessie Love in Desert.

Bessie Love, Vitagraph star, is spending her nights at Mission Inn and her days deep in the hot desert these days, making scenes for her current picture, a film version of Bret Harte's "The Judgment of Bolinas Plain."

Chinese Charlie Chaplin.

A Chinese imitator of Charlie Chaplin is the latest thing in Filmland. His name is Chai Hong, and he works for the L-Ko Company. His impersonation occurs in a scene of "Playing Movies," a comedy directed by Jim Davis, wherein Hong, seeing a picture company at work, decides he can be a Charlie Chaplin.

Cabanne's New One.

Christy Cabanne, who directed the first Taylor Holmes picture, is now going over the script of another Triangle super-production, "When Bearcat Went Dry," and expects to begin shooting with an all-star cast within a week or ten days.

Page Billy Mason.

While the State Women's War Relief announces it made over $2000 at the ball recently given by that organization, at which kisses of picture stars were raffled, it also regretfully states that one bid of $11, by which a certain lady won a kiss from Billy Mason, has not been paid. Now the question arises, why didn't the lady pay? Didn't she like Billy's kisses—or was Billy a slacker?

Withey with Ethel Clayton.

Ethel Clayton has finished her latest Paramount picture, "The Mystery Girl," under the direction of William C. de Mille. Chet Withey will direct Miss Clayton in her next production.

Gum Shoes Go Up.

The price of gum shoes has risen. Bebe Daniels, Rolin star, and other feminine members of the Rolin Company, are forming a "Yellow Dog" Club, to help seek out disloyal citizens.

Doing Her Bit.

Tiny baby Virginia Lee Corbin is making a house-to-house canvass for articles to turn over to the Red Cross salvage department, the Fox starlet using her new car to make the daily rounds.

Sounds Too Good.

A New York society woman, who does not desire to have her name used, is the author of Sessue Hayakawa's next story, on which he will shortly commence work. Moreover, the scenario is a gift. Mr. Hayakawa says it is the best story he has had in a long time.

"I simply offer the suggestion gratis," says the author. "Should you like it, I should be extremely glad to have you use it without payment. If not, don't trouble to return the story, as it was simply written for you, because I so much admire Mr. Hayakawa's work that I should enjoy seeing even an idea of mine translated on the screen by him. Should you by chance use my synopsis, please don't let my name appear in any way."

Coals to Newcastle Note.

"The Curse of the Hour" is the name of a picture, with prohibition as its topic, which was given a preview at Trinity Auditorium, last Tuesday evening, before a large audience. It has a strong and vivid story, and is well played by Edward Coxen and others. Ernest Shipman is controlling the sales.

Furthmann Goes to War.

Jules Eckert Furthmann, noted short story writer, and lately scenario writer for William Russell productions, has enlisted in the United States army service. He left yesterday morning for Oregon, and it is understood has applied for service in the forestry department.

Stage Women to Entertain.

The Stage Women's War Relief is planning a brilliant entertainment, including dancing, vaudeville, and food, for the soldiers and sailors, at the Mason Operahouse, this afternoon.

"Up in the Air."

MADE IN CALIFORNIA: A NEW MUSICAL FARCE.

BY ANTONY ANDERSON.

THE thoughts of youth are long, long thoughts. When they begin with ambition they may ultimately bring youth almost anywhere—even to the tuneful heights and flights of "Up in the Air."

That's exactly what has happened to Dana Hayes. You all remember Dana—the good-looking boy with the nice brown eyes and pleasant smile, who used to sell tickets to the best shows in town, sometimes from one box office, sometimes from another, along Broadway and Spring and Main. For Dana, though only 14 when he began, showed at once that he was as full of the "rising instinct" as a cake of yeast—he effervesced with it, and you simply couldn't keep him down. Not that anybody ever tried, for that obliging smile brought him instant and perpetual popularity.

These ambitious beginnings—these long, long thoughts—assumed shape and form, one by one. A few years ago Dana Hayes left Los Angeles to take charge of things for Pantages in San Francisco. Of course, he kept on thinking, and working—and rising. We had good news of him now and again. Last year he was road manager for Kolb & Dill's "The High Cost of Loving," one of the hilarious successes of several seasons.

You have guessed it. To become a producer—that was the long thought of the youthful Dana. And now, suddenly, and almost unexpectedly, he is a producer, with Ben Geroux, of one of these nondescript but delightful things so dear to the hearts of the pleasure-loving public, a musical farce.

Neither of the young producers knew what fate had up her sleeve for him until a few months ago. Then the script of a musical farce reached their sanctum. It was the joint product of several other clever young men from Los Angeles, Michael Corper and Waldo Twitchell and Arthur Fournier. The fun looked good to Dana & Geroux, and the music sounded catchy. Too, there was pep in the plot, which had more body than most musical-farce stories. When I tell you that the scene is a famous hotel at Coronado Beach, that there is a war scare, and that the all-girl chorus is composed of beautiful young bathers of wealth and fashion, you will at once visualize the possibilities of "Up in the Air"—as Dana & Geroux did.

In truth, "Up in the Air" is a made-in-California affair, and the most of it was made in Los Angeles—which convinces you at once of its sunniness of atmosphere and its richness of quality. Further proof may be had from the critics of the San Francisco papers, for "Up in the Air" ran in the northern city for three weeks at the Cort, and might still be running if it wasn't for the "booking." It is good to know that our own—our librettists and composers and producers— are appreciated abroad. Now that "Up in the Air" will be with us a week, before traveling to Chicago, let us show the world that it profits the prophets to visit their own home town.

Which brings me back to Dana Hayes and the little chat I had with him the other day. Though he is now a producer, I found him as modest, as disinclined to blow his own horn, as he was a dozen years ago. He wanted to give the credit of "Up in the Air" to everybody but himself, though it was he who discovered and fostered it and brought it to full flower.

A theatrical man's first production—I suppose he regards it with the doting fondness, the hopes and the doubts and the fears for the future, with which a new young father looks at a very new young son. Fathers don't lick their little sons into shape, I believe, but I've heard that mother bears do it with their cubs—and that's what I've been doing to 'Up in the Air" from the very first moment I laid my eyes on it, which happened to be the same moment when I knew it was destined to be mine.

"I've kept it with me, and gloated over it, despaired over it, and dreamed dreams the most stupendous and wonderful, dreams of glory and gold—and it almost looks now as if some of those preposterous dreams might come true. The critics tell Ben Geroux and me that they will—and who are we to question the farsightedness of the dramatic critics? Anyway, when all is said and done, 'Up in the Air' certainly 'went' in San Francisco, and if Los Angeles and the East also find it good, then we shall proceed to hack and hew some more on it.

"For the building of a musical farce is all a matter of hacking and hewing the original till its own sponsors wouldn't know it—of adding here and subtracting there—of endless discussions with everybody concerned—of sweat and toil—till, some fine day, you lean back to

"A PERFECT DAY" AT MOROSCO; VAUDEVILLE BILLS.

Mason.

Even such a serious thing as the war may have its humors, for the darkest cloud has its silver lining. Acting on the sensible advice of President Wilson that the people keep their spirits at the highest pitch while engaged in the business of licking the Hun, the authors of the brilliant and merry new musical play, "Up in the Air," have taken the work of the spy for a travesty and built around him a plot affording two hours of tuneful fun. "Up in the Air" has just concluded a highly successful summer engagement in San Francisco, where it was produced by Hayes and Giroux, and it is due to the fortunate circumstance that it is now en tour to the Olympic Theater, Chicago, that Los Angeles theatergoers are to see it at the Mason for one week, beginning tomorrow night. Three Californians are responsible for the book, lyrics and music of this production, which was pronounced by San Francisco critics the most "beautiful and classy" show of its kind ever put forth on the Pacific Coast. Michael Corper and Waldo C. Twitchell have written the libretto and lyrics so smartly and wittily, and Arthur Fournier garnished their story so tunefully that the writers of the Californian metropolis united in the belief that great things may be expected of them in the future.

Morosco.

Beginning with today's matinee, Oliver Morosco will present another new play to Morosco audiences. Frank Mandel's latest comedy, "A Perfect Day," is to be given its first presentation on any stage, and judging from the enthusiasm which seems to flow steadily from everyone who has something to do with the new production, Oliver Morosco will add another hit to his seasonal output. Frank Mandel is the author of many laughing plays. He wrote "The High Cost of Loving," and if this production might be used as a criterion, then "A Perfect Day" should prove as great a joy play as his former successes. The play is something entirely new in comedy construction. Morosco audiences will see one of the most novel and surprising second acts ever put on a stage. Before their eyes, and with the curtain up, an old-fashioned livery stable will change in sixty seconds to a modern garage, with automobiles and other modern vehicles. A typical Morosco cast will be seen in the new production.

Orpheum.

To hear one's favorite song done as it should be by those who wrote it, is always a joy, but one not often realized. The opportunity will prevail at the Orpheum next week, beginning Monday matinee September 9, when L. Wolfe Gilbert and Anatole Friedland, writers of some of the best and most liked of today's numbers, will be top-lined in person, and will give their audiences the true interpretations of their work. Another headliner is Toto, the world famous clown, who brings a big production, put together by Kathleen Clifford with a large company. The act has distinction and merit. Maryon Vadie, the golden-haired dancer from here, now has her own act, associated with Ota Gygi, violinist. Milt Collins, "speaker of the house," appears now as "The Patriot," and has a unique line of talk. Cecil Cunningham remains over, as do Fern and Davis in their weird "Nightmare Review;" Keane and White, with piano and some tricks, and "Levitation."

Burbank.

Many morsels of choice entertainment will be served to Burbank patrons this coming week, when Howard Hickman, in "Blue Blood," and six vaudeville acts, will comprise the new bill. "Blue Blood" is a sensational melodrama of a young man who ruined his life with dissipation, but who discovered his mistake only after it was too late. George Fisher, Mary Mersch, Nona Thomas and Ida Lewis support Mr. Hickman. The vaudeville portion of the bill will consist of Jack Case, in a clever comedy, singing, dancing and talking oddity; Mendell and Gray in a syncopated musical novelty, the Garrity Sisters, singers and dancers; Mort Nathan, well-known songster, featuring the big success, "Daddy Mine," and a big surprise feature, the nature of which the Burbank management refuses to announce.

Pantages.

Novelties and surprises abound on the new Pantages bill for the coming week. Heading the big list is "Temptation," a big girl act, that shows the many things that people have to pass through in their journey in life. Guy D'Ennery and company have a sketch full of dramatic moments, thrills and comedy, which they call "Finders, Keepers." Mystery is the chief element of the offering of Ross-Wyse and company. More of "the dark secret stuff" will be offered by William H. Rogers, who has as his billing a big question mark. Billy Curtis's comedy dogs will please with their funny antics, whil Dot Oatman will offer a number of the latest "jaz" songs

Hippodrome.

The fall road show presented by the Hippodrome is ready and will open at the local theater beginning tomorrow matinee. The headline attractions are all guaranteed to be the best, chosen from the great number now traveling the Hippodrome circuit. Edwin and Lottie Ford will be here with their terpsichorean act. Nellie Kingsbury and Roscoe Munson present "The Devil in Possession," a travesty on one of the near-tragedies of married life. Benny Harrison and company offer an Irish-Hebrew skit. Roth and Roberts's hit is "The Wop and the Cop." Athletes are the Van Alstyne brothers, and hand-stand feats are their share of entertainment. The noisy, humorous, understanding sideshow "spieler" is "Fuller Bull," presented by Van Der Koor. Mr. Potts, of Ernie and Potts, was the tutor and manager of Billy Papke and Mike Gibbons, and he will give a demonstration in boxing.

ESCADRILLE OF STARS.

When bullfrogs in the Flanders mud
  Their big bass viols sound,
As if they love to play against
  The shells that boom around,
And twilight drops its purple veil
  On earth's unsightly scars,
Above the hangar roof appears
  An escadrille of stars.

Souls of airmen brave who passed
  Beyond the zodiac,
And from the glittering gates of God
  No more came flying back,
On flashing wings of silver light
  They navigate the sky,
And o'er the German battle front
  Go speeding fast and high.

Guynemer, Lufberry—all the bold
  Bright soldiers of the blue,
To the beloved tricolor
  And liberty still true,
Are piloting celestial planes
  Through spaces wide and free,
To blaze the aerial way across
  The Rhine to victory.

Daily Prayer.

To Thee, my Father, now I raise
My grateful heart in joyful praise.
I thank Thee, Father, thou hast heard;
I know thou always hear'st my word.
I look to Thee in every need,
And at Thy bounteous table feed.
Thy love enfolds, and breathes through me,
And all Thy creatures; sets them free.
Thy wisdom guides me on my way,
My Father's work to do each day.
Thy life in all around I view,
That life that maketh all things new.
Thy truth it makes me strong, yet meek,
My Father's will to do I seek.
Thy strength upholds me day by day,
For Thou art with me all the way.

—[E. H. S. in Weekly Unity.

Those Celestial Signs.

The occult Magian, versed in subtle art,
  Intent on solving hidden mysteries,
  Nightly observes the slowly-moving skies,
Obscurely shadowed on his ancient chart.

All his quaint patterns of the stars impart
  Disputed knowledge; when a monarch dies,
  Or deeds of honor to enhance the wise,
Rich in their pride, before their souls depart:

But we, consulting those celestial signs,
  Can only wonder where the spirits dwell—
  Long vanished from this world, for weal or woe—
And, wonder as we may, the mind declines
  To answer, whether heaven, or sleep, or hell—
  Our dreams must satisfy—until we go.

On the Old Home Porch.

Scent of honeysuckle
  As the soft night shadows fall,
Little stirs and hushes
  And a sleepy robin's call.

Brush of leaves and whir of wing
  And soundless fall of dew,
And all the magic summer eve
  Is whispering of you!

Scent of honeysuckle
  And a mist before my eyes,
A little wraith of sadness
  Subtle, sweet, before me lies.

Sigh of wind and cricket's note,
  The warm night silence through,
And all my wistful mist of dreams
  Is whispering of you.

POLITICAL PROGRESS IN INDIA.

"It is a popular error that the people of India have no voice whatever in their own affairs. As a matter of truth, the voice of India has an important place in the control of the government. Distinguished Indians are nominated to the viceroy's council, though they are in the minority. Indians hold high places in the judicature. In most public offices many of the important posts are held by natives. In recent years there have been established provincial councils, not elected on a democratic franchise, but balanced; so that there is due proportionate representation of Mohammedans, Hindus, and those of other faiths and races.

"The growing demand is that there should be more direct relationship between the people and the masses. Yet sporadic outbursts of sedition on the parts of persons and parts of the community must not be taken as representative of general popular feeling. Germany misjudged India just as it misjudged the temperament of other parts of the British empire when the war-cloud burst four years ago. Germany thought there would be a general uprising against British rule. In reality the war stilled sedition, and the whole of India blazed in a panorama of patriotism to the British empire. There are no truer and more daring soldiers fighting for the King-Emperor today than the men of Hindustan.

"The war is changing conditions all over the world, and they are being changed in regard to India. The claim will certainly be made that India has a greater measure of self-government than it now possesses. There is no question what will be the decision of the British people on that point. It will be found that progress will be made step by step. As each step is justified, there will be another step forward, until in the fullness of time India will be as assuredly self-controlled as is Canada, Australia or South Africa."—[Sir John Foster Fraser, in September Century.

Less Mud By and By.

Taking time by the forelock, plans are already being carried out to make all permanent camps in the A.E.F. comfortable for next winter. Most of the work along this line is directed toward finishing as far as possible the trouble caused by mud.

Ballasted roadways are being laid with a curvature sufficient to insure against a muddy surface. Walks and foot paths are being installed along the same plan. All natural features which will aid in the shedding of water are being utilized and abetted by systems of gutters and drainage trenches.

Permanent lavatories, washing sheds and bath-houses are now being erected. In several instances wells have been bored.—[Stars and Stripes, France.

WAR AND ROMANCE.

VIVID PICTURE PLAYS FOR THE COMING WEEK.

Alhambra.

"America's Answer," the second eight-reel United States official war picture, which is 100 per cent. more thrilling and interesting than "Pershing's Crusaders," which set the whole town to talking, is to begin a limited engagement at the Alhambra today. This picture is assembled from 30,000 feet of film taken by the United States Signal Corps, A.E.F., by order of Gen. Pershing, and under the direction of the general staff. It is exhibited by the division of films of the Committee on Public Information. Beginning in flaming words symbolizing the spirit of the nation at war, the picture shows in intimate detail the physical forces of men, munitions and vast construction that make the answer the practical, powerful thing it is on the fields of France. The purpose of the picture is to set before Americans here what Americans "over there" are doing and to bring the war as a living, familiar fact home to these who are fighting it on this side of the Atlantic, so that they more actively realize their part in it.

George M. Cohan, in "Hit The Trail Holiday," De Luxe.

Peggy Hyland, in "Other Men's Daughters," Miller's.

Monroe Salisbury, in "That Devil Bateese," Superba.

Charlie Chaplin, in "Triple Trouble," Garrick.

Lewis Stone, in "Inside the Lines," Clune's Bdwy.

Kinema.

If you have thrilled with indignation at the dastardly attempts of German spies to destroy American life and property, and if you want to learn, first-hand, just how their schemes actually were hatched and carried out, you should see Von der Goltz, genuine German spy, who appears in "The Prussian Cur," which will be shown at Kinema for one week, beginning today. The fact that this is the first time a real German spy has appeared on the screen will prove a big drawing card for "The Prussian Cur." Furthermore, the entire story is based upon revelations of this spy, who for ten years plotted and destroyed at the behest of the imperial Hohenzollerns. Believing that this German spy had a message which every American should learn, the United States government commanded Von der Goltz to appear in "The Prussian Cur."

Grauman's.

William S. Hart's new photoplay, "Riddle Gawne," which opens at Grauman's tomorrow, is a picturization of "The Vengeance of Jefferson Gawne," written by Charles Alden Seltzer, and published serially during October and November, 1917, in one of America's leading magazines. Mr. Seltzer is a strong and forceful writer with a keen sense of dramatic proprieties, and this is looked upon as one of his most stirring tales. In adapting it to the screen, Thomas H. Ince and Mr. Hart, who acts as his own director, lost none of its original fire and vividness. Few stories in which Mr. Hart has been recently seen are more dramatic than "Riddle Gawne," nor has their heart appeal been more convincing.

Clune's Auditorium.

"Salome," with the heroine interpreted by the greatest vampire of all time, Theda Bara, will open an engagement at Clune's Auditorium Monday night, in the most pretentious and costly production yet assayed by William Fox. Upward of $1,000,000 is said to have been spent by William Fox in bringing within the radii of the camera the most bizarre story of "woman scorned" ever recorded in literature or set to music. "Salome," to which the attention of the public was once so pointedly drawn, when, in its operatic setting, it was banned after one performance at the Metropolitan Operahouse in New York, is now to be presented to the public on the screen. "Salome" is said to provide Theda Bara with finer opportunities for her particular vein of characterization than any previous role she has essayed. Aside of her dominant art, the strong dramatic fiber of the story is said to safeguard the play from being dwarfed by its massive mise en scene, which, in one instance, involved the construction of a replica of the Jerusalem of 40 B.C.

Tally's Broadway.

A double feature programme will be given the patrons of Tally's Broadway for the week starting Monday. "Italy's Flaming Front," the latest purchase of the First National Exhibitors Circuit, and without doubt the most remarkable pictures of the great war yet brought to America, is to be one of the features of this big double bill. This official Italian government picture has been made in six reels, but because of the many productions which Mr. Tally has scheduled for early release, he has divided this feature into two parts, and will show the first half with next week's show and the second half with the following weeks feature. Ethel Barrymore, in Edna Ferbers popular story "Our Mrs. McChesney," is the other feature next week, and in it Miss Barrymore gives the screen one of the best bits of character acting of her career as a motion-picture star.

Clune's Broadway.

It is a rare privilege for a new and rapidly-growing city to produce, nurture and give to the world an artist who, by sheer strength of merit, climbs to the top rung of the ladder in his chosen work. There is not a loyal citizen of Los Angeles acquainted with the history of the city who does not thrill with pride at the name of Louis Stone, who has been declared beyond doubt "the most popular leading man in New York today." Los Angeles will accord him a royal welcome, not in person, but in a screen rendition of "Inside the Lines." An added attraction will be "The Battle," a record of the past, directed by D. W. Griffith, and featuring Robert Harron, Blanche Sweet, Dorothy and Lillian Gish and a number of other film favorites. It was taken in 1910, and will be of interest to all who are watching the development of the photoplay.

Miller's.

"Other Men's Daughters" is the title of the new play in which pretty Peggy Hyland is coming to Miller's for a week beginning today. It was written by the well-known playwright, E. Lloyd Sheldon, who has many noted screen and stage successes to his credit. "Other Men's Daughters" is full of action and snap and gives Miss Hyland a far better opportunity to display her ability than any other play in which she has appeared. The interesting features that will be shown in addition to "Other Men's Daughters" include a delightful comedy and the news of our boys "over there" shown in the latest issue of Current Events.

Superba.

The coming seven days will be "double-bill week" at the Superba, for, in addition to the Bluebird photoplay, "That Devil Bateese," starring Monroe Salisbury, the management has secured as an added attraction the one-reel comedy, "How Charlie Captures the Kaiser." It is said that the highest price has been paid for this one-reeler that was ever paid for any 1000 feet of film. It pictures what might happen if the world's greatest comedian were to get a whack at Kaiser Bill. "That Devil Bateese" shows Salisbury in an ideal role, that of a lovable, carefree French Canadian, who is finally reformed into the ways of thrift and industry by the love of a good woman. "That Devil Bateese" is hailed as the best work Salisbury has done since "The Red, Red Heart."

Quinn's Rialto.

Mae Murray, that bewitching little screen personality, whose "Her Body in Bond" set the whole town talking when it ran at the Superba a few weeks ago, is the current attraction at Quinn's Rialto in "Modern Love," her newest Universal production. "Modern Love" is a vividly realistic photoplay picturing the high lights of New York's Bohemia and telling the story of a little art's model who tried to be good. Added attractions for the week include Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran in their latest comedy, "Hearts and Let Us," and the newest views of the war in the Universal Current Events.

Symphony.

Mary MacLaren, the screen star, who is often referred to as "The American Beauty of the Screen," comes to the Symphony for the next seven days in "Bread," her latest Universal special attraction. The star is seen as Candace Newby, a small-town miss, who is attracted to the footlights of a large city. How she invests her last few pennies in a loaf of bread to tide her over to the morrow, how she drops that loaf in the street and madly follows a gang of roisterers into a cafe, when one of the party spears her loaf with his umbrella, and the subsequent scenes that ensue there, have been woven by that master screen craftswoman, Ida May Park, the director, into a marvelously entertaining story. Kenneth Harlan and Thurston Hall are seen as the star's leading men.

Garrick.

Film fans will welcome an announcement made yesterday by H. P. Caulfield of the Garrick, to the effect that he would hold over Charlie Chaplin's newest funfest, "Triple Trouble," for a second week, starting today. As a running mate to Charlie Chaplin in "Triple Trouble," the Garrick has booked Baby Marie Osborne, "The Little Mary Sunshine of the Screen," in her latest comedy drama, "Winning Grandma." The stamp of approval by the public has been given "Triple Trouble," as the new comedy stunts Chaplin introduces in this funfest keep the audience in a continuous round of laughter.

Palace.

Feeling that all film lovers will welcome a programme filled with fun from start to finish during these days of strenuous activities, the Palace has arranged another big laughfest for the coming week. Doug Fairbanks opens the show with his late screen offering, "Bound in Morocco." This headline attraction is followed by a Charlie Chaplin comedy, "His Million-Dollar Job," in which the popular little fellow with the cane is seen in many funny and unusual situations. Then comes the newest creation from the Christie studio. Its title is "Some Caveman," and the story contains some excellent suggestions to young men who are in love.

De Luxe.

George M. Cohan, author of "Hit-the-Trail Holliday," a play which was produced with enormous success in New York in 1915 and later presented throughout the country, is one of the foremost actor-managers, producers, writers of plays and composers of music in the United States. He will appear in "Hit-the-Trail Holliday" at the De Luxe Theater tonight where he will head an excellent bill of entertainment. The play is presented on the screen under the directorship of Marshall Neilan. The drama is replete with keen humor as well as many thrilling situations.

DOST THOU KNOW?

Silence of midnight and a storm-tossed heart;
My baby sleeping; my beloved taking his part
To make life pure and free;
My little one, for thee and for me.
Sleep, baby, sleep!
Sleep, little one, sleep.

My little one, my dear one, sent from above;
God gave thee to me as a token of love
From my beloved, so brave and so strong,
Who is over there to help right a great wrong.
Sleep, baby, sleep!
Sleep, little one, sleep.

Dost thou know I have prayed all night for thee?
Dost thou know God gave a little one to thee and to me?
A little one to cheer and comfort thy days
After the war, in many sweet and loving ways.
Sleep, baby, sleep!
Sleep, little one, sleep.

Day is dawning! I can hear the battle raging;
I can see the victory won;
And God's great peace comes o'er me
At the rising of the sun.
Sleep, baby, sleep!
Sleep, little one, sleep.

BETTY BEE.

OLIVE THOMAS SAYS JINX ON HER CARS.

A jinx seems to hover over Olive Thomas, Triangle star, in relation to her automobiles. She owns quite a fleet of them, you know, but says she's going to sell 'em all and move over to Venice, Italy, where she can just use a gondola and be done with it. Just before leaving for her vacation in New York, you may remember, her new Stutz roadster figured in a collision in which Olive's car came off second best.

And the other day, while Miss Thomas was driving with a friend to the castle-like home of Julian Eltinge, where she was to engage in the innocent pastime of taking tea, she lost control of her car as it ascended one of those steep Glendale hills, with the result that the machine and its occupants were dashed into a stone wall. Miss Thomas and her companion miraculously escaped injury, and the star now drives to the studios in a flivver. But she really does own a Cadillac and a Stutz.

look and listen, only to find it rotten—well, not so very rotten, after all—well, pretty good, in fact. You look and listen again, and everybody else looks and listens. 'Eureka!' you shout, 'it's simply great! Oh, boy!'"

Dana Hayes laughed delightedly. "That's what I went through, and more," he said, "and Ben Giroux with me. No one will ever know our alternating agonies and ecstasies—no one but a producer, that is. Every producer, big ones like Belasco and Morosco, and little ones like Ben and me, has had the same experience. But the result is worth it all—it's surely worth it, or we wouldn't be willing to try it a second time. I never heard of a producer who didn't produce more than once, have you?"

I had not.

"And I never heard of a novice in production who didn't aspire to become a seasoned veteran." Hayes went on, smiling, "so that's what Giroux and I are going to be—big producers. If—of course—if the public likes 'Up in the Air,' and if it goes big, and if we make money, and especially if the critics regard it as an artistic success. Producers are always afraid of the critics—who know everything. And they also fear the public—who 'know what they like' and pay spot cash for it. But a producer's heart always beats high with hope, he always believes absolutely in his product—else he would not be a producer. I believe in 'Up in the Air.'"

So do I, though I haven't seen it yet, for I believe in Dana Hayes.

Sign of Senility.

Old people never pretend to stay in bed all night. They get up fully a dozen times and go wandering around, looking for the origin of noises, to see what time it is, and on many other pretexts. If you feel like wandering around at night, with your night clothes flapping around your knees, it is an indication that you are not as young as you used to be.—[Arkansaw Thomas Cat.

Propaganda.

MOTION PICTURES AND GOVERNMENT ASSISTANCE.

THE Northcliffe (British) Weekly Dispatch, in a recent editorial takes the British government to task for not utilizing the motion pictures to the best advantage for propaganda purposes. It alleges that the British government has done nothing but talk in this regard and points to America as a shining example to be followed.

"The triumph of patriotic propaganda," says the article, "may be seen this week at the Palace Theater in D. W. Griffith's cinema of the great war, "Hearts of the World." This picture should be bought by the nation and shown in every town hall and parish-room in the kingdom. It is a great Allied possession; used properly it would shorten the war for months. And we understand the British rights could be bought for $100,000."

The Cinema, a weekly newspaper devoted to motion picture interests, boils with wrath over the government's alleged neglect of the film, and makes an appeal to Prime Minister Lloyd George to put matters right. It says: "To those connected with the cinema industry nothing appears more culpable, and, in a manner, more inexplicable, than the failure to take full advantage of the extraordinary power the screen puts into the hands of those who control it." After referring to the disdainful attitude of officialdom toward the pictures in general, it goes on to point out what an extensive use of the pictures has been made by Germany since the outbreak of the war. "The German budget during the first two years of the war," it says, "allocated 250,000,000 marks annually for propaganda work, and a very considerable part of this was done through the medium of the cinema in neutral countries, including, of course, America."

Continuing its criticism, the Cinema says: "What have we done since America joined us as an ally, and President Wilson, in one of his earliest pronouncements proclaimed the motion pictures and the airplane to be the two most effectual weapons for winning the war? Not even a British official should be able to afford to ignore what the man who is perhaps the greatest President in possession of the White House, has said."

Others, in commenting on the criticisms, pronounce them as unfair in some respects, referring to the fact that in the production of "Hearts of the World," which the paper advocates as a British investment, the government offici Griffith every assistance Attention is called by fact that it is not the U government, but the indi ducer, who has been the propaganda placed half of the Allies through dium of the silent dram

The Bright Side of Sunshine Land—People and Their Doings—A Hundred or More Happy Aff

A DEBUTANTE'S LETTER.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 6.

May dear:

William is so anxious just now. You see, you and I and Ellen and Ada are all implying special claims upon him, not exactly an engagement, you understand, but that tender hint of fond expectations. He has been so reckless in his gallant attentions, impartially distributed according to present company, and now that we suddenly all insist upon taking him seriously, he is very uncertain where he stands. These professional bachelors need a little jolt, dear, don't they? How dare they play fast and loose with our young affections? He has kissed all of our hands so impressively. He has fed us so magnificently. He has made us each his special confidante. He has won our artless sympathy for his lone bachelor state. He has been doing these things for lo, these many moons. Ellen, who has just returned from New York, is affecting an anxious jealousy, reproaching him for Ada's picture shows, my lunches, your gifts. His debonnair attitude of delighted amusement is merely assumed, cherie. Actually he sees his liberty in dreadful jeopardy; he tries to remind himself there is safety in numbers. But I, for one, insist that I am in a forgiving mood, that, after all, I know I am the only girl in the world for him. You, I know, are equally assured that you stand supreme in his Catholic affections. Ada has no doubt about her pre-eminence in his attentive heart. Let's make him choose between us and end this dreadful uncertainty. All or nothing. Man's love is like the restless wave that flows from shore to shore, eh, what? Let's harness these turbulent breakers.

William is not a Mason. Dorothy insists that the only safe men to play with are Masons, because their principles are so high. When any man pays her special attention, she promptly investigates his Masonic pins. Finding them, she comfortably puts them on their Masonic honor, and there you are, don't you know. On the other hand, Masons are under such terrific bonds of secrecy, especially against femininity. Their scruples all run to secrecy. Do you like secretive men, dear? There is always the danger that in a breach of promise case, for instance, the defendant, the judge and jury might all be Masons. Horrid thought!

Margaret has stirred up quite a furore at the Severance Club. It was, you know, once deemed gloriously radical—free thinking and all that sort of thing. So when Mag dined there the other day she had no compunction in pulling forth her sack of "makings," and twirling a cigarette into being in one hand—an accomplishment of which she is rather proud. The silence was oppressive. It so happened that a members' meeting was taking place that very evening and rumor hath it that five members resigned. She is wondering what could possibly happen at a Conservative Club.

A well-known theatrical man with democratic ideals has just rented the home of an ultra-exclusive millionairess. The owner holds extreme views on the sort of people one can afford to know. But the new tenant is quite satisfied if his friends are interesting in any particular, all the way from psycho-analysis to acrobatics. And he is going to give a dinner-party housewarming at which one of his guests will be an oil-driller who writes poems by night, another a chauffeur with an Oxford University education, another a Russian nobleman at present living on air and his reputation, another a nursemaid with political aspirations and so on. He even threatens to include an ex-prizefighter, who is chiefly famous for three wives and a dressmaker who was once a mining-town deputy sheriff. These with a sprinkling of the theatrical profession and dubious literary scribes, should effectually pollute the atmosphere of that exclusively refined mansion. The chauffeur is, in fact, the owner's own menial, and the new tenant insists he is far and away more conversationally interesting than his millionaire employer.

No, dear, the yacht never got to Santa Barbara. In fact, to be exact, it never got out of San Pedro Harbor. The engine struck and lost its morale and settled down comfortably to sulky ineptitude. Its owner petted it through the long night and half the next day and invented a new vocabulary in the process. The feminine guests just waited and waited and waited, could neither go to sleep nor keep awake with any sort of efficiency, the while messengers went on wild rides to Los Angeles for new parts that were not forthcoming. Fancy a mere engine being able to queer an all-too-perfect yachting party. And spoil the beauty of feminine guests for three days to come.

The ball for the navy at the Hotel Virginia last Friday proved a dazzling success, and Capt. Whitlock, being satisfactorily married, was not like Capt. Poundstone, too flustered to lead the grand march. He did his duty nobly and danced all his duty dances. Lieut. Pryor was having a wondrous time and was heard inviting all the nicest girls to the naval station's own dance for next Thursday. The order of the day required blue serge suits, and the boys melted. When a frivolous widow's influence was sought to plead with the captain to make white suits comme il faut next time, the captain showed his paternal forethought. "You, my dear madame," said he, "are thinking of their comfort in the ballroom. I am thinking about preserving the boys from catching cold when they go home afterwards."

At least 500 boys had a joyous night, even if the previous surplus of charming maidens was not repeated. Mrs. Rodman Robeson was on the scene to give it her blessing, but Mrs. Spannagle was chief hostess. It was a warm evening and the terraces were crowded with strolling couples. That famous nook round the north corner was in great demand for farewells, but when everybody knows where it is, it lacks the privacy associated with it. Ethel, who took each of her partners there in turn, will vouch for that.

Have you had the good fortune to meet Hamilton Murray yet? He is six feet four inches and calls himself the tallest specimen in captivity at the naval training station. He is certainly as good looking as he is high, and rumor hath it that his mental achievements tally with his inches. I don't believe he will be much of a wallflower at the dance next Thursday.

Went over to the Maryland on Sunday and found Col. Hensley in a group of masculinity bragging about the charms of his new baby. It's a boy and going to be exactly like his mother. And presently the handsome Lieut. Culbertson passed along, carrying his new baby with a mighty pride and solicitation. It was most becoming to him. I think the colonel was quite jealous—his offspring had to shine on absentee eulogy. Mode Wineman, still out of captivity, was flirting shamelessly with a triste widow and covertly breaking her heart with hints of prior triumphs, the heartless monster! We asked affectionately after Leonora, the lady who coyly declined to be photographed with him at the Virginia because it would be so compromising!

Mrs. Edwin Frances Holmes leaves this week for Salt Lake, but spent several days in Pasadena with Col. Holmes. She has, you know, given Amelia's Palace in Salt Lake to the Red Cross. Amelia could have asked no better fate for it.

Charlie Chaplin, who was recently dipping into Socialism with zest, and rocking dinner tables with Socialist maxims, just to see what happened, has become an individualist. Which, of course, isn't the same at all. Charlie loves to impersonate Sir Herbert Tree and does it well. He even seems to acquire the height as he orates Tree's most famous Shakespearean passages. He has all the Tree mannerisms and keeps the company in gales of delighted laughter.

Everyone is gradually returning to town and, with victory in the air, the winter season promises to be less gloomy. The restaurants are not so fashionable as they were, but home parties will be gay and frequent.

Bachelors over 45 are busy polishing up their stock of dinner epigrams, and debutantes are rehearsing cute remarks. Bachelors and husbands under 45 are feeling a sense of importance under the new registration. They try hard to look properly mournful, but as a matter of fact, they ache to be in it. Many a male will sinfully lie about his age to assert his right to a uniform.

The navy ball at the training station at San Pedro on Thursday will, of course, be the event of the week. The officers will be the acting hosts of the occasion and we can only hope Lieut. Horsey's shoulder won't be active that night. You know, the men always know when trouble is brewing, because Lieut. Horsey, who is the discipline officer, has a temperamental shoulder that gets emotional before a storm. It's a sure barometer. It is merely a question of wondering who has done something wicked, when that shoulder starts to fidget.

Well, so long, cherie, don't forget to worry William, will you?

Yours discreetly, BETTY.

SOCIETY.

BY VIRGINIA WOODS.

A growing preference for Solitaires

We do not believe such a decided preference has before been shown, as is now apparent in the demand for solitaires—for in diamonds the solitaire has come into especial favor. Not only are they mounted in splendid plain settings but also in artistic lacy mountings using numerous other gems or several smaller diamonds.

The simplicity and beauty of a correctly mounted solitaire is being strikingly recognized just at this time.

We present a great many very new rings featuring solitaires—each gem is perfect and of the finest blue-white qualities.

This Store has an "Admission Day" of Its Own Tomorrow for Those who want to Come in to see the Lovely NEW FASHIONS

—The store will be open as usual from nine until five-thirty o'clock. Why not walk through and see what the new styles are like? And why not, if your husband has a holiday tomorrow as many do, bring him along?

—Both of you will see that fashions in war-time can be practical without being monotonous; that they can be quietly lovely without being extravagant; that they can be economical without moping in a corner. In fact, they can and have adjusted themselves most heartily and patriotically to the conditions of the moment—and at the same time they are charming. Here are the newest things for your wardrobe:

Hundreds of Practical Good-Looking Suits are Ready

The coats are either medium long or long. Nearly all of them are belted and they are either flare or loose straight styles. On the better ones there are fur collars and cuffs.

—Skirts are simple and straight, with pockets which are frankly just useful and pretty and not in any way extreme.

—The materials are sturdy mixtures, gabardines and a great many excellent broadcloths and serges, with splendid fine velours-de-laine.

—Colors are helmet gray, taupe, brown, bottle green, various blues and, of course, black.

—Prices are $29.75 to $135.

Rich, Warm Coats that are Fashion's Favorites

—They have ever so many features that are enough different from other seasons to interest you—great wide belts, novelty plaited effects, new cuffs and collars.

—They are richly lined and many of them have great fur collars and cuffs.

—Materials are bolivias, velours, kerseys and silver-tip bolivias. You'll want to put them on right away the minute you see them. Prices $25 to $97.50.

Such Pretty Dresses

—A little more elaborate, perhaps, than the suits or coats because silk and satin hasn't a war use. If you feel the least inclined for something elaborate you can find it in dresses. Tricolettes, perhaps, are the most popular, smartest and best of all. They are a woven silk fabric that hasn't been in use very long. They are both clinging and shiny.

—Most of the satins have some kind of fringe, rat-tail braid or cut steel beads.

—Figured Georgette is very good. Prices are $45 to $95.

—Hundreds of new Jerseys are $25, $27.50 and $29.75.

—Satins are $29.75 and up. Serges $19.75 and up.

Millinery Secrets

—Nearly 200 of them are out tomorrow.

—The hat illustrated is of soft white angora felt, crushed into shape and brocaded all over with black and white chenille braid.

—Crushed felt and soft broadcloth felt are popular in half a dozen different colors.

—Russian squirrel, mole and seal
—Prices start at $12.50.
hats in small shapes are very good.

Expedience Has Made the Writing Desk a Necessity

Every woman needs a writing desk. She needs it for the privacy it gives her letters. She needs it for the accommodations it provides for everything pertaining to her correspondence. She needs it for the convenient purpose it serves every time she wishes to write a note or a letter. She needs it because it is essentially one of the most sentimental and cherishable pieces of furniture a woman can possess.

And nowadays, with millions of fathers, husbands, sons, brothers and sweethearts, "Over There," and in the cantonments, and with letter-writing multiplied accordingly, the intensified service rendered by the writing desk emphasizes its importance in the home.

The "California" shows a hundred or more different styles in writing desks of every kind and description—priced from as little as $18.50 up to as high as one may care to go.

There are table desks, spinet desks, drop-lid desks, bureau desks, secretary desks, Italian type desks that when closed remind you of the old hall chest—various types to meet every possible anticipation and to harmonize with every environment.

And there are appropriate desk chairs and unusual desk sets to go with the desks. The display is one of the most important you will find in this entire country—important not only in the scope of the selections, but in their uncommon character and in the unusualness of the values.

Hill, Scott, Filson, Sandman, Lake, Schneider, German, Horowitz, Knapp and King, Misses Hattie Brown, Ruth Violett, Marcia and Clara Carmichael and Muriel Arkley. Various features of the carnival included a Japanese tea garden presided over by Reo Ban and Sassaki, this feature winning first prize. The country store, managed by the Duenna ladies, captured second prize, with a cold drinks booth, under the supervision of Misses Eva Lake and Ruth Steele, taking third prize. The ladies of Buaro supervised the Dutch kitchen with excellent success, and the "hot-dog" headquarters, managed by Miss Jessie and Walter Dungan, proved wonderfully popular. Fortune telling, a fish pond and a kangaroo court afforded amusement and yielded revenue. The Elks' Band of Santa Ana donated the music. Indeed, the surrounding communities came out strong on assistance towards making the carnival a success, the proceeds being over $700. Two hundred dollars of the sum was derived from the dance which was held in the Koehler packing-house near by.

WOMEN CHAUFFEURS NEEDED.

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—Three hundred women motor drivers are needed by the American Red Cross for duty in France. The recruiting of feminine chauffeurs has already begun in New York, where, it is hoped, the first unit of fifty women may be mobilized and sent across by the first of October. Meantime, other cities are preparing to supply their quotas.

This call is issued by the director of motor service at national headquarters of the American Red Cross in answer to a cabled request from the Paris office, which states that there is a great need for women messengers, ambulance and camion drivers behind the lines — a need that will be only temporarily met by these first 300 drivers. Already more than 6000 English and French women are reported to be engaged in this work, but many more are needed. This is only the first call.

Women who can afford to donate their services are asked to do so. The American Red Cross will pay their traveling expenses, and if necessary, an allowance of 450 francs ($85) a month outside of Paris and of 600 francs ($100) a month when in Paris will be paid to expert drivers who are dependent upon their own resources.

To be eligible for this work a woman must have passed her twenty-fifth birthday, must be fairly robust, and possess an impeccable patriotic record. As far as possible, candidates for this service will be selected from the local divisions of the American Red Cross Motor Corps already in existence, for the women of the Red Cross Motor Corps are thoroughly trained and experienced in the duties of war messengers and ambulance chauffeurs.

Early last year the American Red Cross, realizing the need for women drivers, both at home and abroad, created a separate bureau, known as the Bureau of Motor Service, with offices at the national headquarters, for the purpose of organizing chapter motor corps throughout the country. It now has 140 such organizations to its credit, with a membership of over 6000 women.

The size of a local motor corps depends entirely upon the requirements of the local Red Cross chapter. It ranges all the way from six to sixty drivers. Red Cross motor drivers are classified in two divisions, the first division including ambulance and truck drivers, and the second division including the drivers of passenger cars for messenger work. Drivers in the first division are chosen for their ability to drive trucks and ambulances owned by the local chapters. They must be graduates of a mechanical course specified by the Red Cross and possess a first-aid certificate. In most cases a candidate for the ambulance division is sent to a hospital for twelve days' experience in its emergency room, or on one of its ambulances, but this is not insisted upon. The Red Cross Motor Corps conducts sanitary and stretcher drills, which are sufficient to teach the members how to lift and care for wounded soldiers.

The second division of the chapter motor corps, on the other hand, is recruited entirely among women who can afford to donate not only their services but their cars. No woman is accepted, however, who cannot pass an examination demonstrating her ability to drive, as well as a knowledge of simple mechanics and traffic rules. A motor corps messenger makes all other volunteers fade into insignificance. She even buys her own gasoline, oil and tires, and if she is fined for exceeding the speed limit while hurrying some Red Cross message to its destination, she pays the fine.

Each Red Cross Motor Corps has a captain, who assembles her forces, trains them and assigns them to various duties. There are lieutenants, too, but these are ranks of distinction rather than of utility. When you are messenger in a Red Cross Motor Corps your car is pledged for a certain number of hours each week, and three failures to appear at these hours, unless detained by illness, is considered sufficient cause for dishonorable discharge. When your hour of duty approaches you report at the motor corps headquarters and are detailed by the officer in charge for certain service. Sometimes you are turned over to the home service section and spend the morning driving Red Cross social workers from point to point. Canteen workers are transported to and from railroad stations, chapter supplies delivered and called for. Occasionally, if lucky, you are detailed to drive an American or a foreign officer in a resplendent uniform about the city, greatly to the envy of admiring friends.

These, briefly, are some of the duties of the Red Cross Motor Corps as described by one of them. In addition, they are often called upon to help out the Canteen Committee of their chapter, by carrying supplies and passengers. The other day, for instance, a troop train arrived in a certain eastern city where it stopped for only forty minutes. The commander of the train was asked by a member of the local Red Cross Canteen Committee if he needed anything, and he replied that the train's supply of potatoes was exhausted. There were two officers, also, he said, who were in need of assistance. One of them wanted to get medical supplies and the other to visit a local military post. The member of the Canteen Committee simply passed these orders on to a Motor Corps messenger sitting a few feet away at the wheel of a large touring car. That young lady proceeded to drive the two officers where they wanted to go, then to a wholesale grocery, where they bought a large supply of potatoes, and back to the train—all in the space of forty minutes.

Usually the work of hauling supplies for the Canteen Committee is done by the truck drivers of the motor corps, however. Each local chapter owns its own truck—sometimes several of them—and these are used to collect the many articles that pass through the hands of the Red Cross. Bandages, surgical dressings, old shoes, tin foil, old kid gloves, clothes for refugees, etc., are some of the things handled by these competent drivers. As some of the packages loaded are by no means light, the women in this branch of the corps must be fairly husky.

The ambulance division of the motor corps is manned by first division motor drivers. A woman who drives a Red Cross ambulance must know how to apply a bandage, install a new inner tube, fix a spark plug, handle a stretcher, and lift a wounded man. An ambulance driver works in connection with the Canteen Committee of her local chapter, answering all ambulance calls from troop trains. In the transportation of thousands of troops back and forth, from one point to another, a certain amount of illness occurs on the train, and the government relies upon the Red Cross to help it out in this emergency. Extensive ambulance corps are also now maintained at the ports receiving wounded men from France.

When a man is taken ill on a troop train a telegram is sent ahead to the chairman of the Canteen Committee of the Red Cross in the next town by the troop train commander, and when the train arrives an ambulance is waiting. The efficiency with which this ambulance aid is provided is illustrated by an incident which recently occurred in the South. A sick soldier was on his way from camp to his home town, accompanied by his mother and a trained nurse. They were compelled to change trains at a point half way between the two cities. The train was due at this point at 8 o'clock, but a wreck which occurred on the train ahead delayed the boy's train by several hours. All hope of making a connection with a train for his home town had to be abandoned, and his mother was worried, not knowing what she was going to do with her son in a strange city. Imagine her relief, therefore, when upon reaching the station she found a Red Cross ambulance awaiting them, manned by a woman chauffeur and a resident doctor. The next morning the boy was taken on to his home under a Red Cross escort.

Such incidents are frequent occurrences in the lives of the Red Cross motor corps drivers throughout the country. Most of them are well prepared for duty abroad. But their departure will greatly reduce the ranks of the home organization; for months to come there will be an acute need for women chauffeurs in the local chapters of the Red Cross.

Donald, age 7, on Hemlock avenue, received 50 cents for Thrift Stamps. He spent 25 cents for bicycle repair.

His mother expressed regret. "Suppose some Belgian orphan would die now because you didn't spend all your money for stamps."

"It would have been either him or me," replies Don, "because I was dying myself—for a ride."—[Indianapolis News.

Watch Styles Have Changed

The vogue of the bracelet watch for women's wear has come within only very recent years. Thin model pocket watches for men are fast replacing the now old fashioned thick, cumbersome styles. The military wrist watch has come into extensive usage only since the war has made it a necessity. This era of new watch styles has, with some makers, had the tendency to subordinate internal accuracy to external elegance.

In buying a watch today it is advisable to patronize a house on which you can implicitly rely.

While Feagans & Co. show the very newest and smartest models in bracelet watches, pocket watches and military wrist watches, dependability is the paramount consideration in every timepiece offered here.

We cordially welcome comparison of values.

Blankets are heavy things to handle, especially when wet. It is certainly a physical task to attempt to wash blankets and bedding by hand, but with THE THOR—the washing of blankets is child's play.

There's no limit to what you can wash with THE THOR—table and bed linens, soiled clothes, delicate laces and lingerie or heavy pieces like blankets.

THE HELPING HAND.

"How far that little candle throws his beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world."

"Practically every woman in Italy from 16 to 60 is a war nurse or a volunteer war worker and the whole nation is feeling the beneficient throb of their activity," Count V. Macchi de Cellere said in an address before the Continental Congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution. "Our women in Italy, though not politically organized or prepared for service, had within their hearts and minds the hereditary tradition of the struggle for liberty and nationality and have stepped forward, falling into line with marvelous efficiency and unanimity, backing the men in the army from royal palace to peasant's home, from hospital to munitions plant. They have undertaken the task of looking after the soldiers' families as well as reconstructing and refitting for useful lives the disabled men, of giving hands to the fields as well as to the factory."

In every comfort kit donated to the Red Cross by the Worth While Club of Highland Park, Mich., is a letter, entitled "A letter to our boys from father." In the letter "dad" tells how mother misses her darling boy, but what a good act he is doing and by this letter the club hopes that the boys will find an incentive and courage to go forward.

A young school-teacher, Nicola Vita, of Rivello Potenza, Italy, has won the respect and love of all the people by the good work he has started among the large student body under his care. The second and third grades for boys had left much to be desired for a long time. He devoted himself to making the school a model for others. In a few months he was able to assemble a creditable library, to organize the Patrons of Scholarship Society to buy lunches and copy books for poor pupils, to enroll the school in the membership of the Italian Red Cross and to raise 40,000 liras in subscriptions to the Italian loan.

How do the lonely places react to the war? Just like the crowded places. One tiny Ozark hamlet of five houses and a general store sent seventeen men to the war. Their sisters, wives and mothers are working in the fields. A visitor to this settlement saw a procession of barefooted children, each carrying a protesting chicken. They went straight to the combined store and postoffice and invested the chicken money in War Savings Stamps.

"We're a club," their leader explained. "We're going to stand by the soldiers until they get the Kaiser."

Old-fashioned "hoe-downs" danced to the tune of a backwoods fiddler, provide money for war funds. Hollister, Mo., with 400 people, has semi-monthly Red Cross pie suppers, which net from $150 to $200 an evening. The pies are sold by a loquacious Taney-county auctioneer, and a pretty pie maker goes with each pie for the evening's festivity. Pies and cakes sell at from $15 to $30 each when bidding gets furious.—[Kansas City Star.

"Dae ye think this box is strong enough to trust in the van?" asked a Highland farmer at the railway station.

"I doot it," replied the porter, "but we'll see." He lifted the box and let it fall with a crash. "I'll get that here," he said. "An' it'll get that"—he gave it another bang —"at the junction. An' at Dundee it'll get that." The third "that" burst the box, and its contents were scattered over the platform. The porter shook his head. "Na," he said. "I think it winna get past Dundee. Autumn's First Word is— "Wool Jersey Frocks $25"

—the magnetic word of a new season tingling with the news of a price that is almost as unusal as Wool Jersey itself is destined to be.

—Even as this is written, word comes from the Eastern marts that Wool Jersey is practically impossible.

—And if you appreciate what this statement means, then you should appreciate what an opportunity it is to buy Wool Jersey Frocks at $25 today.

—Perhaps you do appreciate it and will come Monday to see—Perhaps you do not realize and should come Monday to see—and if you do come you WILL see, and you will be surprised to see what altogether splendid frocks these are that Bullock's CAN offer at $25.

—Glance at the sketch and see them as the artist saw them—the latest modes—the "Whose Whom" of the accepted thoughts of Vogue as expressed by more than ten different and delightful styles.

Perrin Sends Gloves

—From France (the famous Perrin gloves) that they may take part in the exposition of Autumn at Bullock's.

—And when one stops to consider the origin of Perrin gloves (and one certainly knows that kid is not plentiful in France) isn't it marvelous that we have them with us at all?

—Behind the roar of the big guns their making goes on day by day—step by step, each patient process of their manufacture (and there are more than 300) is carefully guarded and while perhaps so great a variety is not being maintained, it is gratifying to know that there is a sufficient choice to keep Milady away from the monotony of a single style.

—"Don't merely wear gloves—wear Perrin gloves," is a slogan that many women recognize as an assurance of quality.

Young Women

Are Told How to Find Relief from Pain.

Nashua, N.H.—"I am nineteen years old and every month for two years I had such pains that I would often faint and have to leave school. I had such pain I did not know what to do with myself and tried so many remedies that were of no use. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the newspapers and decided to try it, and that is how I found relief from pain and feel so much better than I used to. When I hear of any girl suffering as I did I tell them how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me."—Delina Martin, 29 Bowers Street, Nashua, N. H.

Bawled Out a Millionaire.

The discipline some of the younger millionaires have been receiving on account of the war, in a way offsets the discipline some of the older ones have not yet received from Congress. Young John D. Rockefeller, who is interested in the Army Y.M.C.A., recently made an inspection trip to the Great Lakes Naval Training Station. At meal time, he lined up with the other rookies for "chow," with his tin plate and cup in hand, and got a good bawling out by the master-at-arms.

"Get in line, there," he shouted at the millionaire, as Rockefeller started to march toward the food kettles. Young Rockefeller obeyed. He ate standing up, and then scrubbed his pan and cup in a big pail of hot water and started to put it away. "Nothing doing. Sterilize it," the master-at-arms shouted to him. John D., Jr., without protest, hiked for the sterilizer and went through the process.—[Capper's Weekly.

Soldiers' Church Affiliations.

Dean Bernard I. Bell, Camp Chaplain in detention, in charge of religious registration of the new men, has made a digest of the 13,854 men registered in June, showing that the men are affiliated with various churches as follows:

Roman Catholics, 2907, or about 21 per cent.; Methodists, 2801, or about 20 per cent.; Lutheran, 1374, or about 9 per cent.; Baptist, 1150, or about 8 per cent.; Presbyterian, 1145, or about 8 per cent.; Disciples, 974, or about 7 per cent.; Episcopalians, 414, or about 3 per cent.; Congregationalists, 397, or about 3 per cent.; Hebrews, 257, or about 1.9 per cent.; Evangelical, 197, or about 1.4 per cent.; United Brethren, 130, or about 1 per cent.; Christian Scientists, 109, or about 7-10 of 1 per cent. Scattering, 302, or about 2.5 per cent. No preference given, 868, or about 6 per cent. No church affiliation, 809, or about 5 per cent.

Of these 13,854 men, 3755 came from Illinois, or over 27 per cent.—[Great Lakes Bulletin.

At Santa Monica.

HARVEST FESTIVAL TO BE CHILDREN'S BENEFIT.

A HARVEST festival, with unique attractions, is to be given at Municipal Park, Wilshire boulevard and Seventh street, Santa Monica, on Saturday afternoon, September 21, for the benefit of the Los Angeles Neighborhood Settlement Association and fresh air fund. It will be under the direction of Mrs. Isaac Milbank of this city, president of the association, and Mrs. C. C. Waring of Santa Monica.

The festival will begin at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and last through the evening, and a tennis tournament, in which crack players will participate is to open the event. Bruce Millard will manage the matches, the contestants in which will be Mr. and Mrs. Tom Bundy, S. M. Sinsabaugh, Nat Brown, Mrs. Bert O. Bruce and Miss Florence Sutton.

Following the match, a grilled beefsteak dinner will be served from 5:30 until 7:30 o'clock. There will be a cabaret during dinner, followed by dancing. Mrs. M. E. Feehan of Los Angeles has charge of the dinner reservations.

A PUMPKIN PIKE.

An attractive feature of the fair will be the pumpkin pike, which will be lighted with pumpkin lanterns from one end to the other. Cornstalks and all kinds of harvest decorations will lend color, and a country store will be run under the management of Percy G. Winnett.

All afternoon, tea will be served under a huge canopy of red and white. Here ice cream, cake, tea and sandwiches can be had, this department being cared for by Mrs. Walter Jarvis Barlow. She will be assisted by Mmes. H. L. Hyatt, A. C. Stilson, Wesley Clark, Page Brown, Kate Vosberg, and Chilberg. During the festival a high-bred Poland China pig is to be auctioned off.

AT COUNTRY STORE.

Assisting Mr. Winnett at the country store will be Mrs. Winnett, Mrs. Robert P. Sherman, Mrs. Grace Loomis and Mrs. C. L. Bundy. On the dinner committee are Mrs. M. E. Feehan, Mrs. W. R. Parks, Mrs. C. H. Davis and Mrs. C. G. Mortimer. Mrs. W. H. Code will be in charge of the fortune-telling booth, and H. W. Beek is head of the dancing committee. Looking after the children's amusements will be Mrs. Isaac Milbank, Mrs. L. R. McFie and Miss Celia Davidson.

This association, besides its many other duties, is maintaining for September a fresh air camp for the children of the settlement at Santa Monica Beach. One of the aims of this organization is the Americanizing of the children they are sponsoring. To do this they are looking after the health of the children, seeing that they are properly clothed, fed and housed. The children represent nearly every nation.

AMERICAN OFFICERS ARE OF GOOD STUFF.

A company of rookies swung into camp one hot day recently after a hike of several miles. All the men were tired and the pace was much less rapid than when they had started out. Some of the men limped a little from sore feet. All carried their guns at the easiest angle and moved their packs frequently so as to shift the weight.

The freshest men were in the front ranks and near the rear the soldiers most affected by fatigue were tramping along. Some of them could hardly keep up with the marching column. Three men moved slowly along under their packs, but without rifles. A second lieutenant near them had their three rifles slung over his shoulder and he carried part of their burden as cheerfully as though it had been a common thing.

A number of new soldiers landed from West Virginia in a training camp not long ago. They were inoculated and vaccinated and were a pretty sick and homesick lot the second night they were in camp. The food did not taste right to them because it was strange cooking and a long train ride had made them sick. One of the young officers in camp, a first lieutenant, happened to be from the same city that the West Virginians came from. He knew a number of them personally.

After he had mess in the evening he bought a box of oranges, placed them on his shoulder and carried them down to the tent where the homesick West Virginians were quartered. The fruit was distributed among the rookies and gave them the first taste of anything that seemed worth eating.

These two instances just furnish samples of the kind of stuff our American officers are made of. From such material, it is easy to see how the American army is being welded into the fighting mass that has been giving the Germans the surprise of their lives.—[Camp Lee Bayonet.

GREAT LAKE RATS SPURLOS VERSENKT.

"Spurlos versenkt."

An ultimatum to all rats to get off the Station and against others coming to Great Lakes was issued yesterday by Surgeon David S. Hillis, Sanitation Officer. As rats may prove a menace to health as well as being destroyers of food and other supplies, Surgeon Hillis said yesterday they would be "sunk without a trace."

The Great Lakes method of annihilating the pest comprises the most modern ideas, including a "gas attack" which proves most successful in producing complete casualties among the enemy hordes. An enemy stronghold was discovered several weeks ago under a Camp Ross barn floor and the "gas attack" war used here for the first time.

A machine was devised by the means of an electric fan which threw clouds of "sulphur fumes" under the floor. These fumes penetrating even the holes where the enemy had "dug in," completely overcame them and it was not necessary even to take prisoners. The floor and rat holes were then completely cemented over to prevent reinforcements from making their homes there.

Other devices, where the gas attack is not liable to be efficient, have been prepared and in case others are discovered on the Station they will be used. These devices include a number of attractive traps and poisons.

Surgeon Hillis said that rats would be a very good medium to aid in the spread of the bubonic plague should this get beyond the control of the Coast cities. Plagues of this sort in San Francisco and New Orleans, caused a war to the death to be waged on rats, squirrels and other flea-bearing animals. To guard against this bubonic plague it is well to have all the rats killed off on the Station at all times.

Rats breed very quickly, and while they would have difficulty in making much headway at Great Lakes, to allow them to run wild would mean a fight later on. Surgeon Hillis said that thousands of dollars of food each day are being destroyed by rats in the large cities.

Rats often travel in freight cars of food, and it would be through this method that rats most likely would get on the Station.

At the presen time ther have been only a few instances where rats have been reported to the Sanitation Department, Surgeon Hillis said. The sanitary condition of the camp allows very little filth on which the rats can live, thus making it unattractive to them.—[Great Lakes Bulletin.

SAILORS DON'T LIKE NAME "JACKIE."

"What's in a name?"

The station bluejackets and their friends on the outside believe that there's considerable in a name. Names to replace the despised, effeminate appellation, "Jackie," have been reaching the Bulletin office both from sailors and civilians since this publication called for suggestions and our friendly contemporaries of Chicago passed the word along to the world without, says the Great Gakes Bulletin.

"Gulls" is the first name to be suggested twice. A station bluejacket sent it in several days ago and now Mrs. W. M. Wells of Sturgis, Mich., gives it her vote. Mrs. Wells points out that sea gulls guard the harbors and that they dispose of refuse, said refuse of the self-evident metaphor being the Germans.

"Navyan" is the suggestion of Mrs. A. Marie West of Elgin, Ill., who has a son at Great Lakes, an instructor in the aviation school. Mrs. West urges that this name would "stand for the dignity justly due to the men of the United States Navy."

"Permit me to congratulate you," Mrs. West concludes, "upon so able and interesting a paper as the Great Lakes Bulletin. You may be justly proud of its excellent editorials. Long may it live!"

"Sea Lions" is properly descriptive of the United States sailors, in the belief of Dante DiNunzio, who is detailed to the main tailor shop.

One who signs herself "A Hoosier Girl" has contributed a genuine Hoosierism. "Ever-Readies," she contends, is far superior to "Jackies."

"U-sharks" is a suggestion from Menominee, Mich., because of the manner in which the American bluejackets are clearing the seas of German submarines. The author has framed a little stanza. Here it is:

"Oh! U-sharks! Out for larks with the Hunish snarks;
If you are game and like the name, you'll bring it fame on sea and main.
Here's a good wish for the fighting.
fish.
From Menominee, Mich."

The above contributions indicate that the call for a new nickname for the bluejacket has occasioned widespread interest. There is great latitude for the selection of a suitable term. The Bulletin requests serious consideration of the idea. Names suggested should couple both the dignity of the American sailor and the warm spot he holds in the hearts of the American people. And this name must be simple and easy to say—"trippingly on the tongue," in the words of Hamlet.

Keep trying, sailors!

GUYNEMER'S "OLD CHARLES."

In the dingy hall of a dismantled department store on Market street lies a little brown bird with outstretched wings. It seems to strain upward, eager to launch itself into the clean blue air, above the gloom and confingment of that crowded space. Its tail is striped with the immortal colors of France. On its body is painted a red stork. It is one of the famous Cigogne escadrille—it is Guynemer's plane. It is the Vieux Charles.

What could surpass the tenderness, the simplicity, the masculine feeling in those two brief words—Vieux Charles! "Old Charles," the little brown plane (so gallant and so small) in which Guynemer won twenty-two of his fifty-three official triumphs. What a story that little brown bird—he called it affectionately "Cuckoo"—could tell if it could speak! Never again will it see the familiar figure, tall, pale and thin, with the burning black eyes. PYRAMID PRODUCERS STRIKE NOTE IN PICTURES.

BY HENRY CHRISTEEN WARNACK.

WE HAVE come a long way, we who inhabit the earth today. Between changes of continent and changes of race we have seen much, even though we cannot always remember. It is written in some of the books of life that the strange, weird islands of the South Seas were once the peaks of the loftiest range of mountains that traversed the long buried continent of Lemuria, and Lemuria was before Atlantis.

It is also written that the savages living upon vegetation and even upon human flesh in those desolate isles are the remnants of a third race that once overran the face of the world. That may account in part for their ready adaptability to civilization when once the doors of the world have been opened for them. It has been only a little while since at a banquet in New Zealand a native who had advanced from jungle to Legislature, proposed a toast to the guest of honor, Joseph Chamberlain, by remarking that he could easily remember when it had been the one bright hope of his life to eat Sir Joseph for dinner.

Small wonder it is then that these islands, steeped in the perfume of the tropics and veiled by inscrutable mystery, should have offered to men of letters such as Robert Louis Stevenson and Jack London, fertile soil for the richness of their kingly imagination and that they should prove almost a tragic lure to those who would essay the vivid and unusual in motion picture drama.

Perhaps the public has seldom been invited to consider anything more robust or picturesque than "The Charm of Nasoni," starring that exceptional girl, Doraldina, who is sometimes called "the craze of New York," and directed with exquisite subtlety by Jack Pratt.

This is a production by the Pyramid Photoplays Company, plus, the plus being Doraldina herself. We have already had a fine example of what the Pyramid people can do, or we will have had before the present week is over, since they are responsible for the fine film version of "Inside the Lines" with Lewis Stone, the man who made the piece famous in spoken drama and the best actor Los Angeles ever sent to New York, as its star.

Both "Inside the Lines" and "The Charm of Nasoni" were made in Los Angeles, as nearly all good film dramas are.

While it may be weeks before this latest picture has received its last touches in the cutting room and in the important matter of titles, it may be no betrayal of trade secrets to say that the plot has a directness and simplicity that make a remarkable blending of beauty and strength. When a hell-hearted man-killing first mate of a rum-laden death scullion ship sweeps the deck with mutiny and ruin, the one girl on board chooses her chances with the cruel sea rather than face the clutches of the beast. While retribution stalks aboard the ship with its avenging flames, the girl makes the shore of a South Sea island where the savages at a religious feast have just been promised by their cannibal chief the appearance of Nasoni, goddess of the sea." Her arrival matches the high-pitched frenzy of the naked savages and to them she is a sacred thing, a splendid trophy of the sea, sent direct from the gods.

Thus begins the story of Nasoni, and it is advanced remarkably by the superb acting of our old friend Dark Cloud, as the cannibal witch doctor, and later by the arrival of a young white man, a part well conceived by Jay Morley.

To tell any more would be to reveal the plot in full, and that is hardly legitimate before the picture is more nearly ready for release. When I saw it once, I made them run it a second time and then went back the next day hoping for a third view.

For one thing the girl dances better than anyone I have seen dance in a picture and she has less impediment as to clothing than most dancers have the luck to enjoy. At that the censors cannot say anything, because it is the law of mechanics that forces operate on their own plane and clothes have little to do with the plane of savages. Probably they ought not to have roast Maylay for supper, but that is up to their own conscience and digestion and not to mine.

Another feature that struck me as unforgettable was where the girl went out to a great serpent in a tree and took first-hand lessons in snake dancing. It struck me as Mother Eve brought down to the minute.

WHAT CONSULS SAY.

The imports of typewriters and parts into Japan have increased from a value of $25,927 for 1915 and $70,663 for 1916 to $126,796 for 1917, and practically all were imported from the United States. Consul Robert Frazer of Kobe reports that Japan is enjoying an enormous expansion of foreign trade and the necessity of using typewriters in their foreign correspondence has become apparent to most of the Japanese trading firms.

Fuel shortage in Norway and Sweden has been met to some extent by an increased use of water power from the rivers; Denmark, however, has no rivers which can be thus utilized. Electrical power, generated in Sweden from water power, has been transmitted by cable across the sound and is being used in the villages in the northern part of Zealand, the island on which Copenhagen is situated, and for lighting purposes in Hellerup, a suburb of Copenhagen.

During the early spring months of 1918 extensive efforts toward afforestation have been conducted by the South Manchuria Railway Company in Southeastern Manchuria.

To the north of that part of the Antung Japanese settlement, which is occupied principally by the employees of this company, a section of fertile bottom land, approximately twenty acres in area, has been converted into a nursery and is in charge of experts.

In 1917 only 1614 persons emigrated from Denmark to foreign countries; of these 1589 went to the United States. This is the smallest number of emigrants from Denmark for seventy years. Of the total number for 1917, 900 were men and 714 were women. It is interesting to note that, whereas heretofore five-sixths of the emigrants have been farmers, workmen and house servants, during 1917 only one-sixth belonged to these classes, there being a larger percentage than usual of tradesmen and commercial men of various kinds.

Saloniki is the point from which all the skins and hides produced in Macedonia and even in Albania are exported to foreign markets. The most important hides produced in this region are lamb, kid, sheep and goat, which are produced in the following approximate numbers yearly: Lamb, 260,000; kid, 200,000; sheep, 125,000, and goat, 155,000. In addition, the following number of skins of wild animals are exported: Hare, 200,000; fox, 10,000; wild cat, 2000; badger, 3000; martin, 5000; otter, 500; wolf, 600, and jackal, 2000.

The total value of the skins exported annually is from $800,000 to $900,000.

The possibility of reclaiming the uncultivated lands of Macedonia after the war and utilizing them for wheat and other cereals is a question that is attracting the attention of the many agricultural experts that have come to this region with the Allied armies. The French, especially, are giving much attention to the subject. Only a part of the soil of Macedonia has been cultivated in modern times, and that with very rudimentary means. Macedonia should become again that which it was in antiquity—the granary of the Balkans.

Italy has fixed maximum prices for new-crop hay, ranging from 18 to 22 lire per metric quintal (220.46 pounds) for first cuttings from natural meadows and from 14 to 18 lire for hay of any cutting from artificial meadows. (At normal exchange the Italian lire is worth 19.3 cents United States currency.)

Japanese dyestuff manufacturers have well developed their business since the war began, according to the Japan Advertiser. Their factories number more than 100, exclusive of small ones turning out inferior goods, and the total amount of investment is said to be more than 15,000,000 yen ($7,470,000.) However, the domestic market is still dependent largely on supplies from Germany, France and America. After the war only part of the manufacturers and part of their product may be able to hold their own against the invasion of foreign manufacturers.

French and the Army Mule.

Walter Townsend, who is in France on the Big Hunt, writes that one of the minor tragedies of the American soldier's life is to get a French horse as a mount or to drive. It seems impossible for these French horses to master United States, says Walter, so the soldier must needs study horse French. You say "Whoa" to a French horse and he keeps serenely moving, or if he pauses to reflect or anything and you say "Giddap!" he pays no attention. You must learn his language if you do business with the French horse.

That is, indeed, a trial, but we certainly feel sorry for those Poilus who are called upon to drive American mules! The idiomatic Americanese required in negotiations with a mule, properly brought up, is attained only by the great American "mule skinner." We doubt if a foreigner would ever be able to get the best out of a mule.—[Chicago News.

NIGGER.

I am of the opinion personally—and I make the assertion with all the better grace, I think, seeing that I am a Southerner, with all of the Southerner's inherited and acquired prejudices touching on the race question— that as a result of what our black soldiers are going to do in this war, a word that has been uttered billions of times in our country, sometimes in derision, sometimes in hate, sometimes in all kindliness—but which I am sure never fell on black ears but it left behind a sting for the heart—is going to have a new meaning for all of us, South and North, too, and that hereafter nigger will merely be another way of spelling the word American.—[Irvin S. Cobb in Saturday Evening Post.

Optimist and Pessimist.

An optimist, my boy, is one who sees two matches on a mirror realizing there are four. A pessimist, seeing two matches, believes that one will blow out.—[Arkansaw Thomas Cat.

THE FASHION SHOW WILL OPEN THURSDAY MORNING OF THE PRESENT WEEK.

Now it the Time to Buy:

Kid gloves for the entire season. A sale of the best make—a real French make—at the price of an ordinary brand, assures us opportunity.

Things oriental at that assignees' sale. Articles and fabrics from the Orient are growing scarcer each season, as the Japanese and Chinese stores become less numerous.

Velvets in that anniversary sale, where quality is assured. And poor, indeed, will be the wardrobe of milady if it contains no velvetry, for the coming season.

Furs, furs, furs! Never before were furs so popular as now; and we may possess our souls with the comforting assurance that in warming ourselves with furs, we are conserving wool.

"Fashion's Camouflage."

That is what the man has called them! And it is a term most apt. Oh, he is referring to the new and lovely veils which—we must acknowledge it!—really do enhance feminine facial charm. Yes, and the new semi-harem veils enhance the uncharming lines and too ripe curves of chins and necks—but, of course, they conceal the fact. Truly, veiling is the art supreme in camouflage.

Reducing the Figure.

"Hats that ought to be priced in two figures," as the man has said, are in that anniversary sale at a figure and a split—if I may coin such an expression. The hats at that high-class place are always of the very millinery best; and when they dare to so reduce themselves, really it is time to buy.

Velvetry.

The clothes-wise woman is now on the alert for velvet. Velvet for the dressy suit; velvet for the afternoon or dinner frock; velvet for the evening gown; velvet for the evening cloak. And, in many cases out of several, the velvet will be black. What so regal as velvet; and when velvet is black, it seems to have attained the acme of garmenting luxury. Well, as I was saying, in that anniversary sale, the velvets are carefully classified, as "good"—which means good, when said there—as "fine," and as "finest;" and they are priced accordingly. Velvet, as well as its cousin, silk, must be taken on faith to a large degree, and therefore it should be purchased where quality is a 'pon honor rule. It is so in that house.

Tank-Banking.

Or, reverse it and call it bank-tanking. If you haven't seen them, you cannot know how clever those tank-banks are. They are of metal—iron, possibly—and they are really for-sure banks, for holding fast the pennies, or other coins saving for War Stamps. These warrish treasure holders should easily help one to go over the top of one's promises of War Savings Stamps. They attracted much attention, where they were displayed on the patriotic table, in that so-reliable oldest store.

Envisaging Your Service Friend.

Those new "La Victorie" lockets are more than interesting, they are positively romantic. Of say-so jade, tortoise shell, or carved ivory, suspended from chains of like material, they are intended to hold the picture of the loved one in the service. Do you suppose any girl would be so deceptive as to wear one of those, just to pretend she had a service sweetheart? There seems to be no law compelling the services of a general locksmith to undo the lockets suspended around fair necks. A locket-smith, such a one would be, nest ce pas?

"Adorable."

"Adorable" is one way of saying "camisole," when looking at those in the economy downstairs of that Frenchish store. "Adorable" is also a way of saying satin "knickers" there. Hemstitched in pastel blue, and in some cases, embroidered in pastel posy tints, these dainty underlings are fit for any girl's underwardrobe. And the prices—well they are under, too.

"Cut Felt."

Fall fashion wisdom consists not in cutting your eye teeth, but in cutting your felt hat; for "cut felt" is the latest thing in furry winter hats. Those bewitching, round, girlish turbans worn well down above the eyes are the very last fur-feltish word.

A Pershing Placque.

Because it is so very popular, to sing and say and picture our loved general, that popular music shop has placed on sale a handsome portrait placque of Gen. Pershing. The modeling is the work of a local sculptor, who has a wondrous gift of creating an actual likeness.

WHAT CONSULS SAY.

According to the Svenska Dagbladet of June 30, 1918, 7,600,000 mackerel, valued at $583,000, had been caught to date on the west coast of Sweden during the 1918 season.

According to Trade Commissioner Axel Oxholm, who is investigating the lumber markets of Finland and Scandinavia, a wooden cork is now being used in Sweden because of the shortage of the true cork. The substitute is made of quick-growing pine, with wide annual rings, to allow the upper part of the cork to swell after the punch has been used.

The absence of coal deposits has been a great handicap in the manufacturing industry of Greece, as the fuel for other than domestic purposes has had to be imported. An inferior quality of lignite has in recent years been mined in the island of Euboea, and to some extent on the mainland of Greece. Consequently, the discovery of large deposits of lignite of a superior quality, which burns well alone without an offensive odor, has excited much interest.

The business in American automobiles is at a standstill in Great Britain, as the use of such vehicles for private use or pleasure has ceased. The use of motor trucks for commercial purposes has greatly increased. Large numbers of American makes were on hand prior to the restrictions on importations, but the opinion is frequently heard that all such vehicles are run down owing to the difficulty of getting repairs made.

Replace uniforms are now being made in England for the large number of American troops now in Europe, and the Leeds factories are busily engaged on the work. The trade in the Leeds district has undertaken, so far as the large establishments are concerned, to devote from 75 to 80 per cent. of their output to government work. As standard suits are not included in government work, this means a further delay in turning these out in any considerable number. War requirements must, however, be filled first, and civilians here must consequently wear their clothes longer.

The University of Nanking has organized a short-term course in silkworm culture that will run about two and a half months. Silkworm eggs from all the silk-producing districts of China have been collected—170 varieties in all, which is undoubtedly the most complete collection ever made. Seventy-two representatives from these various districts are taking this course. More than half represent government officials and schools, and many are experts and teachers of silk culture. Each student is required to rear his own silkworms according to the best modes in vogue in his district.

Siberia is depleted of nearly all necessary supplies of manufactured goods, including the important lines of agricultural machines and implements. Imports from foreign countries have ceased and the situation is becoming serious. Russia will need to import from abroad large quantities of rolling stock, machinery and other equipment, to put the railways and other industries of the country on an efficient running basis. This question will be of the utmost importance, since, owing to the financial position of the country, Russia must utilize its natural resources and develop its industries to the fullest extent possible.

THE GARDENERS OF FRANCE.

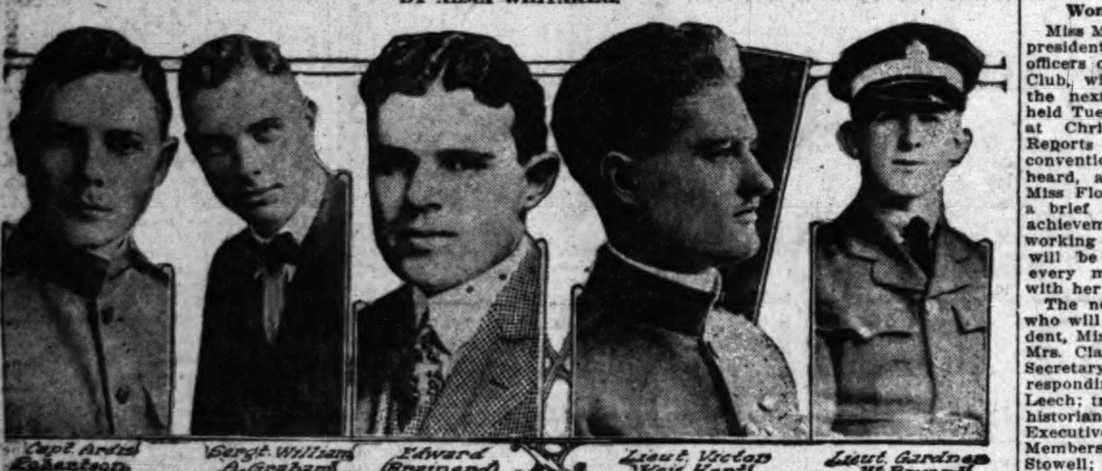
Some time ago word was received in this country that Emile Lemoine, son and worthy successor of Victor Lemoine, French nurseryman and the world's greatest plant breeder, had lost two sons in the war. Mr. Lemoine has written his American friends to say that this is an error. He has three sons in the war, but thus far all are alive. He suggests that the story probably refers to the great rosarian, Pernet, both of whose sons have been killed fighting for France.

It is Lemoine's gain, though the war is not over, and he may suffer as cruelly before the end comes. Perhaps it is the world's gain, but not much. Pernet is a wonderful rosarian, creator of a wealth of plant beauty which only Lemoine surpassed, and in Europe, especially in France, works of this sort are handed down in the family from generation to generation. These gentle, patient, miraculously-gifted gardeners have had to drop the work for which they are fitted by inherited aptitude and by training almost from the cradle, and make their breasts a bulwark to save their native land from a foe a thousand times worse than Attila.

When counting up the world's losses to be debited to Prussianism, do not forget these young men.—[Chicago Journal.

WOMEN'S WORK AND WOMEN'S CLUBS.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.



Warrior sons of prominent Los Angeles club women.

Capt. Robertson, whose mother, Mrs. Mathew Robertson, is president of the Ebell Club, returned to the battle front only recently after being invalided home. Lieut. Hart, R. M. A., is a descendant of Francis Scott Key, author of "The Star Spangled Banner." His mother is Mrs. Evelyn Hart of the Friday Morning Club. Lieut. Bryant, son of Mrs. Roce C. Bryant, vice-president of the Woman's City Club, is a solo flyer in the British Royal Flying Corps. Sergt. Graham is at Camp Lewis. His mother, Mrs. Clarence Van Graham, is president of the Woman's City Club. Private Brainerd, son of Mrs. E. R. Brainerd, State chairman of the Woman's Liberty Loan Committee, is now at the officers' training school at Camp Taylor, Ky.

CLUBLAND begins to show signs of renewed activity and several clubs have opened their doors for the winter sessions during the past week. The Friday Morning Club will open on the first Friday in October, and both the Ebell and the Travel clubs will start regular meetings on Monday, October 7. The City Teachers' Club will hold its first regular meeting next Tuesday, the 10th inst., at Trinity Building, and the Santa Monica Bay Woman's Club resumes activities on October 7. The Women's Advertising Club, of which Miss Miriam Chappelle is the new president, will formally install incoming officers next Tuesday evening, the 10th inst., and the Woman's City Club, which only allowed itself two week's vacation, will meet again on Monday, the 16th inst.

One observes that nearly all the clubs have voted to devote their main energies to war work, although informative and instructive programmes and department work will be by no means dropped altogether, with the one exception of the Los Angeles Woman's Club, which has adopted a resolution to exclude all interests other than war service.

With victory in the air, clubland returns to its duties and pleasures with a new zest. There is no disposition to regard the war as over, but rather renewed inspiration to see it through triumphantly.

The West Side Ebell Club.

The West Side Ebell opened for its club year last Tuesday, when Mrs. Fred B. Kuck, the new president, presided and spoke of the serious work confronting the women this year. A reception to the executive board proved a pleasant reunion, and the programme consisted of a reading by Mrs. Frances D. Tracy and piano solos by Mrs. Lawrence F. Nance. Next Tuesday, the club will hear a discourse upon Serbia, her culture, ideals and heroism, at the hands of Dushan L. Krivocapich.

The Santa Monica Club.

The Santa Monica Bay Women's Club will open on October 7 with a luncheon for members only, and the month's calendar includes Prof. Melbourne Greene of the University of California on "Art," and Lillian Burkhardt Goldsmith in a literary interpretation. A board meeting was held this week in which the spirit of optimisim was marked.

Officers of the club are as follows: President, Mrs. J. C. Urquhart; first vice-president, Mrs. J. B. Lorbeer; second vice-president, Mrs. J. Edgar Brown; recording secretary, Mrs. Le Roy Raymond; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Albert Skaloski; treasurer, Mrs. W. H. Cornett; treasurer's assistant, Mrs. Jack McKinley.

The chairmen of committees are: Federation secretary, Mrs. F. H. Taft; auditor, Mrs. S. J. Eggleston; standing committees: Publicity, Miss Charlena Welch; Printing, Miss Dunn; Membership, Miss Mae Armstrong; Reception, Mrs. Anna Henderson; Decoration, Mrs. Lydia Malchow; Emergency, Mrs. C. H. Peckham; Hospitality, Mrs. C. H. Tegner; Welfare, Mrs. Mary Joslyn; Philanthropy, Mrs. C. M. Waters; Programme, Mrs. R. A. Robertson; Teas, Mrs. O. A. Kirkelie; Cooked Foods, Mrs. Clark Power; House, Mrs. L. H. Kreke; Furniture, Mrs. A. W. Anson; Silver, Miss Elsie Beck; Glass, Mrs. Mary L. Phelps; Linen, Mrs. Victoria McLucas; Repairs, Mrs. F. H. Higgins.

War work chairmen are: Liberty Bonds, Miss Charelna Welch; War Service, Mrs. C. M. Shissler; War Victory Commission, Mrs. E. J. Vawter, Jr.; Home and Allied Relief, Mrs. Byron Palmer; Food Conservation, Mrs. R. Fogel; Red Cross, Mrs. P. C. Mitchell; Red Star, Mrs. L. Van Deerlin; Special Entertainment, Mrs. H. J. Engelbrecht and Mrs. L. H. Case; Advisory, Mrs. H. Hasse, Mrs. M. M. Gardner, Mrs. Al Jamison, Mrs. E. P. Nittinger and Mrs. J. B. Stewart.

Woman's Advertising Club.

Miss Miriam A. Chappelle, the new president, and the other incoming officers of the Women's Advertising Club, will be formally installed at the next meeting of the club to be held Tuesday evening, September 10, at Christopher's, South Broadway. Reports from the recent advertising convention at San Francisco will be heard, and the retiring president, Miss Florence Shindler, will submit a brief resume of the past year's achievements. Suggestions and a working outline for the coming year will be informally discussed and every member is urged to bring with her an original idea.

The new officers and chairmen who will take their seats are: President, Miss Chappelle; vice-president, Mrs. Clara V. Eastman; Recording Secretary, Miss Zella Hooser; Corresponding Secretary, Miss Beulah Leech; treasurer, Miss Mary Du Val; historian, Miss Katherine Carr; Executive Committee, Miss Shindler; Membership Committee, Miss Nell K. Stowell; Courtesy Committee, Miss Carr; Press Committee, Mrs. Eastman and Business Committee, Miss Hooser.

The publicity women's recent booklet presented at the convention has created widespread attention in national advertising circles, and requests for copies are coming from far eastern points. It embodied a compilation of statistics gleaned from the campaign conducted among Los Angeles women in an effort to authentically ascertain just what kinds of advertising and what mediums most appealed to them. Authorities on advertising who were present at the convention declared that the unbiased, dependable information contained therein will prove of almost incalculable aid to heads of firms and advertising men who spend vast appropriations annually in advertising.

The City Teachers.

The Los Angeles City Teachers' Club begins its activities under the leadership of the following officers for the ensuing year: Wilhelmina Van de Goorberg, President; Sarah E. Gooch, first vice-president; H. Maud Bland, second vice-president; Lela L. Glasscock, recording secretary; Zoe McClure, corresponding secretary; Hannah L. Chapman, editor of The Bulletin.

The Educational Committee offers a course of three lectures, the first by Dr. Melbourne Greene, "Art Appreciation," illustrated; Dr. Frederick Monsen, F.R.G.S., illustrated lecture; Alexander S. Kaun, "Russian Realities."

The regular membership meeting will be held in the clubrooms in the Trinity Building on Tuesday.

Welfare Commission.

The Woman's Executive Committee of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Welfare Commission will have charge of the commissary concessions at Exposition Park on Admission Day, Monday, the 9th inst.

Five hundred gallons of ice cream will be dispensed by this committee, and the entire proceeds will go to the fund being raised by the carnival for the athletic and music funds for the Arcadia Balloon School, Fort MacArthur, the Naval Reserves and Submarine Base.

Four attractive booths will be decorated by Mrs. Sloan-Orcutt, president of the Park Board, and they will be presided over by Mmes. W. C. Tyler, L. U. McClure, M. J. Weis, Frederick Hickok, George M. Swindell, Harry G. Henley, J. L. Butler, Harry Suydam.

A committee of men from the Elks and a number of the Liberty Girls will assist in making this part of the day's festivities a success.

Gardena Woman's Club.

Opening day, Wednesday of last week, saw the Wednesday Progressive Club rejoicing in a membership of 120 women, some of whom come long distances from points throughout the Gardena Valley to their comfortable clubhouse on Orchard avenue. Mrs. Fannie E. Gray, president, and her programme committee chairman, Mrs. Etta Struthers, for the two past years a most popular president, and Mrs. E. O. Weed, federation secretary, have made tentative plans which will tend toward a study of war conditions and will include home economics, civics, and probably specific war work to be done at the clubhouse.

On the 26th inst., apropos of such work, five women headed by Mrs. G. Weed, the latter always ready to take a practical initiative, will motor to the Belgian relief lunch headquarters on Hill street, this city, taking with them several fat chickens and other good things from the valley, and there serve luncheon and tea for the day. The club may make this a feature of each month's work.

The Cosmos Club.

The Cosmos Club met Wednesday to discuss definite plans for the season. Salvage has been added to the club's war interests. Mrs. I. W. Clendennon talked on the future of the returning soldier and was appointed to look into relief work and report to the club. Mrs. Alice T. Anderson, the president, announced that Hotel Clark will be the club's headquarters for Liberty Loan work in the next drive, of which Mrs. K. C. Moore will be chairman.

Mr. W. G. Abbott was the speaker of the afternoon and in the course of a war discourse said that the new civilization would insure the liberation of woman and her recognized citizenship. Mrs. McNeff, president of the Phoenix Woman's Club of Arizona, was a guest and made a brief talk.

California Badger Club.

A called meeting of the California Badger Club was held at the home of the president, Mrs. Arthur C. Labrie, No. 4226 Brighton avenue, last Wednesday afternoon. A motion was made and carried that the club's entire activities of the coming year be devoted to war work, and notice was also given of a revision of some of the by laws covering the matter of membership fees by which it is hoped to increase the membership of the club.

The afternoon was highly successful from a social point of view. The house was full of club members and their friends. Some music was played by Mrs. M. Stone-Gregory and Miss Margaret Goetz sang a group of songs, with Miss Ethel Congdon at the piano. Later she responded to a call for the "Sons of the Flag," by Gertrude Ross.

The Ebell Club.

Mrs. Mathew Robertson, the president of Ebell, has appointed her committees for the coming year as follows:

Auditor, Mrs. William S. Bullis; Art, Mrs. A. B. Cooke, Mrs. W. S. Bartlett, Mrs. Randall Hutchinson, Mrs. Grantland S. Long; Departments, Mrs. William H. Millspaugh, Mrs. Charles A. Stavnow; federation secretary, Mrs. Gertrude R. Nash; Legislation, Mrs. Chester C. Ashley; Membership, Mrs. Charles S. McKelvey, Mrs. Henry M. Binford, Mrs. Thomas Jefferson Douglass, Mrs. William E. McVey, Mrs. J. Henry Stewart; Parliamentarian, Mrs. Charles S. McKelvey; Philanthropy, chairman, Mrs. Charles N. Flint, Mrs. Sumner P. Hunt, Mrs. Benjamin Franklin Perkins, Mrs. William Read.

Press, Mrs. Allen W. Ellington; printing, Mrs. Charles H. Toll, Mrs. J. B. Millard, Mrs. William H. Millspaugh, Mrs. John S. Thayer; programmes, Mrs. J. B. Millard, Mrs. Samuel J. Keese, Mrs. William R. Mall, Mrs. Harmon Ryus, Mrs. James Bert Stearns; rentals, Mrs. Summer P. Hunt, Mrs. Fred Betts, Mrs. Lewis Clark Carlisle; courtesy, chairman, Mrs. Bruce H. Cass; assistant chairman, Mrs. George H. Mosher.

Special chairmen were named as follows: October, Mrs. Richard Gird; November, Mrs. G. L. Hutchinson; December, Mrs. Jesse B. Alexander; January, Mrs. Frank B. Harbert; February, Mrs. Mark B. Lewis; March, Mrs. P. H. Griffith; April, Mrs. Lee A. Phillips; May, Mrs. J. M. Schneider; June, Mrs. George H. Bishop.

Los Angeles Woman's Club.

The Los Angeles Woman's Club will have its annual picnic at the home of the president, Mrs. Virginia Marshall Clopton, No. 1837 West Twenty-second street, next Saturday, September 14, at 4 p.m. A Hoover sunset supper will be served on the lawn at 5:30 o'clock, furnished by the members of the club. The installation of officers will take place, after which the president will outline the year's work. All work will be eliminated except war work. Standing committees will be the Liberty Loan, Red Cross, War Stamp, Allied and any other as may be necessary from time to time to appoint.

One or two days a month will be set aside to sew for the children of the Allies. All "slackers" will have their name dropped from the club roster at the end of 1918, as the president is determined to make the club 100 per cent. American, even if it cuts the club to ten members only. "Help win this war" is the slogan of the club, and nothing else is considered to amount to anything now; therefore there will be no yearly programme, no sections, no committees, except the above mentioned, no year book, in fact, no needless expense whatever, to interfere with war work.

The officers are: President, Mrs. Virginia Marshall Clopton; first vice-president, Mrs. W. J. Vollbrecht; second vice-president, Mrs. N. L. Hubbart; third vice-president, Mrs. J. P. Douglas; corresponding secretary, Miss Eloise M. Clopton; recording secretary, Mrs. N. H. Hunt; treasurer, Mrs. G. McCune; federated secretary, Mrs. C. B. Morse; custodian, Mrs. N. L. Hubbart; directors, Mrs. J. M. Elliott, Mrs. M. Dessery, Mrs. C. M. Boughton, Miss Bertha Lang.

The Women's Lyric Club.

Realizing the great importance of good music in stimulating patriotism and maintaining the morale of the people at home, the Woman's Lyric Club, one of the largest choral clubs of the country, is entering upon the coming year's work with enthusiasm. In keeping with the club's desire to make its concerts a leading musical event of the season, the assisting artists for the November concert will be the Zoellner String Quartette.

Many new voices have applied for membership and several prominent artists are returning to the club work. One of the new and interesting compositions to be presented is "The Mystic Hour," by Clough-Leighter. The club will be under the direction of Mr. J. B. Poulin, as it has been since its organization, with Mrs. M. Hennion Robinson as accompaniste.

The officers elected and recently-appointed committees are as follows: President, Mrs. W. V. Goodfellow; vice-president, Mrs. L. W. Harmon; secretary, Mrs. Pearl Berry Boyd; financial secretary, Miss Louise Wharton; treasurer, Mrs. Louise Bitter; librarians, Mrs. R. R. Jaquith, Mrs. R. G. Hyatt; board members, Miss Helen Tappe, Mrs. W. R. Tanner, Mrs. W. W. Godsmark, Mrs. C. H. Inman; voice committee, Mrs. J. I. Moyse, Mrs. H. S. Haley and Mrs. Grace Elliott; printing committee, Mrs. L. J. Stabler, Mrs. E. S. Merrill and Mrs. Bessie Howell; music committee, Mrs. W. R. Tanner, Mrs. L. L. Merrick, Mrs. E B Prideaux and Miss Rose Mulholland.

At Glendale.

The Glendale Tuesday Afternoon Club is centering on a harvest festival to be given on the 20th and 21st inst. as a Red Cross benefit. The club has secured the athletic field of the high school and will erect a large number of booths around a pike, on which will be many attractions. The club's musical and dramatic talent will provide programmes for the two evenings.

Mrs. Mary Milligan of No. 115 East Park avenue entertained the Glendale Kensington Club on Friday, assisted by Mrs. Leno Roberts and Mrs. Louise Purnell. The afternoon was devoted to the completion of the club's service flag, on which thirty-seven stars have been placed for the husbands, sons, grandsons and brothers of members of the G. A.R. and the affiliated organizations of the N. P. Banks Post and Corps and Sons of Veterans.

At a meeting of Carnation Rebecca Lodge of Glendale, held in the I.O.O.F. Hall on Tuesday evening, preliminary plans were made for the celebration of the sixty-first anniversary of the order, which will occur September 17, and which will be a public meeting.

The Motor Maids.

Those gallant motor maids, known as the emergency drivers, who volunteer themselves and their cars for any old war service required of them, are going to give a veritable Parisian carnival in the streets outside the Rex Arms at Seventh and Olive stretts next Saturday, when there will be dancing, supper tables on the sidewalk in true Paris style, a psychic wheel, a submarine band, a country store and any amount of diverse fun. The proceeds will purchase a much-needed motor truck and ambulance. At least a dozen stylish picture stars will lend their aid.

The emergency drivers and officers, who are: Mrs. Ralph E. Starkweather, commander, and Lieuts. Mrs. Sam Haskins, Miss Ruth Hutchinson, Mrs. M. Bryson, Miss Irene Konigstein, will aid in looking after the welfare of the guests, in connection with the Rex Arms unit, and will be in uniform for the occasion. Among those in the Rex Arms unit are the following on the committee for the street dance and carnival: Mrs. Judson Mitchell, Mrs. Maurette Foss, Mrs. Smart and Mrs. Dana Weller.

The Matinee Musical Club.

The Matinee Musical Club, under the direction of its president, Mrs. Marshall S. Anderson, is planning an extensive campaign in war relief work in addition to its musical activities. A study section for harmony and French has been formed, in which the music of the Allied countries will receive special attention. The creative section is to be continued.

Danger Signal Always Ready.

From the beginning of railways in Great Britain a red necktie has been part of the uniform of trainmen and station employees. The object was that every railway servant might have always something at hand to improvise into a danger signal when a red flag was not available.

Some Corset Truths for Women to Consider

IT IS not an easy task to reshape a neglected figure into shapely lines. Neglect or poor corsetry allows little bumps, angles or hollows to mar the figure lines.

To smooth out these inequalities a properly designed corset and the use of proper materials in the corset will recreate the figure.

MODART Front Laced Corsets are poise designed. The designer of the MODART Corset makes all MODART Corsets give proper poise to the figure and then designs the corset to symmetrical artistic proportions.

Women with badly poised figures can never be graceful —try as they may. If proper poise is lacking, the grace is lacking, too.

So whether you are tall or short, stout or slender, you can have the carriage that will show your figure and your clothes to the greatest possible advantage if you will adopt the

FREE 44-Page Book to every reader of The Weekly Times

The difference between chickens lies in the weights they reach or the number of eggs they lay. BECAUSE almost any prize hen will lay more than 12 dozen eggs a year, and at the prevailing retail price of eggs, she is a stingy hen indeed who does not present her owner with at least $5 a year.

The swiftest dog in the world, the borzoi, or Russian wolfhound, has made record runs that show seventy-five feet in a second, while the gazelle has shown measured speed of more than eighty feet a second, which would give it a speed of 4800 feet in a minute if the pace could be kept up.

BITS OF VERSE.

The Woman.

Don't you want me, Uncle Sam?
  I'm a fighter, too!
Doesn't seem, here where I am,
  That there's much to do.

I can load and fire a gun,
  Yes, and I can hit!
Done it lots of times for fun.
  "Scared?" No, not a bit.

Yes, I've stood by many beds
  Where the ill have lain.
Bandaged feet and hands and heads,
  Heard no one complain.

Wounds from bayonet or shell,
  Famine, fire or flood—
No, I have no fear of hell
  And no fear of blood!

Don't you need me, Uncle Sam?
  Seems to me you do!
Staying here just where I am
  Will not help you through!

Better draft me into line.
  "Woman?" S'pose I am?
Isn't this old country mine?
  Think twice, Uncle Sam!

—[Lurana Sheldon, in New York Times.

Their Riches.

A wee little house, on a poor little road,
  With a little back yard behind it,
Afar from the avenues, stately and broad,
  But Love is quite able to find it!
And Molly is waitress, and laundress, and cook,
  And Tom lends a hand when he's able;
The furniture's plain, and the carpets are cheap,
  And there's little to put on the table;
In fact, they are poor, as the world reckons up,
  And there's little laid up—and yet, maybe,
These two may be worth a round million or more,
  If you put a fair price on the baby!

—[Charles Irvin Junkin, in People's Home Companion.

Evening Sunshine.

Fair lanes, rich fields,
High trees in shady woods,
How full of gentle comradeship you are,
When toward your vistas,
O'er your bosom firm,
And through your stately open spaces far,
Heart full of heavenly love—and human—
My evening steps turn home.

God holds you, hills and forests,
Where you stand
In all your beauty.
Every sunray gleam, across your summits,
Through your shining leafage,
Is warm from Him;
And benedictions
Beam upon my wanderings where His Love outreaches.

Within man's boundless soul
God's hand has laid,
At His Creative will,
Dark vales and heights;
But we may catch,
Amid the deepest shadows,
Soft shinings,
As, in woodland places,
Lights His sunbeam sweet on every forest flower.

—[Linville H. Wardwell, in Boston Transcript.

Robin Redbreast.

Sweet Robin, I have heard them say
That thou wert there upon the day
The Christ was crowned in cruel scorn
And bore away one bleeding thorn—
That so the blush upon thy breast,
In shameful sorrow, was impressed:
And thence thy genial sympathy
With our redeemed humanity.

Sweet Robin, would that I might be
Bathed in my Saviour's blood, like thee;
Bear in my breast, whate'er the loss,
The bleeding blazon of the cross;
Live ever, with they loving mind,
In fellowship with human kind;
And take my pattern still from thee,
In gentleness and constancy.

JAPAN NO LONGER OF GAY COLORS.

Japan no longer is the land of the flowing silk kimono. The war and the conservation measures attendant upon it have forced the girls of the Orient to abandon the purchase and wear of the bright-hued garments, and those that are of the proper grade of material are being cut into smaller pieces and used as clothing by the children of men at war and traded back to the dealers, in many instances, for other articles of merchandise.

Dr. L. E. Slater of Phoenix, Ariz., who was at the Ansonia Hotel yesterday told of the conservation that was being done in Japan. He just has reached America after a trip through that country.

"The gaudily-dressed street performers, the decorations of windows and of room interiors with silk that have characterized the country for so long," he said, "are gone. Silk is at a premium. About the only thing that remains to make one realize he is in Japan are the cherry blossoms. They continue to grow."—[New York Herald.

"SO NEAR AND YET SO FAR."

To no Frenchman does the American advance, and the recapture of the precious soil of France, mean more than to one Poilu at a certain point of a sector taken over by the Americans.

"Just a few more days; O, just a few more days, and then le bon Dieu," he says to himself as he stands at the observation post. He gazes intently through powerful glasses In the bluish, wavering field of the lens is a small, familiar looking house of stone. He can see the windows and the door. He can even tell when the upper half of the quaintly-constructed door swings open. Even more, he can recognize the faces which occasionally bob above the sill.

And sometimes the face is that of his wife, and sometimes the face is that of one of his children.

So near, and yet so far!

For the house, which was his home, is just beyond the line, in the country held by the hated Germans.

So, when the weather is good, he can see his home and family three or four days out of the week, although when the haze of bad weather palls the landscape, he is fortunate if he sees them once a week.

This man escaped across the line when the war broke out, but his family did not.

Thus the father does not measure time by the end of the war. With him it is "until the Americans drive the Germans beyond my home over there." For him that will be heaven.—[Kansas City Star.

Literary Page—Books and Their Makers.

THE MOST BAFFLING NOVEL.

BY GORDON RAY YOUNG.

"Jamesie."

I HAVE often shed a few tears over the obviousness, the crude black and white of our fiction in which subtilities are lacking and the art of conveying impressions and ideas without describing them is usually absent. With Miss Ethel Sidgwick's "Jamesie" (Small, Maynard & Co.) I dry my eyes. It is tantalizingly obscure, oblique, indirect; but as a work of artistry—some may say of art; I cannot—it is unique, perhaps supreme. "Jamesie" is bafflingly intricate without anything that resembles a plot, or rather such things as are generally called plots.

Miss Sidgwick, during the past five or six years, has called to herself a small group of admirers. She has not and can never have a wide appeal; but such as have graduated from Henry James will probably find her to their liking. This is her first novel to touch the war, and it is the nearest approach to what may be literally called a "transcript from life" of any books the war has brought out.

Imagine yourself to have come into possession of the notes and letters interchanged among numerous friends, but strangers to you (though many of the characters are not strangers to those who have read Miss Sidgwick's "Hatchways") written between 1914 and 1916. These people were wholly unaware of any special interest in their movements and ideas; they wrote naturally and being English made much use of the sporting and often cryptic vernacular. Each has a special interest: sports, woman suffrage, Irish estates and social affairs; and they correspond informally, emphasizing the unessentials and suggesting with only a phrase, a stray line, the idea or fact that is vital to the story.

The method in more ways than one suggests Browning; but most of all Miss Sidgwick would probably paraphrase the poet in saying, as he once put into an introduction (afterwards suppressed) that he never intended his verse to be a substitute for a game of dominoes.

"Jamesie" is hard going. The author's indifference to the reader is astonishing. The first pages seem a heterogeneous hodge-podge. In fact one must keep awake and on tiptoes all the way. Miss Sidgwick is subtle; her mind is electric, but one never sees a flash or hears a crackle; she is not undramatic, but as little theatrical as any novelist dead or alive.

She has sustained a score of characters, revealed them through brief letters, notes; but they are not characters that stand out forcibly, being rather like a group that one meets at a gathering where one is a stranger and pretty much out of things. It is like listening to people who are indifferent to one's interest, careless of whether or not one is having a pleasant time. The gathering is distinguished and refined, wholly self-sufficient and absolutely unconscious of having any special part in a drama of interest to the world at large. Young men are wounded at the front, many killed; their friends, their relatives accept the fate in the traditionally British manner—suffering, but unemotionally. Jamesie goes down in mid-channel; a torpedo. It is largely through his death that the book focuses on him, and the varying versions of how he died give the story its drama.

It is a book of intricate pattern, the very height of unique artistry, but an artistry that appeals largely (though not wholly) through its ingenuity of design—a beautiful puzzle in which the jumbled letters are sorted and arranged until a definite story is revealed. Except for the genuine poignancy of the war, one might—with no disrespect and in good criticism—call it a highly-intellectual charade. Not that the author had any such thing in mind. She did not. But her singular detachment from popular approval has led her to tell a story so naturally that it is almost unintelligible; it ignores all fictional conventions, and the effect is puzzling, at times bewildering.

"The Money-Maker."

Irving R. Allen, author of "The Money-Maker" (Dodd, Mead & Co.) is said to be an efficiency expert, one who has saved industries—I don't know how many hundreds of thousands of dollars—by his incisive suggestions. But as near as I can tell he has not brought that unusual acumen into fictional industry. He has written an entertaining story, but a shallow one. The hero, Dave Powers, considered seriously must be considered ridiculous. He doesn't even begin to live up to the subtitle: "The Romance of a Ruthless Man," and Powers wears the conventional veneer of fiction.

He begins life as a Chicago newsboy, rises to be the graft collector for a boodling Alderman, has a fling at being a fake doctor peddling a Chinese remedy from a street corner, makes big money as a Los Angeles real estate operator, and finally breaks into the Wall street game as the manager of a steel mill, and at last reforms, turns strictly honest, to rehabilitate himself in the faith of his wife.

The author has tried hard to make Powers a "strong" man; but Powers is anything but a silent man. He talks continually. True, he expresses the sentiments that are popularly supposed to be felt by "strong" men, but when the author's lack of artistry cannot convey those sentiments otherwise than through the hero's garrulity, neither the hero nor the author is entitled to serious respect. As a character study, Powers is cheap and tawdry.

The interest of the story does lie in the ingenuity of Powers in making money, in the stunts; but these are not always new. In fact, he succeeds as the manager of the steel mill by use of a simple device that Mr. Schwab himself has related. "The Money-Maker" is a picturesque novel of modern life, a bit of snappy light fiction and nothing more. Any attempt to give it dignity by dwelling on the author's distinction as an "efficiency expert" merely subjects it to a sharper scrutiny; and it is the sort of a book suitable only for the idle hour, the rainy evening.

"Towards Morning."

Miss I. A. R. Wylie is among those who have written to show Germany up from the inside. "Towards Morning" (John Lane Company) has its basis in picturing the debasing pressure of the Prussian system, of the contempt heaped upon the young hero, who fails in being a thorough Prussian, of how he goes to war and of the ravages and brutality, so that his soul revolts and he dies gloriously for disobedience of orders. It is a graphic story and all that; but one that must be doubted. If so many of the Germans grumbled as the author thinks, if so many of them felt as she says, it is highly improbable that even the rigid Prussian system could have held the German armies so staunchly in the field for so many years. As a narrative, however, it is well built, forceful, entertaining; but its "big purpose" is the conventional big purpose of many novelists—the rebellion of the one decent German amid the entire army against Prussianism.

"From Baseball to Boches."

It is my personal opinion that H. C. Witwer is a writer and a humorist fully as agreeable and clever as Ring Lardner; but Mr. Witwer does not seem to have so good an opinion of himself. "From Baseball to Boches" is patterned to an unprepossessing extent on Mr. Lardner's "You Know Me, Al."

Ed Harmon, a big-league pitcher, in a pique joins the army and goes to France. In a series of letters to "Dear Joe" he tells of his experiences. With so much straining, and particularly in following a pattern which "You Know Me, Al" made available, there is not so much cleverness in the book as one might expect from Mr. Witwer. His lively imagination has fabricated some unusual incidents in the war zone, and the telling of them is snappy. As a book it will probably appeal to Ring Lardner's admirers—which, no doubt, was what the author intended.

INDISCRETIONS.

FURTHER INDISCRETIONS. By a Woman of No Importance. E. P. Dutton & Co., New York.

This is a sequel, or a companion volume, or whatever you will, for the "Memories Discreet and Indiscreet" that the "Woman of No Importance" gave out two or three years ago. And like that book, it is helter-skelter of gossip and anecdote told of the English social set, of racing men and women, of doctors, politicians and actresses, of royalty and nobles, of journalists and whatnot.

Many of the names have slipped pretty much into obscurity, and most of them never were familiar to ears so far from the tinkling teacups of London. But interesting? Of course. It is irresistible to read of "Sirs" and "Earls" and their "Ladies;" to learn that the favorite joke of the mother of the king has to do with a lady whose nose dripped, to find the author (though she remains unidentified) engaged Bismarck on equal terms through their mutual interest in bugs, spiders and such, to hear of the various eccentricities of unfamiliar, though distinguished, persons.

But there are items of undeniably permanent interest: the one on Bismarck, for instance, which appears in a chapter that also gives curious information on Oscar Wilde. The author has never been able to rest her mind on whether the "low-cut waistcoat" Wilde wore "was cut all in one with the funny sort of black stock he wore."

The "Woman of No Importance" is quite saucy at times; also she seems to have kept the title of her book pretty well in mind, managing what at least appears to be a daring indiscretion at every chapter or so. The book is vivacious, quite amusing. "One of the regrets of my life," she remarks, "has been not having seen Lord Beaconsfield in his bath." This regret was inspired by his wife's remark that "Anyone wishing to see a true specimen of manly beauty should see Dizzy in his bath." The author adds: "I ought to have done so out of politeness, and it would have made such an unending source of conversation between us."

The book is full of that sort of thing, such chuckles and gossip; and it is a fat book, too.

TROPICAL CHAPTERS.

SEEN IN A MEXICAN PLAZA. By George F. Weeks. Fleming H. Revell Company, New York.

Mr. Weeks, having a perennial attack of spring fever, loafed and invited his soul in a sleepy little Mexican town and chatted with friends in the plaza. Being the only white man in the village, a village of peaceful habits, he had something of an idyllic experience and encountered many curious, interesting things and people, including a crow that picked—pecked—out a tune on the piano, and an old sergeant who had served in the Crimean War, seen the charge of the light brigade, and been awarded medals, among which was the Victoria Cross. Then, too, there was the movie exhibition in open air, and the hot water bath that gave joy worth a thousand miles of travel to indulge in.

The chapters are written in a leisurely style that somewhat reflects the soft languor of tropical influence.

HEREDITARY WEALTH.

THE ABOLITION OF INHERITANCE. By Harlan Eugene Read. The Macmillian Company, New York.

The great jurist, Blackstone, declared inheritance to be a civil convenience only, and not a natural right; and, adds Mr. Read, "as a logician I am interested in showing that the principle of inheritance is morally wrong and unjust, whether Blackstone said it or not."

The dissipation of unearned wealth, or the inheritance of immense fortunes, is, this author maintains, the most important economic question of the day; and offers the only equitable, if not possible, means of effacing the great war debt. The principle of inheritance, he finds, has no more base than the divine right of kind and of succession to thrones. "No more absurd and unreasonable situation can be presented than the generally accepted rule that men who have passed beyond the tomb . . . must be obeyed because they wrote on a piece of paper."

The book is forceful. In many quarters it may well be considered dangerous. The author is comprehensive, viewing the question from many sides, and if he does not entirely convince he must certainly impress those who read.

BOOK NOTES.

The Bookman.

George H. Doran announces that beginning with the September number the Bookman will be issued under his imprint. It is to be hoped that this one magazine devoted exclusively to the interest of literary events and themes will deserve and meet with support. It is announced that the only purpose of the Bookman will be "to cultivate and foster the art of reading," and that it will not, even in any remote sense, be the organ or spokesman of any one publishing house or for any group of publishers.

Adventures.

E. P. Dutton & Co. are publishing Arnold Wright's "Early English Adventures in the East," which covers the period between Drake's voyage around the world and the close of the sixteenth century. It was during that hundred years that the English laid the foundation for the British empire in the east, and that foundation was not laid without tragedy and heroism, comedy and sacrifices, stories of which the author has taken from obscurity and given anew to the public.

"The Modern Library."

Boni & Liveright announce they have been compelled to raise the price of the books in the Modern Library series from 60 to 70 cents, and that just as soon as conditions are again normal, the price will be reduced. The Modern Library offers a choice selection of reprinted classics—or rather of books that will be classics when the authors of them have been dead sufficiently for canonization.

Prof. Nicolai.

It is announced from Paris that Prof. G. F. Nicolai, the famous professor and physician to the imperial household of Germany, who escaped to Denmark recently by an airplane, is being detained by civil authorities. His "Biology of the War" will be published this fall by the Century Company.

John Masefield.

John Masefield's new book, "The War and the Future," has just been published by the Macmillans. It contains the lectures Mr. Masefield has been giving in this country for many months past.

"The New Elizabethans."

John Lane is publishing under the editorship of E. B. Osborn a book called "The New Elizabethans," being the memoirs of men distinguished in all walks of life who have been killed in the war. Many of the slain have been men of letters, and among these Rupert Brooke, Donald Hankey, H. H. Monroe and Dixon Scott.

An Apology.

So many times I have had to regret speaking ill of anybody that sheer dint of experience should long ago have modified that prerogative of the reviewer; but I never thought to apologize for my opinion of William Lyon Phelps. I must. He is thoroughly human—a real flesh and blood fellow despite Yale and the professorship of literature therein. In the August 24 number of the Nation, Prof. Phelps, responding to a nudge as to his opinion on baseball, gives more than a page of comment on "Sporting Blood." He mentions many games, mostly athletic, though he says people who go in for mere exercise do not have sport. If he had but mentioned poker with anything like the sympathy of pugilism, I should entirely have forgotten the bookish articles over which he has sometimes placed his name.

The Lonesome Life.

Real estate agent: What does your wife think of my proposition?

Prospect (husband of society woman:) I don't know. I haven't seen her since you were here last week; I've been spending my evenings at home.—[Buffalo Express.

WAR BOOKS.

"War Letters of Edmond Genet." (Scribner's) are letters from a boy who was one of the first, if not the first, to sacrifice his life for America in the great war. They are boyish and naive, beginning with his service in our navy at Vera Cruz, to his experiences as aviator with the French army. In order to get into the war, he deserted from our navy and through the letters runs a rather pitiful vein of sorrow because of this.

"Germany at Bay." Maj. Haldane MacFall of the British army is the author (Doran.) Although the author has an air of being excited almost beyond human endurance, the book gives interesting new light upon the military campaigns of this war. Maj. MacFall contends that the Germans never intended to invade Belgium, but were maneuvered into that blunder by Joffre. The general purpose of the book is to show that the Germans are not as skilled military scientists as we have supposed.

"War and Progress." This is a fascinating book to those interested in world diplomacy. Its purpose is to show the danger to America of allowing Japan to dominate China. Its tone is sane and moderate. The author, William S. Howe, was formerly in the United States consular service in China. Le Roy Phillips, publisher.

"The Business of War." In a chatty and entertaining way, Isaac F. Marcosson has explained the method by which the Allies manage the stupendous problem of feeding the huge armies. John Lane, publisher.

"The Vandal of Europe." Wilhelm Muhlon, author of this book, is the Krupp factory director who made such a terrific sensation by publishing an article accusing the military caste of Germany with having ruthlessly plotted this war. This book is a continuation and elaboration of his revelations. It is a vital and important contribution to the history of this war. (Putnam.)

"The Government of the British Empire." Edward Jenks, B.C.L., M.A., has rendered an important service in presenting in a brief, clear way, the complicated system by which the British are governed. He gives just enough of the history of British institutions to make them understandable.

VERSE.

CONVENTIONAL SWEETNESS.

THE OLD ROAD TO PARADISE. By Margaret Widdemer. Harry Holt & Co., New York.

Margaret Widdemer is a conventional singer with the melody and mood that should sell her books: a sweet fluency untroubled by depth of thought or involuted artistry. The simple, the obvious, are her special gifts. Prophecies are gratuitous, but I have no hesitancy in saying that some years hence she will be with the snows of yesteryear. A pretty poem, like a pretty woman, soon seems an inane thing, though when one is very young or very old—the two ages of sentimentality—either is apt to reduce the admiration to folly.

Miss Widdemer has not written many poems of the quality of "St. Jeanne Rides Out"—not that it would save her from her gilded mediocrity if she did—but it and "The Dancers" are among the few poems of this collection that are most likely to arrest discriminating attention. This poet is sweet, given to songs of the kind that urge one to sing-song reading; and I know of no more appropriate gift to the "lover" of poetry who knows nothing of the poets.

NATURE PIECES.

IDYLLS OF CHAMPLAIN. By Ella Warner Fisher. LeRoy Phillips, Boston.

Mrs. Fisher is another of those poets who make generous use of the old, tried and true figures of speech and phrases:

"Ere the finger of man
Was create to write."

"Nature's child," "scars of the centuries," "not a stir of a leaf," "mystic charm," "men of iron will," "the silent evening air" are a few plucked out at random.

Most of the poems are, as the title suggests, nature pieces, designed as cool and refreshing and placid; and they have a simplicity, an unaffected attitude that does give them a value in excess of some more artistic work.

"'A Daughter of the Land' is a big novel, an American novel, a novel to be proud of, to be read and reread. Big-boned, big-muscled, strong, charged with human nature, centred about a heroine as big and clean and fine and strong as an American woman can be, this book has about it all the splendid courage of Kate Bates, whose story it tells."—New York Sun.

THE FUNNY WHEEL.

BY EUGENE BROWN.

"How do you folks manage to work out the problem now that the government will only allow a 50 per cent. production of touring cars?" said I to the sunny salesman, as he pawed over my vest for a stray cigar. "Just as many people want geewhizzers as ever. Suppose I want a new car; what do I do?"

"You give me a certified check for eighteen hundred rosy bucks and put your trust in a smiling providence," replied the amiable agent, blandly.

"Sing that to Wilson," retorted I. "But just suppose I'm in earnest. What happens?"

"Why, we sell you half a car," responded the salesman, blandly. "After the war you get the other half."

"Is that so?" said I, in sarcasm. "Which half do I get?"

"Which one do you want?" remarked the agent.

"Well, if it's all the same to you," said I, "I'd take the hind half. Then I'll get rid of my engine trouble and I won't have to be monkeying with the gears."

"Sometimes you almost talk like a sane person," responded the salesman. "Possibly you won't get pinched so often for busting the limit. You won't be running down so many cripples, but other people will be butting into you."

"Let them try it," snorted I. "But which end of your boat takes on the soup?"

"Our gasoline supply is a rear feed, if that is what you mean," responded the agent.

"Not for mine," exclaimed I. "I might take the hind half of one of Honk Ford's road rabbits, but not of one of your machines. I don't want to have to buy the gas."

"Gee! but you're looking for a dead-head enterprise," exclaimed the salesman. "You ought to be a missionary."

"I came near being one," responded I, loftily.

"Shake!" ejaculated the agent. "So did I. I love the profession. I sold a car last week that goes to a missionary in China."

"For the love of Lucy!" exclaimed I. "Are they still sending missionaries across the ocean?"

"They are that," replied the salesman. "And they are training them to hunt human souls with a six-cylinder Skeedaddilac. It is pretty hard for a brood to get away when you go after it with a varnished baby like that."

"You talk like a near-missionary yourself."

"I am that," returned the agent. "I was brought up to it, e'en from childhood and all my plans and hopes were based upon a career as a missionary."

"And to what do you attribute your downfall?" said I, adding in embarrassed apology, "that is, how were you brought into your present nefarious business, when the paths of a missionary were opened to you?"

"I am the victim of circumstances," replied the salesman, sadly. "If you have tears prepare to shed them now: Once I was beautiful and good. Even as a youth I was librarian in a Baptist Sunday-school and the preacher was wont to present me to other boys as an example of what their own young lives should be. It was planned that I should go to college when old enough, and then to the thological seminary and thence to the missionary field. All my early reading and training was to that end. But, alas! it was not to be. On an unforunate Sabbath for me the pastor came to church half an hour earlier than usual"—and here he gave a gulp.

"How could so trivial a thing as that wreck your life?" queried I, sympathetically.

"In those days whenever there were converts to be baptized in the winter season it was the custom to heat the water in advance and then let it cool down. It had been my task to fill the baptistry and start the heating apparatus. At the same time this had seemed an excellent occasion to bathe and wash Bruno, my massive St. Bernard pup, and the dog had learned to welcome the event, because he loved the water. He got so that he hung on the outskirts at revival meetings and he seemed to keep tab on what were the trail-hitters of that time. On this particular occasion there were four candidates for church membership and the preacher it seems had arranged to meet and talk further with one of them almost a full hour in advance of his usual appearance. When he and his convert opened the back door of the church they found the baptistry running wide open. I had just lathered Bruno and he was having a fine swim in the tank. The preacher gasped and turned pale. 'You sacrilegious son of Belial!' he exclaimed in horror, and could say no more. Anyhow Bruno and I were chased ignominiously from the church as ones nevermore to be trusted. Also the discovery seemed to explain some matters that had been regarded with suspicion. It was understood why the minister and most of the new members complained of having fleas, and why the pastor had once brought home dog biscuit instead of graham crackers. Likewise the candidate who was witness of my undoing decided promptly to postpone the rite and never was baptized. Later, he became an insurance agent and somehow or other I have always been held responsible for the loss of his soul."

"How about the preacher?" prompted I, sympathetically.

"That was the saddest of all," sobbed the agent, as he furtively pressed a handkerchief to his eyes. "He got the mange and they had to shoot him!"

"Is that all?" said I, softly.

"That'll be about all," replied the agent, in a hoarse whisper.

And turning on his heel he was gone.

Kept Trying.

There used to be a little restaurant in Washington famed for its southern breakfasts, where the chief waiter was an aged darky of beautiful manners and unshakable dignity.

One morning a rather severe-appearing elderly gentleman, with a snowy mustache and a keen eye, entered the establishment. He was a stranger, but the venerable waiter, after a quick survey of the new patron, felt no doubt. He approached with a napkin over his arm and bowed low and politely.

"Good mornin', gin'ril," he said tentatively in greeting.

"I am not a general," snapped back the customer.

"'Scuse me, admiral," cried the old negro. "What kin I bring you, sah?"

"I am not an admiral, either."

"Well, suh, I knowed you wuz up among de face cyards somewhars. Kin I have the pleasure of orderin' you some ham and waffles, bishop?"—[Saturday Evening Post.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIRS,
WARTS AND MOLES.

Pulling a few stiff hairs from the face may start a serious growth. Let me demonstrate free of charge how pulling, cutting, using wax depilatories and the so-called hair removers promote growth of hair on the face. My electric machine is the only known method of killing superfluous hair, fuzz, warts and moles, without destroying the surrounding tissue. This machine destroys 300 hairs an hour. I have had 19 years' experience and devote all my time to this work. A binding guarantee that any hairs or moles I treat will never return. Many L. MAKE NO CHANGE
UNTIL YOU HAVE CONSULTED CLARKE,
THE MASTER PSYCHIC.

Every day a stream of people pass in and out of his office on Alvarado street, some go away smiling, others more hopeful than for years, for this marvelous psychic, who sees all and tells all without asking a solitary question, is always able to restore the wavering faith in others and give them back that self-confidence which makes for success. He helps you gain what you wish at once, almost immediately removes the cause of any bad luck, bad habits, sickness, trouble or failure. He helps you win back the love you have lost.

"CHARACTER IS DESTINY."

Down through the ages, Seers, Saints and Saviours have proclaimed man's divinity; but it remained for the advancing science of mind at the dawn of the twentieth century to accomplish the complete destruction of the dogma of the freedom of the will and to definitely indentify the Real Man as a fragment of Nature governed by natural law. The Inner Man, or Soul, is an immortal Atom of the One Substance; while the Outer Man is but the mortal compound of immortal elements in which the Real Man is incarnated. It is the divinity of the Real Man within which "shapes our ends, rough hew them as we will." Man is governed by a divine and immutable law which impels him to do that which he thinks is for his greater good or lesser ill; but when he knows different, he desires different and does different. Thus man is divine and so-called "sin" an "evil" is shown to be but a manifestation of ignorance, and true salvation may only come through that intuitive perception of Truth we know as Wisdom, as Law, as Love, as God. The Master Psychic who has attained to Cosmic Consciousness is a Soul Seer and Mental Chemist who teaches you how to awaken the latest powers of the Inner Self and gain what you desire—to make the Ideal Real.

Thousands of the best people of this city and surrounding country have consulted the master psychic, and are amazed at what he is able to tell them. He not only gives you more help, more knowledge and power than any other psychic, but more than all other mediums and psychics combined.

All are welcome to his beautiful home, opposite Westlake Park, where they may read all the inspiring books of his large library, whether they wish to have a reading or not. Those who wish to take up character reading as a pastime or profession will find all the latest books on palmistry, astrology, graphology, card-reading, phrenology, the science of names and numbers, etc., at the circulating library, for loan or for sale.

Today new opportunities are at hand. You may be able to get a better position, better salary or business, dispose of your property to advantage. The time to do things is now. Call at once. Readings daily and Sunday 10 to 7. Low fee—50c.

For appointment Phone Wilshire 2956.

A REAL OPPORTUNITY—

If you are going to purchase a used car, YOU OWE IT TO YOURSELF to see our stock of over SIXTY USED CARS. You will not be treating yourself right if you take it for granted that the first car you see is the one to buy. Compare our values, compare our GUARANTEE, compare our standing in the automobile industry with others and do not overlook the fact that we are NOT speculators in used cars—then make your selection.

FOR SALE—CHANDLER 6, REBUILT THROUGHout. Do you know the difference between a rebuilt car and one that has just been merely overhauled? It will pay you to find out. You will notice the difference the moment your ride in one of our REBUILT cars and you will appreciate the difference also when you see how strongly we guarantee such a car. It will prove to you conclusively that we must know that the car is as near perfect as it is possible to have any piece of mechanism, and it should be, for we are the distributors for the CHANDLER SIX and we know how to take care of them. We also know just how valuable it is to us to see that every CHANDLER that we place on the road, whether a new or used car, gives the purchaser absolute satisfaction. We are selling at least 50 per cent. more CHANDLERS today because of our interest in a car AFTER it has been sold than we would be selling if we only overhauled these used CHANDLERS. You cannot go wrong in selecting a used CHANDLER in preference to a cheap new car. We will not allow you to be dissatisfied. You cannot be other than a satisfied purchaser, because we leave nothing undone in rebuilding a car. THERE ARE NO CHANDLERS OFFERED IN OUR USED CAR DEPARTMENT BUT THOSE WHICH HAVE BEEN REBUILT. We have all types and models of used CHANDLERS to offer at prices ranging from $650 to $1600. EARL V. ARMSTRONG, Inc., (Distributors for the CHANDLER SIX.) Used Car Departments at 1136 S. OLIVE and 1034 S. MAIN ST. Phones: 60895 or Main 3459. Open Sundays, 11 to 4 p.m.

FOR SALE—1917 SAXON SIX.

Go out and price one of these cars and then come in and see this one at $750 and you will appreciate that this is a very good figure, and we will include terms if you desire. Were this car even as high in price as others on the used car market, it would still be advisable to purchase from us, as our service and GUARANTEE agreements are far above the average. They are going to mean at least a saving of FIFTY DOLLARS to you in the next year. Used Car Dept., CHANDLER SIX, 1136 S. Olive or 1034 S. Main. Phone 60895 or Main 3459. Open Sundays, 11 to 4 p.m.

NEW YORK COTTON IS STEADY, FIRM, HIGHER.

CLOSES FORTY TO SIXTY POINTS UP AFTER DAY OF LITTLE ACTIVITY.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The cotton market was much less active today, but ruled generally steady and firm, with the general closing steady at a net advance of 40@64 points.

The nervousness noted on the late reaction of yesterday seemed to have subsided over night, while buyers found encouragement in the lower southwestern temperatures, the favorable war news, the continued absence of hedge selling, and reports that both foreign and domestic trade interests had been buyers of contracts on the break of the previous day.

Week-end crop reviews suggested that recent rains had benefited cotton in Oklahoma and Arkansas, but were less optimistic concerning Texas. Futures:

But Pigs and Cows In "Roto!" That's a New One!

PROPOSED LAW IS DENOUNCED.

Compulsory Health Insurance Called un-American.

Physicians Address Meeting of California League.

Amendment Would Add to Fat State Commissions.

Scathing denunciation of the proposed amendment to the State Constitution which will permit the enactment of compulsory health insurance measures was made last night by Mrs. Dudley Smith of Oakland and H. A. L. Ryfkogel of San Francisco before a meeting of 200 members of the California League for the Conservation of Public Health in Hamburger's Cafe.

"Compulsory social insurance is an imported system from Germany, autocratic and compulsory in its scope, which will affect two-thirds of the people of California," Dr. Smith asserted. "It also takes from the people the rights of individual citizenship. It will cost the people of California at the outset from $30,000,000 to $40,000,000, 40 per cent. of which will be paid by the laborers, 40 per cent. by the employers and 20 per cent. from the State treasury.

"If the amendment to the State Constitution, which will be voted upon next November, and is known as Item No. 20, Amendment No. 26, is passed, it will mean that the new law will be the grand-daddy commission of the other forty fat ones, giving opportunity for the biggest political machine.

"Germany started her system of compulsory social health insurance with an expenditure of $30,000,000 a year, and it rapidly ran up until the last known figures were over $180,000,000 a year. It also enslaves the laborer and gives incentive to malicious fakirs. It makes the respectable and hard working pay for the protection of the vicious and idle. It will give a cheap type of medical and surgical attention, which is always dangerous when life or death is involved.

"No single American State has adopted this idea, and California needs it least of any, because there is less poverty here, due to exceptional climatic and industrial conditions. Crowded Massachusetts has refused it twice, and while it is said to be for the benefit of the laborer, yet the American Federation of Labor has gone on record against it. A few faddists and politicians are trying to 'put across' on the unsuspecting public a Prussianized scheme that would build up a political machine, all under the banner of so-called humanity. The world is full of its debauching effect upon the German people, and the people of California want none of it."

Dr. Ryfkogel urged the members to inform as many as possible of the proposed amendment to the State Constitution in order that it be killed at the coming election in November.

FATALLY HURT.

Unidentified Man Tries to Cross Street in Motor's Path, and is Struck Down.

An unidentified man, about 75 years of age, was struck by an automobile last night at Thirty-seventh street and Santa Fe avenue and received injuries which, the Vernon police say, will prove fatal.

Chief Fred Harris of the Vernon police department sent several telegrams last night to Imperial Valley points, in an effort to identify the aged man. According to the police, the victim attempted to cross Santa Fe avenue and dodged in front of a big roadster in which were J. H. Priestley and James W. Stout. The machine struck the old man to the pavement and ran over him.

The two men in the automobile attempted to escape, but were caught after an exciting chase by Officer McCoy of the Vernon police, who commandeered an automobile and followed the fugitives. The victim of the accident was taken to the Emergency Hospital at Vernon, where he was said to be dying at a late hour last night.

HALF-CENTURY MEN WOULD AID COUNTRY.

The Half Century Association, which has made an offer of the services of 3000 men for any practical service for which they may be used by the government, yesterday, through its president, M. E. Bryant, received from Congressman Osborne an acknowledgment of the offer, and his statement that he proposes to at once lay the proposal before Secretary Baker, with his recommendation that the offer be utilized.

The association has asked that all elderly men who are willing to volunteer for such war work as may be assigned them, so that they may relieve younger men who can go into the foreign service, meet with the association at 8 o'clock next Thursday evening at Normall Hill Center. E. A. Martin will be the speaker, and will talk of the work which these volunteers hope to accomplish.

KILLED IN SHIPYARD.

Privar of No. 1925 Arapahoe street, a shipyard worker who was accidentally killed here Friday, will be held tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock at the chapel of Pierce Brothers. DIDN'T STAND UP.

Alfonso Catrello, 26 years old, late of Italy, is now registered at the City Jail. Catrello last night entered the Burbank Theater and when the "Star Spangled Banner" was played by the orchestra he did not stand up. Other patrons, indignant, attacked Catrello and he fled to the street, where a group of soldiers and sailors welcomed him in their own way. Patrolman J. J. Jones appeared and, taking the prisoner from the soldiers and sailors, transported him to the City Jail, where he was booked on a charge of disturbing the peace.

AUTO STEALING AN EXPENSIVE PASTIME

That automobile stealing is an expensive sport, especially when probation is granted to those convicted of offenses, is shown by figures on several recent cases compiled by the theft bureau of the Automobile Club of Southern California. It is the opinion of Secretary S. L. Mitchell of the Auto Club that too much leniency is shown toward the motor thief, kind-hearted judges permitting him to range loose and continue his depredations.

Recently Steve Reyes and Ramon Meza were arrested in Florence, Ariz., on telegraphic request from the Auto Club's theft bureau. They were in possession of a car belonging to Mrs. Viola Ryder of Hollywood. Here are the figures on the case:

Transportation from Florence..........	$ 137.10
Board bill at Florence	16.75
Approximate cost of court proceedings, figures from Dist.-Atty. Woolwine	500.00
Officer's time	50.00
Paid by Inter-Insurance Exchange of Auto Club to restore car to original condition	600.00
Cost of reward, wires and incidental expenses	100.00
Total	$1403.85

Both of these men were placed on probation by the court.

O. B. Haskins was arrested in El Paso, Tex., on the request of Detective Powell of the Auto Club while in possession of a car belonging to Mr. George Gideon of Long Beach. Here are the expenses:

Transportation from El Paso..........	$ 136.00
Board bill at El Paso	10.01
Cost of trial	500.00
Officers' time for ten days	50.00
Paid by Inter-Insurance Exchange of Auto Club to restore car	350.00
Reward and miscellaneous expenses	100.00
Total	$1146.10

In another instance, one Emmett Meek, a person of many aliases and a lengthy police record, was arrested by Detective Powell of the Auto Club and Detective Hickock for the theft of a car belonging to H. Granis. He was tried by a jury and found guilty of operating a motor vehicle without the consent of the owner. On August 20 the court placed him on two years' probation.

GERMAN WARSHIP SUNK BY TORPEDO OR MINE.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 7.—One of a squadron of German warships cruising off the coast of the island of Ameland Friday evening ran on a mine, or was torpedoed, according to reports received here.

The ship was seen suddenly to heel over and disappear.

HOSPITAL WATCHMAN KILLED, SUSPECT HELD.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

STOCKTON, Sept. 7.—G. A. Kohn, night watchman at the State Hospital for the insane here, was shot and killed at the hospital grounds tonight. A young man named George Delaney was promptly arrested by the police and was questioned closely concerning the affair. He will be held.

Officials at the hospital state that Kohn found Delaney lying asleep on a lawn and took him to the hospital office for questioning.

Because he appeared to have been drinking, Dr. Fred P. Clarke, the superintendent, advised Kohn to take Delaney home. When they neared some shrubbery in the grounds, a shot rang out and Kohn fell dead. Delaney was arrested at once.

AUTO KILLS CHILD.

Five-Year-Old Ran Across the Street in Spite of Warning Call by Uncle.

As she ran across the street in spite of the warning called to her by her uncle, S. H. Shull, Margaret Brown, 5-year-old daughter of F. A. Brown, a civil engineer of No. 1116 West Vernon avenue, was struck by an automobile driven by W. A. Ward of No. 1250 Leighton avenue, and killed yesterday.

The accident was unavoidable, according to Police Officer Pete Bailey, an eyewitness. The body of the little girl lies at the mortuary of W. A. Brown.

For the Present.

INFLUX OF RECRUITS AT KEARNY NEARLY ENDED.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

CAMP KEARNY, Sept. 7.—Arrival of about 1500 more draft recruits here today virtually brought to a close the influx for the present of these men, which started early this week. Exactly when the movement will be finished is problematical; officers said today that boards whose quotas were to total well over 2000 men and were to arrive last Thursday, had failed by about 200 men to turn in complete contingents.

The medical examiners worked five hours today and turned out 600 men, after which they stopped until next Monday. This necessitates some men remaining here forty-eight hours without examination, which had not been planned originally.

The Jewish new year service was read in the recruit camp today for the benefit of more than 100 members of that faith quarantined there. Other Jews here went to Los Angeles or San Diego homes to spend the holiday season. Passes were given virtually all Jews in camp, except recruits, from noon yesterday until next Monday morning.

A boxing class will be started in the recruit camp next week under direction of George Blake, division boxing director. A boxing show will be staged there next Tuesday night, with talent drawn from the Sixteenth Division.

A second lieutenant was performing the functions of sergeant-major at the recruit camp headquarters today. He was one of the noncommissioned officers recently appointed to commissioned rank and was remaining at his old work until things were straightened out.

It is hoped to occupy the Red Cross administration building, long planned for erection here, within sixty days, it is announced. The building is to be located in the civic center, near the office structure recently put up by the Red Star. It will contain offices and sleeping accommodations for the administrative personnel.

The War in the Air.

MANNHEIM AGAIN BOMBED BY BRITISH AIRPLANES.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Sept. 7.—An official communication on bombing and raiding operations issued by the Air Ministry tonight says:

"On the night of September 6-7 our squadrons carried out attacks against two hostile airdromes. Fires were caused, but observation of the results was hindered by weather conditions, as were operations generally. All of our machines returned.

"On the morning of September 7 our squadrons attacked the railways at Ehrang (four miles northeast of Treves, Prussia,) and the chemical works at Mannheim. Good bursts were observed on and beside the railway lines at Ehrang.

"Fierce opposition was met with in the raid on Mannheim, but, despite this, the object was reached and successfully bombed. Eight direct hits and many other good bursts were observed on the chemical works.

Our squadrons fought largely-superior numbers of enemy airplanes both before and after reaching the objective. One squadron had a hard, continuous fight for a distance of seventy miles before reaching its objective, and the fight continued for another seventy miles on the way back. Over two tons of bombs were dropped on Mannheim.

"As a result of the fighting one enemy airplane was destroyed and two more were driven down out of control. Four of our machines are missing."

Remarkable.

KILLED UNDER ALIAS HE TOOK TO STAY SOLDIER.

HOW an honorably discharged United States soldier took an assumed name and lived under it for eighteen years that he might continue to serve in the army of his country was disclosed last night when Lafayette M. Allen of No. 5871 Estrella avenue was asked concerning his nephew, "William T. McGraw," whose death, of wounds received in action, is reported in this morning's casualty list.

Orlie Lafayette Mullen of Lee county, Virginia, enlisted when a young man and fought through the Cuban war. He contracted so severe a sickness during the latter part of the campaign that after a term in an Atlanta hospital he was honorably discharged from the United States Army "unfit for service."

At his home he recuperated and in 1900 attempted to re-enlist. For the reason that he had been discharged "unfit for service" he was rejected. After thinking the matter over for a few days he returned to the office and offered himself for enlistment under the name, "William T. McGraw." In so doing he forfeited the chance of receiving the pension due him after his discharge.

He has gone under that name ever since, undetected. His family was in the secret, and addressed his letters to the fictitious name. Word came to the uncle, Mr. Allen, that "McGraw" was wounded in action in France on June 11, and later, that he had died of his wounds on June 20.

"McGraw" was close by when Gen. Lawton was killed in the Philippines; he spent part of his time in the service on police duty during the fisheries trouble in Alaska; he was among the first contingents that went to France with Gen. Pershing; and he has given his life on the battlefield, after serving his country a score of years.

Mr. Allen has nine nephews fighting for the United States. One of them, Chester Haburn, also of Lee county, Virginia, was killed in June.

SHIPYARD WORKMEN TAKE HALF HOLIDAY.

SEVERAL THOUSAND REFUSE TO WORK SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Sept. 7.—Shipyard workmen estimated to number several thousand laid down their tools at noon today and refused to work out the day. Three steel shipyards were affected, the Northwest Steel Company, the Columbia River Shipbuilding Corporation, and the Albina Engine and Machine Works.

The workmen said they were dissatisfied because the summer Saturday half-holiday had not been extended through the fall and winter. By pre-concerted arrangement they walked out when the noon time whistle blew. It was said they would return to work Monday morning.

AIRPLANES IN BATTLE ZONE BOMB RAILROADS

ELEVEN GERMAN MACHINES, ONE BALLOON DESTROYED AND PHOTOS TAKEN.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Sept. 7.—The official statement on aerial activities on the battle zone says:

"Eleven German airplanes were brought down on September 6 in air fighting and twelve were driven down out of control. One enemy balloon was destroyed. Five of our machines are missing.

"Observation for the artillery was continued, both by airplanes and balloons. Some valuable reconnaissances were carried out by our machines and large numbers of photographs were taken, while our balloons reported much useful tactical information.

"During the day and the following night thirty-two tons of bombs were dropped by our airmen, the railway connections at Armentieres, Lille, Douai, Derain, Cambrai and St. Quentin being heavily attacked. All our night flying machines have returned."

Some of the apartments and flats have waiting lists. This condition will soon be acute. With building almost stopped, buying from those who are willing to sell may soon be the only way out for many who want to make their homes in Los Angeles. It is somewhat significant that most of the recent sales of residences in the city have been made to people from other States. The realty men say that these members of the tourist vanguard soon size up the situation and seek out agents with houses for sale.

It is also to be expected that the large number of Los Angeles people who have been hesitating for years, waiting for times to pick up, for the war to end and for they themselves only know what else, before venturing to build or buy, will now be awakening to the compulsion of the situation. Taking all the facts and probabilities into consideration, it seems likely that the real estate men will soon have their hands full handling residence property sales and that all who have for one reason or another wanted to sell in the recent dull years will have their opportunity soon and at better figures than the sacrifice prices they may formerly have placed on their holdings.

The Fact and Comment man isn't going to emit an "I told you so!" until the kind of a market prophesied actually comes to pass, but he is willing to be on hand with the prediction that it is coming, and soon. It would seem the part of wisdom for anyone wanting a home to lose no time in looking around for one that suits him.

THAT FELLOW BOLGIANO

made me agree to sell for $8500 my splendid 10-room Swiss chalet on a 75-foot east front corner lot. Why the way things are going now with fine homes getting scarcer, I can get $10,000 at least before Christmas. Just think of it—on beautiful St. Andrews place, richly finished large living-room, dining-room, small library, sunny breakfast-room four bedrooms, two baths. You can sleep upstairs or down. Garage, most wonderful flowers, shrubbery and lawn. But I'll stock to my agreement with Golgiano and if he sells my place before his time limit is up, I'll take $8500, otherwise the price goes right up where it belongs. 320 acres level as a floor, partly in alfalfa, balance now being seeded. About 20 acres in young fruit, remaining 320 not yet cleared, but it will require only small amount of money to do so. Two of the finest wells in the State with electric motors, over 5 miles of cement underground pipe and over 300 alfalfa valves. Either well will deliver water to every inch of the ranch—and there is not a ranch in the State that is equipped with as good up-to-date farm tools and machinery. MINES—
And Mining.

OIL SHORTAGE IS INCREASING—

No better investment can be made now than test holes in new territory. The country needs all the oil you can find, and you have a safe and sure market.

But don't resort to old-fashioned methods of drilling with large and expensive machines. Never forget the cost of a hole increases in the approximate proportion to the "square of its diameter."

So drill smaller diameter holes with the latest and most efficient portable machine ever built for territories from 800 feet to 2500 feet deep. Write us for particulars and circular.

BUSINESS INVESTMENTS—
All Kinds.

A DRY-GOODS, GENTS' FURNISHINGS AND SHOE business, in a small place about 40 miles from Los Angeles. I would not dare tell you what the owners of this store have made, because you wouldn't believe it, but if this ad. reaches the eye of a man who wants an opportunity of making more money on the amount invested than he can find in any other part of Southern California, and within 5 miles of a fine city where he could live if he did not care to live in the small place, let him investigate this business and get the statements from the bank as to the earnings of the store. You could not buy it without paying a big bonus, were it not for the fact that one of the owners has big interests in the bank and elsewhere, and the brother of the owner is drafted. The stock invoices about $12,000, worth at least one-third more at present prices; very little fixtures, and every dollar's worth of stock as good as dollars themselves. Overhead expense a trifle over $100 a month. This store will pay out in less than two years. In the heart of one of the richest and most prosperous districts in the South. RATTRAY, 1003 Title Insurance Bldg.

BEER BANISHMENT DEPRESSES CORN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Prohibition of the manufacture of beer beginning December 1 had a depressing influence today on the corn market. Largely as a result, prices closed unsettled ⅛ to 1¼ cents net lower with October 1.57⅛ to 1.57¼ and November 1.56⅛ to 1.56¼. Oats finished ⅛ to ⅜ off and provisions varying from 10 cents decline to 25 cents advance.

An opinion become widespread that barley when no longer taken by brewers would be chiefly consumed as feed, and would thus to a considerable extent reduce the feeding demand for corn.

Oats were governed almost entirely by corn.

Covering by shorts rallied pork from a severe decline caused by lack of support. Higher quotations on hogs helped to strengthen lard and ribs.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Cash prices: Corn, No. 2 yellow, 1.70; No. 3 yellow, 1.65@1.68; No. 4 yellow, 1.60@1.63. Rye, No. 2, 1.66@1.67. Barley, 95@1.05. Timothy and clover nominal.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Close: Corn, October, 1.57⅛; November, 1.56⅛. Oats, October, 72¼; November, 73⅜. Pork, September, 41.40; October, 41.60. Lard, September, 27.00; October, 26.75. Ribs, September, 23.75; October, 23.90.

LOCAL STOCK MARKET LIVELY ON BOND SIDE.

The approach of another week-end, two and a half-day holiday, coupled with the fact that the San Francisco exchange was closed failed to check a short session of fair activity on the local stock exchange yesterday.

As the new Liberty loan period approaches there appears to be a tendency to clear the preceding issue and business was heavy in third 4¼ which sold up to 95⅝. They closed strong at ⅛ asked and it is within the range of probability that a higher price will be paid for this issue next week. The 3½s remained at $101.25 with a half bid at the close.

A stock that is attracting a good deal of interest is Gold Ore which is steadily strengthening under optimistic reports from the mine. There was heavy trading in it yesterday from 6 to 6⅝, closing at the latter figure.

Aside from the bonds the morning market was largely involved with General Petroleum $108; Jade Oil, which slipped back to the 8-cent mark closing at 7⅞@8¼. Midway Northern, which was dealt in at 22, and National Pacific at 3⅜@3⅝. Two shares of Southern California Edison common went at 73. Tom Reed appears in the sales column at $1.46, closing at $1.45½@$1.47. United Eastern at $3.90, Union Oil at $106.25 and Yellow Pine at $1.26 were sales figures for the short session. The exchange will be closed on Monday.

CREDITS MUST GO FOR CONSTRUCTIVE WORK.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE SHAKES DOWN MEMBERS AS MEANS TO END.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—That the financial powers are determined to leave no stone unturned to restrict credits to constructive and productive purposes, was again demonstrated this week when the Stock Exchange took steps to that same end.

By a daily examination of the loans of its members, the exchange hopes to reduce speculation to exceedingly moderate dimensions, thereby aiding the Federal authorities and local money powers in the work of furthering government requirements.

It was understood that restrictions of the monetary interests would extend to other markets, including cotton, which made its most spectacular movement during the week, following adverse crop reports.

Previous to the action of the Stock Exchange the market gave much evidence of its disposition to break into new high ground. United States Steel among the industrials and Union Pacific and Canadian Pacific among the rails, attained highest prices of the year, their advance being accompanied by many substantial gains in other quarters.

Further improvement in the military situation abroad imparted additional strength to international war floatations and exchange rates to the Allied centers. Incidentally, remittances to most of the neutral countries displayed concurrent weakness.

Acceptance by railway executives of the Federal contract draft settles a controversy of long standing, although the terms involved are far from satisfactory to many large holders of railway securities.

FINANCIAL REVIEW WEEK IN NEW YORK.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Restraints upon speculative activity, which are assuming nation-wide proportions, were imposed this week by the action of the Stock Exchange. That institution, at the suggestion of the Federal Reserve Board and local money pool, authorized close control over call and time loans of its members.

Prior to that development, the market bore surface signs of a continuance of the previous week's advance. Gains of 2 to 6 points soon crumbled away, however, reducing many leaders to their levels of the previous fortnight.

Conservative Wall street realizes that drastic action is necessary if the financial, commercial and industrial interests of the country are to retain their present unassailable position. Advices from every section stress the the increasing curtailment of loans, save for absolute essentials.

News from abroad was the most influential factor next to the monetary situation, the disorderly retreat of the German forces finding unmistakable response, not only in the strength of domestic issues, but in foreign war flotations and rates of exchange to this country's allies.

There was a further weakening of exchange on the Northern European capitals, where latest political development, as viewed by international bankers, inclined more favorably to the cause of the entente powers.

The Day in Wall Street.

MARKET BUOYANT IN SPITE OE SETBACKS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The stock market made substantial recovery during today's two-hour session from the shock sustained by yesterday's announcement respecting control of members' loans. Trading was naturally restricted, however, by reason of that condition, and the religious holiday also caused a reduced attendance of brokers.

The steady progress of the Allied advance induced considerable short covering, notably in United States Steel and other speculative favorites.

Rails also were inclined to strength, although Union Pacific and St. Paul were somewhat backward, the latter forfeiting part of yesterday's gain. Coppers were again in demand and the fertilizer division was firm with active tobaccos, low-priced motors and their subsidiaries and secondary equipments. Sales amounted to 180,000 shares.

Week-end news was mainly encouraging, the mercantile agencies once more laying special emphasis on the war's imperative demands in all branches of industry.

Dealings in exchange were nominal, but changes were significant, in that they once more moved against neutral centers, particularly Spain and Switzerland.

The bank statement was noteworthy for the large expansion—almost $120,000,000—in actual loans, with a resultant increase of almost $82,000,000 in net demand deposits.

Investment bonds were steady on limited dealings, the speculative issues evincing slight irregularity. Sales, par value, aggregated $3,826,000.

United States bonds, old issues, were unchanged on call during the week.

R. T. Merchant, representing the same firm, has just completed negotiations for a renewal of the lease between E. H. Skinner and Los Angeles Rubber Stamp Company, Inc., on the premises now occupied by the latter at Nos. 129-131 South Spring street, for a term of three years at a given total rental consideration of $7200. He has also leased the premises at Nos. 1904-1906 East Seventh street for Mrs. G. Wyley Wells to Treadway & Hawke, for a canning factory.

TRADING IN LIBERTY BONDS DISCOURAGED.

BY CHAPIN HALL.

"LIBERTY Bonds should not be sold, traded in, or speculated upon. They are intended to be an undivided people's patriotic expression of a determination to back the military establishment of the United States to the last dollar of her resources, and except in unusual emergencies should be kept by the original purchaser."

This sentiment, in effect, was secured yesterday from half a dozen bankers, and as many bond salesmen in Los Angeles. Much of the trading in government bonds appears to be due to thoughtlessness rather than any inherent unpatriotic motive. I stood at the counter of one house which is buying practically all the Federal securities of this character offered, and listened to the excuses presented with the bonds.

"The vacation cost more than we expected."

"We had a new baby at our house."

"Couldn't make the last payment on the auto."

"Had a lot of teeth worked over."

"Wife's mother came from the East and had to be entertained."

"Didn't suppose it mattered what we did with 'em."

The interesting phase of the observation was in the fact that practically every one of the bond holders felt it incumbent upon him to say something in extenuation of the sale.

A number of persons objected to accepting a check in payment for the bond. I asked one man why this was, and he replied that he was afraid the secret service would trace the transaction and "make it hot for him."

The firms who are buying the bonds are making no bid for the business, endeavor to discourage it, and say they do not want it, and in this connection it is probably a good thing that the bonds are selling below par, because, the more financially unpatriotic a man may be the less he is likely to be willing to sacrifice any of his money upon that altar.

Everywhere optimism is expressed for the success of the new loan. The organization for marketing the bonds looks almost perfect in its mechanism and is now receiving the finishing touches before the big drive commences. It is no secret that some cities have given orphanage to more war babies than Los Angeles, and that much has been asked and freely given by this community, but there is no doubt in any quarter of the success of the new loan, or that Los Angeles will meet her quota—and more.

THE 7% PREFERRED STOCK HAS THE FORCE OF FIRST MORTG

The Seven Per Cent. Cumulative Preferred Stock is a first lien on the Company's real estate, buildings and machinery, appraised at $367,669.48. A Trust Deed on this property in the amount of $200,000 has been placed with the Title Insurance & Trust Company together with 200 First Mortgage Bonds of $1,000 denomination. Should the Company fail to redeem the Preferred shares or pay the interest thereon the Preferred share-holders have the right, if they desire it, to exchange their shares for First Mortgage Bonds.

The Company agrees that no dividends shall be declared upon the Common Stock until the Profit and Loss Surplus equals three times the amount required to pay the year's dividend on the Preferred Stock outstanding. Each Series, on its respective redemption date, becomes a debt against the Company, giving holders the same right to enforce payment as that of any creditor.

All stock must be cancelled at redemption and is not subject to re-issue.

No additional stock having prior or equal rights can be authorized during the life of this issue without the written consent of three-fourths of the outstanding Preferred Stock.

Issue is preferred both as to earnings and assets.

Assuming that the Company will earn no more profit than the average of 1916 and 1917 the figures show that the accumulated Surplus at December 31st, 1920, will amount to upwards of $51,000 after paying all dividends and redeeming $50,000 of Preferred shares.

The average earnings of the Company, approximately, equal four times the amount required to pay the interest on the present issue of Preferred stock.

In 1920 there will be available ample margin to pay dividends on the Common Stock.

The net proceeds of this issue are being used to liquidate all short time obligations of the Company.

We will furnish a descriptive circular upon request which contains detailed information about earnings of the Company, from its President. Also a Financial Statement and description of investments.

[EXCLUSIVE DISP

ETROIT (Mich.) Sept. 5.—Automobile traffic in Detroit last Sunday was cut approximately 80 per cent. compliance with the government's request that cars be not used for other than strictly necessary purposes.

Darkness cloaked the recalcitrance of some automobilists who did not care to risk recognition in daylight. Those who used their machines, a few were on urgent business, but the majority were merely "joy riding with the Kaiser."

It is anticipated there will be fewer slackers next Sunday, and in Detroit, the automobile will, as far as the Sabbath is concerned, become the "automobileless city." Most of motorists on pleasure bent failed to realize once they were out that they were unenviably conspicuous, and shamed showed their feelings all plainly.

The incongruity of automobiles used in defiance of the Administration's request their hoods decorated American flags appealed to boys' sense of the proprieties and such were halted in the of the street and the unceremoniously taken off.

Dismay and astonishment showed on the features of those whose patronage was so brusquely declined.

Taxicab companies observed the regulations by refusing to rent their machines for other than direct calls. Never since the auto came into general use have the principal city thoroughfares and boulevards on a pleasant afternoon borne the deserted appearance that characterized them Sunday.

Resolution by Alderman Walsh and amended by Alderman Allan was adopted Tuesday directing Commissioner Marquard to instruct the police to stop everyone using a motor car next Sunday and warn him off the street.

WIRE WHEELS.

The driver of a car having wire wheels should give this equipment an occasional detailed inspection, for the purpose of locating possible loose spokes. While the wire wheel is so resilient that it usually suffers no damage from an ordinary bump, at the same time it occasionally happens that a spoke is loosened. In cases where the enamel has been cracked off, a little paint should be applied to forestall rust.

FUEL IS SAVED FOR GOVERNMENT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Suspension of automobile pleasure riding Sunday resulted in the saving of between 100,000 and 150,000 barrels of gasoline in States east of the Mississippi, according to figures made public here tonight by A. C. Bedford, chairman of the National Petroleum War Service Commission.

TORONTO, Sept. 4.—Gasoline filling stations throughout Canada owned by the Imperial Oil Company, Ltd., will be closed hereafter on Sunday in an effort to discourage Sunday motoring, it was announced today.

BIG JOB FOR UNCLE SAM.

Enormous Task to Classify Nation's Automobile.

Five and Half Million Cars on June First.

New York Ranks First and California Sixth.

"An idea of the enormous task before Uncle Sam when he starts to classify automobiles can be had from figures gathered by our factory," said M. D. Bixby, manager of the local branch of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company, "from the various secretaries of State of the Union, which show 5,481,791 motor cars, including trucks registered on June 1, 1918. For the first five months of this year, 15 per cent. more cars were licensed than during the whole of 1917, an increase of 650,874.

"The cars registered June 1, together with the limited number now being manufactured and the second-hand cars that will be reclaimed from the junk heap and put in running order, will represent America's total next year and probably for the duration of the war. The trend of war times has decreed that the manufacture of passenger automobiles must gradually diminish.

LEAD COUNTRY.

"New Jersey and West Virginia lead the country in gain in registrations over last year, with an increase of 47 per cent. each. Next, Arkansas, Kansas and Mississippi, each with a 30 per cent. gain. The smallest increase was made in Massachusetts; but 1 per cent. more cars were licensed up until June 1 than during 1917.

"The six States having the greatest number of cars named, according to their rank, are New York, Illinois, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Iowa and California. The aggregate registration of these six States—2,154,360 automobiles and trucks—nearly equals the total number registered in the other forty-two States.

"According to the factory's figures, the money paid by motor vehicle owners for license tags up to June 1 amounts to $41,450,908, and most of this tremendous sum will be expended for improving and extending the national network of highways.

"Indications from most of the States are that the total registration for the year 1918 will be surprising considering the war-time conditions. Ohio officials say they expect a registration of between 425,000 and 430,000; Arkansas estimates 43,000 for the entire year, and, according to the dispatch received by Goodrich this week the State's total has reached 351,089, or nearly 47,000 more cars registered today than on June 1. In other words, California's increase in two months' time was 15 per cent., in addition to her gain of 25 per cent. made during the first five months of this year."

POORLY DESIGNED FRAME CAUSES TROUBLE GALORE.

Penny-Wise Policy of Saving will Always Prove Poor Economy.

BY BARNEY OLDFIELD.

THE frame of the modern passenger motor car is usually so uncomplaining in its performance of the strenuous duties assigned to it in the car's economy, that the average owner may practically be said to know nothing about it. It is the parts of the mechanism that give trouble that we learn to know best. The frame gives comparatively little trouble and consequently we take it for granted and let it go at that.

As a matter of fact, a poorly designed frame may easily throw out the mechanical balance of the entire mechanism. A frame constructed of poor materials will sag after some service, causing no end of trouble. If the car is made too light to support the load on it the same sort of troubles will develop. Some manufacturers in the past have tried to cut down expenses on the frames used in their cars. The result has been that the structure cracked at the joints, developed sagging, squeaks were numerous and vociferous, the door fell out of line and the whole body work suffered and in some cases went to pieces, all as a result of a pennywise policy of saving a little in frame cost.

PAST FEW YEARS.

During the past few years there has been a distinct tendency to progress in frame design and construction. Not many years ago every car manufacturer, no matter how much care he might bestow on the rest of the vehicle, how much individuality he might achieve, considered it perfectly satisfactory to buy the frames from a parts maker. Now many of the leading companies are turning out their own frames and a number of new designs have been developed and the ordinary motor car owner ought to know something about what is occurring.

Until very recently it was considered an axiom that the frame of the car must be flexible, must be able to yield to the twisting stresses set up in the course of travel over all sorts of roads. Today there are a number of prominent manufacturers using rigid frames of their own design, which are giving every satisfaction after the most searching tests in ordinary travel in the hands of thousands of private owners. There is no question that the rigid frame has come to stay, though it may never entirely displace the flexible construction.

There used to be another classification for car frames, as to whether they were underslung or overslung. That means whether the frame is located above or below the axle. The underslung frame, however, has passed on and there is not a single model using it in manufacture today.

MOST CAR FRAMES.

The material employed in the construction of most car frames is carbon steel. Some of the high-priced cars have alloy steel, but this class is limited through the expense involved. The Franklin car employs a frame of wood.

In the matter of design all frames agree on one matter, the employment of what are known as channel sections for the rails. The rails are the slides, upon which the body rests. The rails are connected by cross members, which vary in number with the ideas of the individual designer. In some constructions three are considered enough while others use as many as six cross members. The side members are usually made with a more or less accentuated taper toward the ends, upon which the springs are mounted.

Practically all frames of today taper considerably at the front, a design which gives the car a smaller turning radius. Many frames embody what is known as a "kick-up" in the rear. This is an upward turn of the rails, which lowers the center of gravity and also gives some latitude in the matter of spring adjustment.

Some years ago there was a tendency toward the use of a sub-frame on which was mounted the engine, but this design is not so popular today, although it is in use.

The heaviest weight which the frame is called upon to support is the engine, but it must not be forgotten that provision must be made for supporting the transmission and various other units.

The tapered sections at the ends of the frame are technically known as the "horns" and to these the springs are attached, except in the case of cantilever springs. In this latter design one spring support is placed on the housing of the axle, while the forward end of the spring is attached to a bracket, riveted to the rail.

NEW RIGID TYPE.

The new rigid type of frame embodies side rails very much deeper than used to be customary, in some instances reaching a depth of nine or ten inches. In this design the running boards are made integral with the side rails. The fenders are riveted in place and the construction as a whole gives maximum rigidity. There is little chance in this way for distortion and final disintegration of the frame and body-work.

The flexible frame is designed with the intention of having it yield to the stresses in the course of travel. Smaller side rails are used in this construction, five or six inches being about the maximum depth, while the supports for the running boards are riveted on and not made integral.

The controversy in regard to the relative merits of flexible and rigid frames is of long standing and highly technical, so that we can not go into it here. Certainly, however, the merits of the case may be, the rigid frame since its introduction a few years ago has made rapid strides into popularity.

From Our Viewpoint.

DEALER TELLS OF THE CONDITIONS IN EAST.

BY J. J. TROY,
President Troy Motor Sales Company.

DURING my three months' stay in the East, I was connected with the office of the New England Fuel Administrator, James B. Storrow. The task that this man has on his hands is of some size, when one takes into consideration the amount of war work being done by New England factories. It is essential to keep these factories in coal. One plant located in Connecticut might be making casings for shells and another in New Hampshire might be making ignition caps. One is as essential as the other, for without one you can't use the other. These plants are placed on the priority list. The amount of war work being done by a plant decides whether or not it should be placed on the priority list.

The problems entering into the fuel question are always changing. When it is not labor, it is transportation. When you have one cleared up, another "breaks." At first it was a question of ships; this was finally overcome; but then a question of piers came up. There are not enough piers to unload these ships at once. They are kept waiting to unload. Then the submarine scare kept loaded ships at Baltimore and Norfolk and unloaded ships at Boston. But each day the prospect looks brighter. New England has a schedule calling for 30,000,000 tons of bituminous and 10,000,000 tons of anthracite. The domestic user will receive at least two-thirds of his order, and when all orders are filled on this basis he can get his remaining one-third.

Conditions in general back there are fine. The spirit displayed by the people is wonderful. Not content alone with giving their men and dollars, they are taking hold where they can to give a lift.

Recent investigations have brought out signs of profiteering. This we all dislike, but I honestly believe that these cases were the exceptions. The general spirit is to forget personal gain and win the war. The sacrifice being made by big business men is commendable. It is not a question of simply working for nothing on their part, but many of them give out of their own pockets to eliminate red tape. It is simply using big business methods in making the world's greatest war a success.

Labor conditions are trying in most places. Women are replacing men as far as possible, but some jobs are beyond them. Strikes have been most frequent, but arbitration has been called into play and a fair settlement made in most cases. Shortage of labor and strikes have been two of the most serious problems. Strikes can be settled, but a skilled laborer cannot be replaced over night. In all lines of manufacturing the lack of skilled labor coupled with the poor quality of materials presents a problem of the most serious nature.

The demand for steel is ever so great, and, of course, the government has prior claim—which it should have. Trying to supply this demand, steel of an inferior quality is often placed on the market.

Banks are in splendid condition. Interest rates are rather high, which is naturally to be expected during these times. The machinery of the banking and bond houses is being used to look after the financing of the war in one way or another.

Everything is being put in readiness to make this next Liberty Loan a great success. We must not be fooled with our present victories on the western front. Neither should we belittle them, but—this is no time for us to slow up our pace. This war has a long time to go as yet, and we must not think we have the Hun licked and quit. We must continue doing business, because it is essential. This war is to be paid for by taxation, and we must continue with our business, so it can be taxed, as well as the various incomes derived from it. We all must get the real spirit that the Kaiser believed lacking in our "dollar-loving people," as he called us. We must win the war.

AUTO SHOWS ARE TO BE GIVEN UP.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Abandonment for the period of the war of the annual New York and Chicago automobile shows was recommended tonight by the directors of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, in a communication addressed to members. The directors expressed the belief that holding of the shows would be "inconsistent with the patriotic obligations of the country," which call for conservation of labor, fuel and transportation.

Real Tryout.

ROUGH TEST IS GIVEN MACHINE.

Hell's Half Acre is the Scene of Car's Tryout.

Boiling Heat Adds Much to the Performance.

Everpresent Camera Films Entire Programme.

Staging a fight between a man and a motor car far out on the desert in the sage brush, sand and heat, all under the watchful eye of a motion-picture camera, Harold L. Arnold has just finished his first reel of rough stuff scenes of the Maxwell endurance car.

Those old desert rats who know the location of Hell's Half Acre in the Devil's Playground will appreciate the opportunity for making the roughest pictures ever shown on a screen, and it was right there, where it seems impossible to put a motor car that Mr. Arnold decided to test the Maxwell to the limit, if a limit could be reached.

Joe Walker, the camera man who took the motion pictures, has filmed many of the really strenuous pictures of the day, but this Maxwell in his opinion beats them all.

"Imagine if you can," said Mr. Walker, "the most desolate region of the desert—an absolute waste of rock, sagebrush, sand dunes and heat. There is no road through this Hell's Half Acre, and it is crisscrossed by a million sand washes.

Then think of the Maxwell car, with its driver determined to break it up if such a thing was possible slamming that car over those rocks and dunes, taking everything as it came, the car warped and twisted, deunced and banged until I did not see how it could possibly come back to shape and keep a going."

"And yet that is just what that car did. Such punishment I never saw before—and not a thing was broken, not a part gave away.

"Those who see that action in the pictures will marvel at the tremendous strength of the frame, springs, and especially steering knuckles, to stand up under such strains. Think, too, of the perfection of mechanism to be warped forty-five degrees out of line in a double reverse twist while being hurled twenty miles an hour over hummocks four feet high

"I never saw anything like it before and I don't see how steel and machinery can be put together by man and live through such treatment."

LARGER PLANT FOR BIG TIRE COMPANY.

The Victor Rubber Company of Springfield, O., in order to meet the growing demand for Victor tires, is just completing a large two-story tile-concrete built addition to their plant. The new building is to be devoted exclusively to making tires. The most improved equipment for building, curing and finishing Victor tires is being installed. The goodness of these tires has been "noised around" by users to such an extent that motorists are equipping their cars with them from Maine to California and from Florida to Alaska and outside our borders at the front in France.

RIVETERS TO TACKLE DYAS NINE TODAY.

Bill Goodman will put in a big league line-up tomorrow morning when the Dyas nine and the Shipyards team hook up at Vernon at 10:30 o'clock. Schneider and Jones will be the battery for the Dyas aggregation, and Brenton and Cook for the Shipyards boys. The line-up:

DYAS.		SHIPYARDS.
Jones	Catcher	Cook
Schneider	Pitcher	Brenton
Donovan	Pitcher	Piercey
Leake	First base	Mathes
Kingdon	Second base	Hosp
Leathers	Shortstop	Downey
Litchi	Third base	Bouett
Wilkinson	Left field	Daly
Meusel	Center field	Alcock
Schila	Right field	Miller

CLUTCH GRABBING.

This trouble is the opposite of slipping. The clutch takes hold too suddenly, so that the car is jerked in starting and needless strain is involved for the entire power transmitting mechanism. Grabbing is caused by too heavy spring pressure, by facings that have become rough and dry, by end play in the crankshaft, by misalignment of the clutch shaft, by too tight an adjustment. The driver who jams in his clutch is quite likely to produce a grabbing action.

Diamond Dust.

BOSTON AMERICANS NOW HAVE TWO OUT OF THREE.

Stars from the Hub Win Baseball Battle in the Fourth Inning.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Boston concentrated its energies in the fourth inning of today's game of the world's series and squeezed in two runs, which was just enough to annex, 2 to 1, the third of the contests from the Chicago Nationals. The one-run margin was in constant danger, however, and it was not until Pick, Chicago second baseman, was caught at the plate for the third out in the last half of the ninth inning that victory perched finally on the Boston dugout.

Chicago's lone tally came in the fifth inning and was largely a fluke, but Mitchell's men never quit trying and in their half of the ninth started a desperate rally, which might have tied the score and run the game into extra innings had not Pick, in a frantic effort to cross the plate, thrown the chance away by reckless base running.

VAUGHN ON MOUND.

"Hippo" Vaughn elected to come back in an attempt to retrieve the honorable defeat administered to him in the first game of the series. He pitched a splendid game, save for the fatal fourth. Hooper, the first man to face the big Chicago left-hander, gave an intimation of what the final result would be by putting a twisting single back of third, but nothing came of it in that inning. Mays, with his so-called submarine delivery, was the main obstacle in the way of a Cub victory. Mays throws an old-fashioned underhand ball with a wind-up which doubles him in such fashion that the uninitiated might think him hunting for fish worms. He had a variety of bait for the Chicago batters—slow ones that floated up to the plate like puff balls in a fog, varied with a fast one with a dart and jump like a patent bass bait, and the Cub sluggers bit freely at all he offered.

In the fatal, or festive, fourth, according to which team the fan prefers, Whiteman, veteran of many a hard contest, and who had figured in the run-getting for Boston in every game of this series, got himself in front of one of Vaughn's hooks and traveled free to first. He tarried a moment on second when McInnis singled and scored when Schang poled one of Vaughn's offerings safely, McInnis advancing to third. Scott dumped a bounder in front of the plate and Vaughn fumbled it long enough so that McInnis flashed across the plate with the winning run and Scott was safe at first, credited with a hit. Thomas singled to right and it looked like more trouble for the Cubs, but Flack made one of his characteristic bullet throws and Schang, trying to score from second, was out at the plate. Mays ended the jubilee by a fly to center.

Pick was the player to profit by the fluke in the Chicago half of the fifth. His gentle tap went toward Scott with frolicsome bounds, like a pup seeking its master, but at the crucial moment it decided to bite Scott on the leg and went rolling out into the outfield for a double. Deal flied out, but Killefer delivered an honest hit to left and Pick scored.

The highly-partisan crowd, its interest at last aroused to a pitch when even Allied victories, the impending bond issue and other divertisements were forgotten, stood up to a man and yelled for a winning rally when Chicago came to bat in the ninth and almost got what they asked for. Paskert and Merkle expired ingloriously on infield plays, but Pick slammed a grounder at Shean and beat the throw by a hair. Manager Mitchell, still fighting, sent in Barber to bat for Deal. The pinch hitter was in a nerve-racking place. Every eye was upon him and heroic honors, including the Croix de Baseball, were within his grasp.

Pick stole second and went to third on a passed ball. Schang threw to catch him and Thomas, at third for Boston, fumbled the throw. The ball rolled but a few yards, but Pick, arising from his slide, and without looking around, dashed for the plate. Thomas recovered the pellet and his throw caught Pick far off the plate. The game was over and Pinch Hitter Barber's great opportunity was snatched from him before anyone knew whether he might have delivered the hit which would have tied the score.

CROWD INCREASES.

The largest crowd of the season, 27,054, paid admissions, turned out and enjoyed the pastime, but at that there were vacant seats. Few of those occupied were vacated until the last man was out, however.

Clouds menaced at times; a few drops of rain fell and locomotives in near-by yards sent smoke screen over the field. At other times the sun shone brightly.

Whiteman, who has starred at bat, on the paths and in the field in this series, cut off what seemed a sure run for Chicago in the fourth inning. With one out, Mann hit and reached second. Paskert lifted the sphere clear to the left-field fence. It looked like a triple at least, but Whiteman speeded after it like a youngster and bumped into the barrier with the ball safely in his glove. He was vociferously cheered.

With the score two games to one in their favor, the Boston players leaving to play the remaining games on their home grounds were in a jubilant mood, but the National

CITES AUTO'S AID IN WAR.

Helps Man-Power Problem by Saving Time.

Passenger Motor Cars are Carrying Millions.

Transportation Trouble is Fast Vanishing.

Passenger automobiles are carrying millions of persons millions of miles every day in the year, thus relieving the railroads of a huge burden that they would be unable to bear if this additional passenger traffic were heaped upon the unprecedented freight demand.

"As a time-saving device and an aid to the man-power situation the automobile is more than doing its part," said A. C. Robbins of the Greer-Robbins Company, distributors of Hupmobiles here.

"The transportation system of America embodies railroads, automobiles and horses, and there are not too many of any of the three.

WONDERFUL WORK.

"The wonderful work done by motor trucks, both in relieving the railroads of their vast burdens and in strictly urban carrying, is plain to all. The horse also fills a useful place in the moving of small loads over short distances.

"We can use more horses, more passenger cars and more trucks. Statistics show that from 70 to 90 per cent. of our passenger cars are employed in business pursuits—all or part of the time.

"You may save but fifteen minutes a day by the use of your automobile in preference to other means of conveyance, but you are only one of 5,000,000.

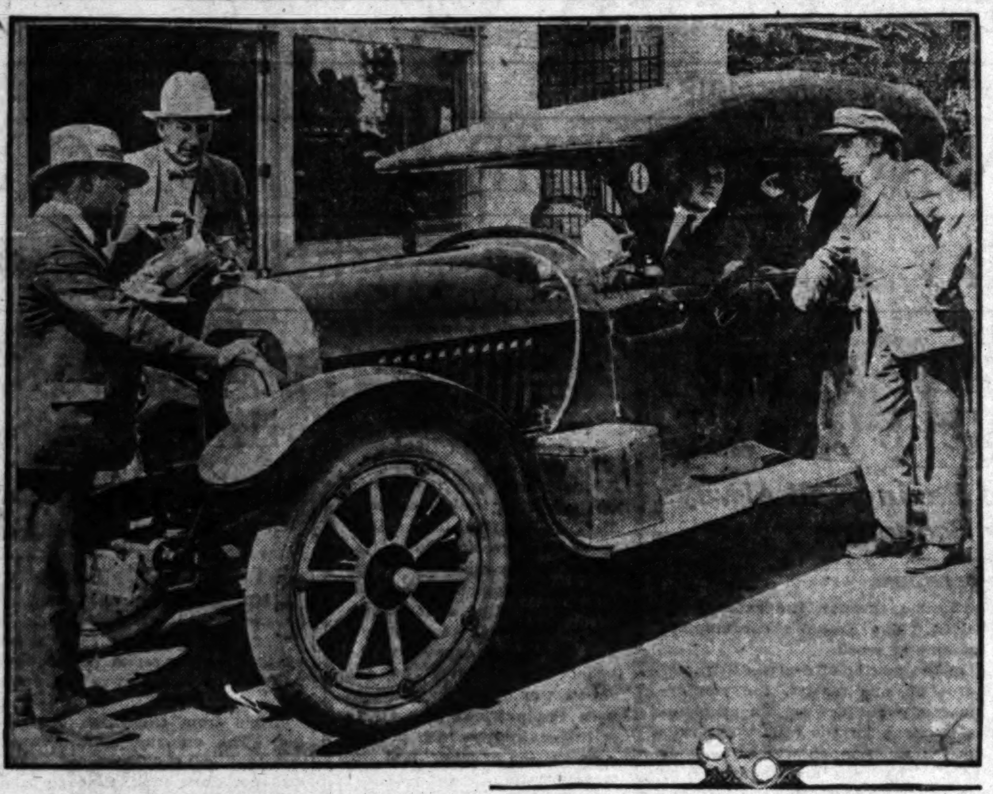
SOME FIGURES.

"If the fifteen minutes saved by you represent a fair estimate of the average—which common sense tells you it does not—the saving of time becomes 75,000,000 minutes daily.

"Translate these millions of minutes into hours, days, months and years, then convert them into money and man-power equivalent. For time most certainly is the essence of both money and man power."

CLIFF DURANT IS A BUSY PERSON.

R. C. Durant, vice-president of the Chevrolet Motor Company of California, has been elected Alameda county consul of the Lincoln Highway Association, and also chairman of the Highway Committee of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce. One of his duties will be to raise a fund of $20,000 to complete a stretch of roadway around the dread Nevada "sinks," and with his customary energy the Chevrolet executive has already mapped out plans for a whirlwind campaign.



Back from quite a remarkable trip in a new car.

Here are George Paonessa, F. E. Nelson and E. Junior Bennett with the new Nelson airplane type car which stood such a remarkable test on its first run.

CAR WITH AIRPLANE MOTOR DOES MOUNTAIN-DESERT TRIP.

FOURTEEN HUNDRED miles of mountain and desert driving at better than average speed in hot summer weather on less than two quarts of water, sounds like a fairy story, and yet that is the record made recently by a Nelson airplane motor car, which has sprung into quick popularity among the motorists of Southern California.

Taking a brand new car which had not been broken in at all, Mr. George C. Paonessa and brother left here at 5 o'clock, making Randsburg that night by 1 o'clock, from there they returned to Mojave and then on to Bakersfield, Fresno, Merced, and Modesto, with here and there a side trip out off the beaten path to different mines and manufacturing plants.

From Modesto they pulled off east through Knights Ferry, Sonora, up into the Calvaras country where machines are mighty scarce and where to get to some deserted mines it was a case of using stream beds because roads had long since disappeared.

So light is this car with the airplane motor and so well balanced with all parts working so harmonious that even though it was a new car, an average of better than twenty-three miles was made per gallon of gasoline and in spite of the hot weather and hard driving encountered it used less than two quarts of water.

MOTOR TRUCK DRIVER IS REAL PATRIOT.

"The man who is driving a motor truck today is rendering a patriotic service to his community and country," says H. W. Nerney of the KisselKar. "In fact, he is a very important spoke in the wheel of democracy, for he is helping America make good on one of her biggest jobs, that of maintaining continuous and uninterrupted transportation of goods and supplies."

ANGELENO JOINS AVIATION BRANCH.

Leethem, known to all his friends as "Bud," formerly in charge of the service and shops of the Reilly Motor Car Company, has answered Uncle Sam's call and joined the aviation branch of the service. Mr. Leethem's ability as an expert mechanic and service superintendent is needed by his country and many friends wish him luck.

CAR MAKING GOOD IN THE MOUNTAINS.

MOTORIST OF NEW ZEALAND TELLS HOW HIS AUTO STOOD STRAIN.

That the Wescott car is giving the same satisfaction in rough, open country driving as on city streets and national highways, is shown by a letter recently received at the factory from a motorist in New Zealand.

According to the writer, one of the most scenic parts of the island is a section about fifty miles from the city of Taihape. As there has been very little road building done in this territory, most of the trip to this point must be made over sandy deserts and open rugged plains. Numerous small rivers, lacking bridges or ferries, must be "forded." His Wescott was the first car to complete the trip without mishap.

DOUBTING THOMASES BECOME CONVINCED.

FORMERLY SHOOK HEADS AT ELECTRIC LIGHTS AND STARTERS.

Six years ago the doubting Thomases shook their heads when motor car manufacturers announced the use of electric lights and electric starters. Today there is only one popular car on the American market without an electric starter, and there is no car that is not equipped with electric lights.

"This same condition," says W. A. Chapman of the Leach Motor Car Co., Premier distributors, "is bound to come in the equipping of motor cars with electric gear shifts. The Premier for the past two seasons has been the only car with a magnetic gear shift, and anyone who has driven a Premier will tell you that they would not think of going back to the old, nerve-racking, gear-grinding, hand-operated gear shift."

OFFER REBUILT CARS GUARANTEED.

In these war-times we are adjusting our business so as to help Uncle Sam win this war. When Henry Ford turned over his factory for war work, says J. B. Fahy, manager of Fahy-Atterbury Company, Ford dealers, we were forced to look for a new line of endeavor to "carry on" until the war is won. After thoroughly looking over the field we came to the conclusion that our present shop equipment, which is made especially for Fords, we would use as the basis for our efforts. Buying all the second-hand Fords we possibly could we have been rebuilding these in our shop for the last six months and we are offering these rebuilt Fords to the public with the same guarantee as we give on a new car.

TIRE REBUILDING TAUGHT SOLDIERS.

That the United States Army men do not run their tires until they are ruined and then throw them away as a great many motorists do at the present time is shown by the fact that they have started a school in the East where soldiers are given instructions on tire rebuilding. There the soldiers are taught to give a tire the proper kind of care. This should be a lesson to individual motorists, says Mr. Wade of the B. F. Wade Tire and Rubber Company, which does tire rebuilding on a specified mileage basis. If the government figures that it is worth while to repair casings so as to get the maximum amount of mileage, why the average motorist can save money by having his own tires rebuilt.

"OVERSIZE" TIRES JUSTIFY THEIR USE.

That the advantages of "oversize" tires on passenger cars more than justify their use, is evidenced by the experience of A. H. Jacoby of New York, who writes as follows concerning his tire performance: "I purchased a Haynes car on March 8 last year, fitted at my request with Goodyear oversize tires, and after finishing the season with a mileage of about 7500 I put the rear tires, which were 'all-weather tread,' on front wheels and am still running on one of the original tires, which has now gone 13,500 miles with the promise of another thousand or so."

FINISH JOB; GET ANOTHER.

Eleven-Million Contract is Filled by Yankees.

British Government Comes Back with One More.

Takes High-Class Mechanics to Perform Work.

Probably few people realize the tremendous amount of real war work which has been done and is being done by our large automobile factories, but many of them have been working on large war contracts for some time.

Because of the reputation which the F. B. Stearns Company of Cleveland had for turning out exceptional work and because of the wonderful success it has had with perfections of the Knight sleeve-valve motor, this company secured a contract some time ago with the British government for more than $11,000,000 for the manufacture of Rolls-Royce aviation motors, which contract has just been completed.

So well was this work done and so promptly that the company is now entering on a new contract for some $6,000,000 for more of these aviation motors which are being used to such excellent advantage against our common enemy.

These contracts, according to Lynn C. Buxton, have proven very fortunate for the Stearns Company in many ways, for besides the financial end involved it has enabled the company to maintain some very high-class mechanics, which also guarantees the usual high standard of work on all Stearns-Knight cars.

To fulfill these contracts it was necessary to install about $500,000 worth of machinery and extra equipment, which was secured through the British government on a priority order, which otherwise would have been almost impossible to secure.

Besides this the company has been working hand in hand with our own government, turning out what machines it could on the side and because of a priority order which Mr. Buxton had with the factory he has been able to secure one or two large shipments.

MOTORISTS TAKE IN THE YOSEMITE.

ANNUAL SOCIABILITY TOUR OF BAY CITIES PARTY BIG SUCCESS.

The annual sociability tour of Bay Cities motorists to the Yosemite, which started from Oakland yesterday morning and which is for a three-day period, is reported to be the most successful event of its kind that has ever been arranged in the State.

The cars arrived at Merced yesterday noon, where lunch was served at the El Capitan Hotel. Last night's control was at Wawona with a side trip to the Big Trees. The noon control today is at the Glacier Point Hotel and tonight the party will be at Camp Curry in the Yosemite, where elaborate entertainment preparations have been arranged for its members. Some will make the return trip by way of the Big Oak Flat road, while many have arranged to go over the scenic Tioga road.

CLAIM HAND-MADE TIRES PROVE BEST.

COMPANY DOES NOT SEEK QUANTITY OUTPUT, SAYS AGENT HERE.

Building an automobile tire by hand is a much slower process than is turning out machine-made tires, and there is a wide difference in the results. The same carefulness and painstaking effort that the potter shows in modeling a vase from clay is necessary in making an automobile tire by hand. The potter's vase is under constant inspection while being formed, and the hand-built tire that gets this same attention to detail is to be expected to give better results than when made by machinery, the only object being the largest number that can be turned out in the shortest time.

"The Century-Plainfield tire always has been a hand-built product and always will be," says J. B. Wood, the exclusive distributor for this brand of tires in Southern California and Arizona. "The company making them does not seek quantity production, but prefers to have its product measured by quality."

COMPANY IS READY WITH FREE ADVICE.

INVITATION IS EXTENDED TO ALL LOS ANGELES MOTORISTS.

An invitation is extended to all motorists to call at the Tire Construction Company and have tires examined, also to receive free advice as to the importance of watching tires so as to get more mileage.

"Tires should be properly inflated, cuts repaired so sand and dirt will not work into the fabric and bring about other small injuries which may seem trivial, but may develop into something serious if the necessary precautions are not taken. All these little troubles can be eliminated if the proper care is taken at the right time, and this is where we want to help motorists," says Ed Harris, secretary of the Tire Construction Company. "We also want to explain how to repair a tire when the tread wears off and the method we follow in this case will give the motorist as many miles as were received out of the original tire."

Why War Times Cannot Affect Buick Quality

The Buick factory does not depend upon the steel mills for the quality of steel that goes into Buick cars. Fortunately the Buick factory is safeguarded against imperfections that might slip through when deliveries of raw materials are made to the factory by their elaborate system of drop-forging equipment and heat-treating ovens.

The heat-treating equipment of the Buick factory guards the quality of the Buick car like Pasteurization guards your health against the menace of impure milk. When Louis Pasteur discovered that the proper application of heat to milk destroyed harmful bacteria, he did much for humanity. When the present day wizards of metallurgy discovered that the proper application of heat through the agency of the delicately controlled heat-treating ovens insured unvarying quality, they removed all uncertainty as to the quality of the finished product.

The Buick factory has the most elaborate and complete heat-treating equipment in the entire automobile industry. The initial cost of these heat-treating ovens was staggering, but divided among the hundreds of thousands of Buick cars produced since their installation, it is negligible. And it has removed all uncertainty as to the quality of the high-grade metals used in the production of Buick cars.

Finished Buick parts MUST be right. The entire system back of their manufacture make this result inevitable.

Regardless of the quality of the raw metals delivered to the Buick factory, the quality of the finished product is assured.

With the present manufacturing equipment of the Buick factory it would be impossible to cheapen Buick quality. The entire plan of production requires that all vital metal parts are safeguarded against imperfections by the Buick heat-treating ovens. To omit these safeguards would mean to abandon the present Buick Factory. TO MAKE A LESS PERFECT BUICK WOULD COST MILLIONS OF DOLLARS!

So, unless Buick builds a new factory, Buick quality must continue at its present high standard. Should the press of war work curtail Buick production to the point where but one car each day would be produced in the Buick factory, that car's quality would be identical with the quality of the many cars going through factory production each day now; for the present Buick models cannot be produced on any but a quality basis.

War-time Buicks purchased at current prices are proving wonderful investments in thrift. As there is no uncertainty as to Buick war-time quality, so, also, is there no uncertainty as to the inevitable increase in price of Buick cars. Thousands of those who intend to become Buick owners this year will be disappointed. You can avoid this if you will.

"Do Your Own Work" is a Popular War Cry.

Helping Out.

AUTOISTS AID CONSERVATION.

Owner-Service is Taken up Very Generally.

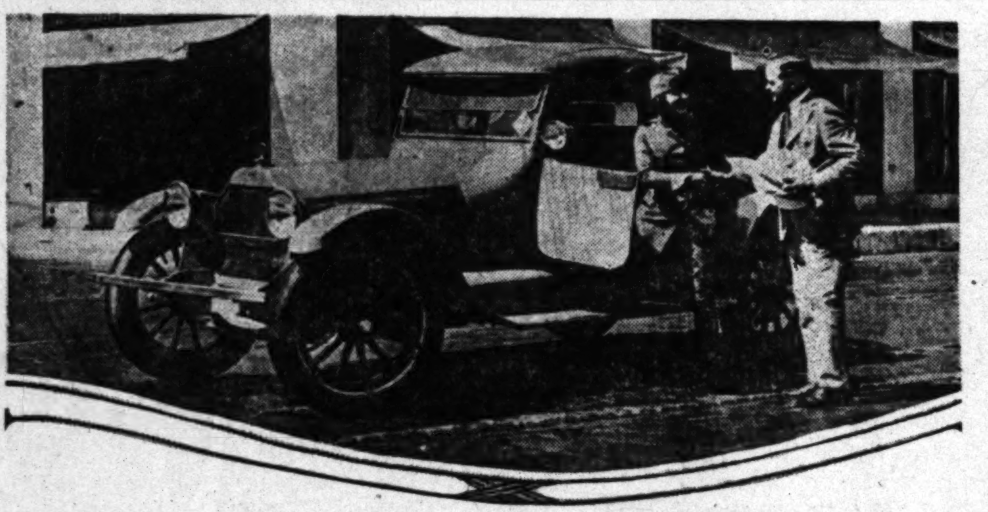
Motoring Public is Learning Points Rapidly.

Amount of Labor and Money Saved Enormous.

The proposal that motorists throughout the country assume some of the obligations of service and repairs in connection with the operation of motor transportation methods is being complied with generously in Los Angeles, and true conservation is being accomplished. Among the first dealers in the city to advocate owner-service was H. C. McVey, who handles the Oakland six in this city and contingous territory. He urged Oakland owners to make what minor repairs to their cars they could, and not demand the time and attention of skilled mechanics unless absolutely necessary. Many owners recently have told him they get real pleasure out of doing work about their cars that a few months ago they would not have thought about undertaking.

"The motoring public is learning some of the many things that can be done by the car owner himself to keep the car operating in good condition," said Mr. McVey. "It is estimated that there are 5,000,000 motor cars and trucks in use in this country, and if on each of these was saved daily an average of one hour's service charge at $1 an hour, there would be saved $5,000,000 each day. In the course of a year this would amount to the considerable sum of $1,725,000,000.

"If each car and truck user studied out how to operate the vehicle most economically and how not to make use of it unnecessarily with the result that one gallon of gasoline was saved each day by each of the 5,000,000 users, there would be an aggregate saving in the money spent for fuel of $45,625,000,000 during the year. This is an amount nearly double that which has been asked for to conduct the war up to June, 1919."



Off on another voyage across the continent.

This photograph shows Anita King, the motion-picture actress, who crossed the continent alone a few years ago, starting on her second trip in her Firestone-equipped Studebaker. With her in the picture is F. C. Flickinger, local boss for the Firestone. Miss King is making patriotic speeches on her way from Los Angeles to Washington, D. C.

ALLIED DRIVE AIDS THE COAL SITUATION.

CLEARING LENS AND LILLE DISTRICT HELPS OUT THE TIRE TRADE.

"If the Allies soon clear the entire coal region around Lens and the iron mines about Lille of Germans, and I believe they will sooner than we hope for, many ships that are now transporting such material between the United States and France, will be released for other work. And incidentally there will be just so much more coal and metal for use in this country," said Roy R. Meads, president and general manager for the Pacific Rubber Company, distributor of Horseshoe tires.

"The two great handicaps to the tire industry this winter will be the lack of crude rubber and a reduction in the amount of coal that may be consumed for commercial purposes. Of course, the sooner Germany is deprived of French coal and iron, that much quicker will our victory be realized and that is our ultimate goal above all else."

b—Now the same as the Kelso Exchange brought up thus: 10-15, 22-18, 15-22, 25-18, 11-15, 18-11, 8-15.

c—It was pointed out in Game No. 587 that 9-13 was the best move here.

d—Varies from Game No. 587, but is no better.

e—Better than 32-28 as given in the Encyclopedia of Draughts (Page 255, Variation 22 at "k.")

f—This loses, but is given in the Encyclopedia to draw. The next day Hopewell was in the clubrooms and J. Brown called his attention to this position and he offered to pilot the Black pieces safely through. We played the White side and was soon convinced that the play was familiar to him, for he made his moves without any hesitation. Instead of 17-21, Hopewell played 1-6 and the play continued.

(This game appeared in the Tribune Farmer column several years ago.) "I found this game among some clippings saved three or four years ago, and it seems good enough to put in circulation. Credit for notes (e.) (f) and (g) belongs to Mr. Hoadley." Thus writes E. A. Graham of Lansing, Mich., who kindly contributes the subjoined play:

b—This usually leads to a very interesting game. It is pronounced best in "Lee's Guide," but 24-19 is favored by some experts of the present day.

d—I have never seen Mr. Brown's play, but I think 23-19*, 6-10*, and either 30-25, 9-13, 25-21, or 19-15, 10-19, 26-22, should result in a draw.

MAKE STRONG PLEA ON TAX QUESTION.

NINE-TENTHS OF PASSENGER MOTOR VEHICLES IN UTILITY USE.

"All owners of motor vehicles will be glad to learn that they, as a whole, are being represented at Washington, D. C., in the request that they be not heavily burdened by special taxes, simply because they have invested in motorized transportation," says Harris M. Hanshue, manager of the local Apperson branch. "The request was made of the proper authorities that recognition in considering the tax rates be given the fact that nine-tenths of passenger motor vehicles are in utility use."

A statement made by representatives of automobile owners presented to Congress is quoted by Hanshue, as follows: "The proposed taxes will hamper the agencies of production and the fuel and the power they employ. We might as well tax coal as gasoline, which is doing more than any other agency to relieve the conditions resultant upon the scarcity of coal. It is estimated that the power generated by gasoline exceeds that generated by coal and steam nearly ten to one; the horse power produced by steam being estimated around 11,000,000 and that by gasoline more than 100,000,000."

DOLLAR-A-YEAR MAN BIG AUTO BOOSTER.

ORDERS NEW SEDAN TO BE DELIVERED TO HIM AT CAPITAL.

W. M. Garland of Los Angeles, one of the country's well-known realty operators, and "a dollar-a-year man," who is giving his time and energy to help win the war, is another one of the exceedingly busy men who get full value out of a motor car. The owner of a Marmon touring car, here last week, before leaving for the East, placed an order with Al G. Faulkner for a Marmon sedan, with delivery to be made to him in Washington, D. C.

Accompanied by his sons, Garland last summer made the transcontinental trip from New York to Los Angeles in a Marmon touring car, delivery of which was made in the East. The automobile makes it possible for him to transact urgent business in the least possible time, when waiting upon restricted train schedules would be a hindrance and a drag upon public business.

READY FOR POSTING.

Complete notes for the resigning of the road between San Bernardino and Victorville have been taken by employees of the Automobile Club of Southern California and a sign-posting truck will soon be operating in that vicinity. Twenty-two extra road markers will be placed to make desert travel more safe, in addition to the replacement of a number of the club's placards that were damaged by the revolver fire of some unprincipled party last week.

MILES AND MILES ON SAME BEARINGS.

Though he has driven his car in Imperial 27,000 miles over the Rocky Mountains roads, Fred J. Sukmiller, a locomotive engineer, Harlenton, Mont., in writing into the Hyatt Roller Bearing Company to find out where he could obtain parts for this "orphan" car, states that the Hyatt bearings are giving just as good service as ever, although he has not given them any attention since he has been driving the car.

GARY MOTOR TRUCK ANNOUNCEMENT

To Distributors, Dealers, Agents and Users

THE STEEL INDUSTRIES AND ALLIED ENTERPRISES of Gary, Indiana, are undoubtedly contributing more in manufactured products and war materials to the cause of liberty than any other section of the country of equal population. Notwithstanding these demands, the GARY MOTOR TRUCK COMPANY, in compliance with the urgent appeal of the Government to encourage motor truck transportation, is extending THE GARY SALES SERVICE AND SYSTEM OF DISTRIBUTION throughout the entire country.

Gary Trucks in quantity shipments will be warehoused in Los Angeles for reshipment or drive-away delivery, thus assuring prompt fulfillment of orders for the South Coast region.

THE TIME HAS ARRIVED for a truck connection. Motor trucks have been classed as an essential, as transportation of provisions, manufactured products and raw materials is one of the country's greatest problems. Those employed in the operation, sale and distribution of motor trucks are engaged in an occupation "necessary to the military establishment or the maintenance of the national interest," a modification of the recent man-power act.

If situated to handle motor trucks in any capacity, now is the time, as the demand is great and the supply is limited; but the GARY SYSTEM OF DISTRIBUTION insures prompt delivery in any size or quantity desired. Send at once for dealers' discounts, also particulars of the Gary Co-operative Sales Plan, whereby you develop the prospect and we conclude the deal, either on a time or cash basis, and divide profits.

GARY MOTOR TRUCKS come in five sizes, carrying from one to five tons, permissible pay loads.

The New Joy In Motoring

W.S.S.
WAR SAVINGS STAMPS ISSUED BY THE
UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT

With your car you have two joys. One is a smooth, silent running motor. The other is a clean, bright car. One that looks the part of the investment you have made. Appearance is a close second to performance.

Your car can be made to look the part. You can give give it the gloss and glitter it had when you were so proud of it.

To do this is simple and easy. And with but little work and no muss or bother.

The directions printed below give you the easy road to car pride. Simply use O-Cedar Polish. Use it the O-Cedar Polish way.

Please follow our directions. When you do, you will be delighted with the O-Cedar result.

The most surprising of the O-Cedar results is how long your car will retain the bright, shining, reflecting lustre. You will notice it will not collect dust easily. And what dust does settle on it can be removed with a duster or dust cloth.

But best of all is the fact that O-Cedar will prolong the the life of varnish—if you use O-Cedar repainting is long deferred.

Picture your car as you first saw it—with its dazzling radiancy—and you will have some idea of how it will look when cleaned and polished the O-Cedar way.

As most people know, O-Cedar Polish is used everywhere to clean and polish the finest furniture, pianos, etc. Use the same O-Cedar Polish to clean and polish your car.

If after a fair trial you are not delighted with the O-Cedar result, your money refunded without a question. A quart ($1 size) if used as directed will keep the finish of any car in radiant brilliancy for a year.

Ancient Mission Has an Anniversary Today.

NOVEL JOB FOR TRUCK.

Takes Place of Huge Crane in Emergency Cases.

Handles Big Shells Served While Red Hot.

Plant Boss Finds He Can't do Without It.

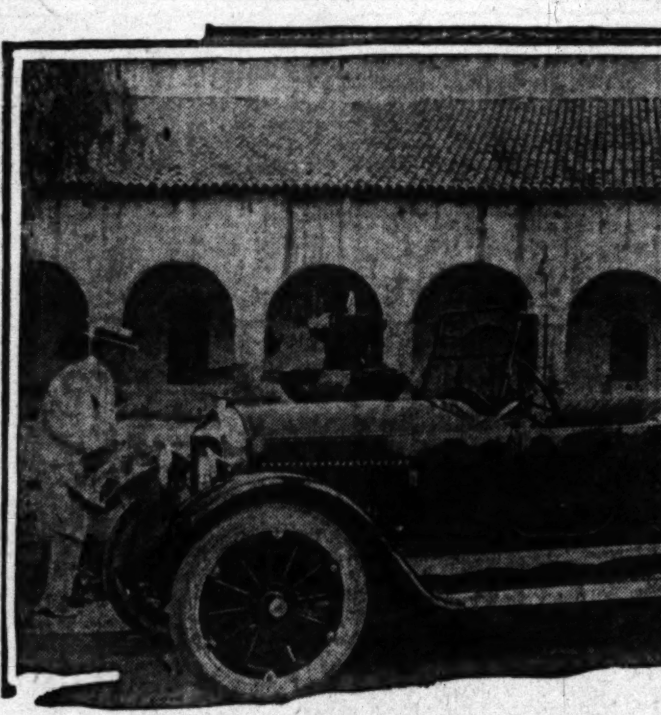
An interesting story of a motor truck that is doing some unusually strenuous work in keeping the home fires burning comes from one of Uncle Sam's munition plants.

The job of carrying steel billets from the yard to the furnaces where 3-inch shells are dropforged, then of returning to the yard loaded with the hot shells, used to be done by a big crane. The crane broke down under the strain. As a temporary measure, a three-ton Packard truck was installed while the crane was being repaired.

While the crane was off the job the output of the plant jumped from 6000 shells to 24,000 shells daily. And when repairs were made it was found that the crane could not handle the increased production. So the truck was assigned to the job permanently.

There probably is no other truck making as many trips as this one, for it travels twenty-one to twenty-eight miles each day on a round-trip haul of 500 feet. Half of this distance the big carrier must run backwards, for the aisle in which it is operated is not wide enough for the truck to turn around.

The red-hot shells soon warped the metal body of the truck so badly that a new body, much heavier, had to be put on. But despite this trying service, the big Packard has been performing its work, without interruption for many months, twenty-four hours each day. And it gives every indication of being able to continue as long as the Huns require a shell diet.



Something 121 years old and something entirely new.

The something 121 years old is the San Fernando Mission, which celebrates its birthday. The something new is the nifty little Scripps-Booth, shown in the foreground, which was driven to the mission by Doc Green.

SAN FERNANDO OUGHT TO ATTRACT AUTOISTS TODAY.

DOC GREEN, sales manager for Ralph Hamlin, in his ramblings about the Southland at the wheel of a six-cylinder Scripps-Booth touring car searching for points of historic interest chanced to visit the San Fernando mission a few days ago and observed that the mission is 121 years old today. Because of this fact, there is no doubt but that the old place will be visited today by hundreds of motorists who have not previously inspected the ruins.

A large part of the mission proper has been restored within recent years so that it is in good condition. Unfortunately there is not a collection of relics about the place such as may be seen at San Gabriel, but for those persons who like to delve into the past much of interest is to be found.

Efficiency.

CARS DAMAGED IN BATTLE QUICKLY PUT IN SHAPE.

AMERICAN troops now in training in France are so inspired by the deeds of those American units that have preceded them in action that they are like blooded hounds tugging at their leashes, writes Capt. Clarence Smith to his brother, Stanley W. Smith, of Smith Bros., Peerless distributors.

"We are billeted in a section where the houses and the other buildings, nearly all of stone, evidently were built at least 100 years ago and some of them, many years before that. Our regiment is scattered over a considerable area in the billeting process and in responding to drills, etc., officers and men get ample exercise in hiking back and forth. Everyone seems to be in the pink of condition and anxious to go. The spirit of all is wonderful," he writes.

He tells his brother that were it not for automobiles and trucks, it would be impossible for the Allies to carry on their huge operations, distribute supplies and transport men and material. Peerless trucks, he states, are used extensively in France and there are depots where hundreds of them, injured by shells or by accidents of the road, are repaired and put in condition again. Capt. Smith's regiment was formed at Camp Lewis and in June he paid Los Angeles a short visit while on leave of absence. He arrived in France with his command, of which he is regimental adjutant, about two months ago.

Knows How.

COMES TO ANGEL CITY TO GET CAR HE WANTS.

HOW insistent some persons may be to obtain the car they have made up their minds to come into possession of was demonstrated a few days ago when a stranger visited the establishment of Earl V. Armstrong, Inc., and sought to purchase a Chandler Dispatch model. He said his home is in Oakland, but he could not get one of these models there nor in San Francisco, so came to Los Angeles to make the effort. Irving Sudrow, retail sales director, here expressed regret at being unable to fill the order for the stranger and explained that it was impossible for the house to get enough of the Dispatch cars to keep up with the demand.

The visitor explained that he became interested in the car at home, but could not get a delivery. One morning, when on the ferry crossing to San Francisco from Oakland, he encountered G. L. Potter of Stockton, as the latter drove his car onto the boat. He offered Potter $2500 for the Chandler Dispatch, but the owner would not surrender it.

"I thought that surely I could get one of these cars if I came clear down here," the visitor said to Sudrow." I had no idea that the demand that exists for them in the northern part of the State would extend to this locality. It only shows, though, how quickly the public recognizes motor-car value. I'm going to keep trying until I land one and if you hear of anybody who will sell let me know."

Well! Well!

ANGEL CITY IS SECOND IN CLASS IN USE OF SEDAN

IN THE consumption of sedan models, the Los Angeles territory ranked second among those Franklin car dealers in the United States whose territory embraces a population of between 500,000 and 1,000,000, Ralph Hamlin, the Southern California distributor was apprised of this fact a few days ago when he received a letter of congratulations from S. E. Ackerman, the sales manager of the Franklin Automobile Company. Mr. Hamlin's organization sold thirty-eight Franklin sedans from September 1, 1917 to August 12, 1918. Los Angeles outranked such centers of population as Cleveland, Cincinnati, Baltimore, Providence and Buffalo. Detroit led with forty-two sales.

Mr. Ackerman says in his letter to Mr. Hamlin: "I want to congratulate you on the splendid showing you made on sedan sales during the past year. With a territory population of between 500,000 and 1,000,000 people you stand second. This speaks well for the efforts you have made on enclosed cars in the land of sunshine and flowers."

By his reference to California climate, Mr. Ackerman brought to Mr. Hamlin's mind the fact that until within the past two years, the sale of closed cars in this locality was an actual rarity.

SMALL CAR OWNER GETS GOOD RESULTS.

S. T. Carlisle of Mountain View believes he hung up a real gasoline mileage record when he drove his 490 Chevrolet touring car from the California city to Fresno on six gallons of gasoline. The distance is 186 miles, making an average of thirty-one miles to the gallon. The Chevrolet used on the trip is the second car of that make owned by the Mountain View man.

SPARES.

The question of what spares to take on reasonably extended tours is one that bothers most motorists. Here are a few useful spares that are frequently forgotten. For instance, extra bulbs for the headlights ought always to be carried. A few dry cells may be invaluable in emergency. Two or three pairs of pliers instead of the customary one should certainly be carried. Spare tire valves and a hand tire pump for emergencies will be friends in need on occasion.

AUTO CLUB ENGINEER RECHARTING HIGHWAY.

Henry Stone, civil engineer for the Automobile Club of Southern California, has left on an extended trip to rechart the road from Los Angeles to Needles to Parker to Blythe and thence through the Palo Verde district and the Imperial Valley. Stone is accompanied by P. S. Avery, official garage and hotel man for the Auto Club.

INTERNAL SHORT.

When one of the cells shows a loss of specific gravity in its electrolyte of fifty to seventy-five points and no leak can be discovered, an internal short circuit is indicated and should be remedied at once. Whenever the specific gravity of one cell falls more than twenty points below that of the other cells, there is trouble somewhere and it should be run down without delay, even if it is necessary to call in the service station.

PRIORITIES BOARD SHOWS CONFIDENCE.

EVERY TRUCK DEALER WILL THINK TWICE BEFORE TAKING ORDER.

Recognizing the desire that exists among the motor truck dealers of the country to assist the government in any way possible, and confident of their integrity, the Priorities Board has announced that for the time being there will be made no effort to segregate the essential truck users from nonessential users. The board has announced its confidence in the good faith of the manufacturers and distributors of commercial vehicles, and is leaving the determination of the essential user to them.

"This condition of affairs is bound to make every truck dealer think twice before accepting an order," says W. O. Gates of the Gates-Kelley Automotive Company, the Smith Form-a-Truck distributors. "The dealers will try to assist prospective purchasers as much as possible, and because of this fact may be called upon to establish the line of discrimination."

POSTING SAN DIEGO.

One of the Automobile Club of Southern California's sign-posting crews is placing 107 placards in San Diego and vicinity. In the assortment are sixty school warning signs and twenty dangerous corner warnings. This work is being done in record time, an average of twenty-one posts being placed per day.

GRINDING IN TRANSMISSION.

When a grinding noise is heard in the transmission case, it will be found to be caused by one of the following conditions: Lubrication failure, either the oil has leaked out or is too thin in body to do its appointed task, the shafts may be out of alignment, bearings may be badly worn or broken or there may be chips from injured teeth in the case. Whatever the cause, it should be run down and eliminated immediately.

HIPPO VAUGHN FAILS TO WIN.

Leaguers could not be properly labeled as down-hearted.

Many in the crowd were inclined to criticise Manager Mitchell for sending Vaughn to the slab with but one day's rest and further for permitting him to remain after signs of weakness appeared, as there is no scarcity of twirling material in the Cub camp.

PREDICT CAPACITY CROWD IN BOSTON.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BOSTON, Sept. 7.—A capacity crowd for the first game of the world series at Fenway Park next Monday was predicted by Secretary Lawrence Graver of the Boston American League baseball club as he looked at his stack of morning mail today. It was the last chance to obtain reservations by mail and with all the 1595 box seats already disposed of, the grand stand seats placed on sale today went in a way to show that interest in the series if not feverish, was strong in New England.

BABE RUTH LIKELY TO PITCH AGAIN MONDAY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—"When I said last night that the Red Sox were determined to return to Boston with a 2 to 1 edge in the series, I was not boasting," said Manager Barrow of the Boston club tonight. "We are in the lead and intend to remain there. I think we shall win the series because I believe we have the better club. I am not ready to say who shall pitch Monday, but it is not unlikely that Ruth will be sent to the mound."

"It was anybody's game up to the last minute and the effort put forth by the Cubs clearly shows that determination," said Fred Mitchell, manager of the Cubs. "Boston took the first game, Chicago the second and Boston the third. Now the Cubs will balance the scale again by taking the fourth. Vaughn got the worst of the breaks today, although he was not in as good form as the opening day. It is probable I shall use Hendrix in the opener at Boston."

DOUG PLANNING TO STAGE BIG SHOW.

Douglas Fairbanks is figuring on staging a big athletic show at Washington Park for the benefit of the National War Community Fund. He would like to see Jack Dempsey and Sailor Meehan come to Los Angeles and headline the show. The receipts of such a show probably would go far into the thousands. If the show is pulled off, Doug possibly will mix it for four rounds with Joe Benjamin, or do a little wrestling with our old friend Bull Montana.

MOUNTAIN LION IS NO LONGER MENACE.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN BERNARDINO, Sept. 7.—Menace to the cattle on the north slopes of the San Bernardino Mountains was at least partially removed yesterday, when M. P. Conners, formerly street superintendent here, shot and killed a huge mountain lion just above his ranch on the north slopes of Horse Thief Canyon in the Mojave River country. The animal's skin was brought here today. It measured eight feet, two inches from tip to tip, and is the largest ever seen here. The cattle of the Los Flores ranch and other companies on the desert side of the mountains have been suffering from the mountain lions. Conners came upon a fresh carcass of a steer and followed the tracks. He came upon the lion a short time later, and with a well-placed shot ended his career.

PLASTINA READY TO TACKLE ALL.

Marin Plastina, the 215-pound wrestler, takes exception to the statement of Walter Miller of the Los Angeles Athletic Club, that it is poor sportsmanship for him to go after some of the big wrestlers now in the United States service. Plastina wants it thoroughly understood that he would not take an unfair advantage of a man in the army by challenging him when he knows the man cannot accept the challenge. But Plastina claims he was after these big fellows before they were tied up in the army.

Incidentally Plastina declares he is willing to wrestle any man at any style of wrestling. He has $1000 of his own money deposited in Chicago to wrestle anyone. He wants a match at $1000 a side and promises $500 bonus to the first man who accepts. Plastina says he is a married man, and as wrestling is his business, he cannot afford to put on too many shows for nothing, but he is ready to wrestle for the Red Cross or the International Patriotic Athletic Association of America. Here is a chance for Romanoff, who has been looking for a match for a long time.

Anyone who gives Plastina the "up and down" will be quickly convinced that he is thoroughly able to give a good account of himself on the mat. J. C. Marsh, for seven years manager of the late Frank Gotch, is handling Plastina.

MISS BURNS BEATEN BY CLAIRE GALLIGAN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

DETROIT (Mich.) Sept. 7.—Mrs. Claire Galligan Finney of New York, Women's Swimming Association, won the national A.A.U. long distance swimming championship for women here this afternoon, finishing fifteen yards ahead of Miss Dorothy Burns. The winner's time for the distance, approximately two and one-half miles, was 1h., 24m. 3⅗s.

DELEGATES OF FOUR COUNTIES TO MEET.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Aug. 29.—In anticipation of the completion of the Coast trunk highway between Los Angeles and San Francisco, a meeting will be held in this city September 5 to which delegates are expected to come from Monterey, Kern, Santa Barbara and Ventura counties. There are many matters of importance alike to the people of these counties and San Luis Obispo. These matters will be brought up here and discussed and it is probable that a permanent intercounty organization will be formed.

DEER HUNTER HAS TO GIVE UP PRIZE.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LA CRESCENTA, Sept. 7.—One of our successful deer hunters has had hard luck. Grant Leenhouts, who, in company with John Leenhouts and Arthur Kootman, went out with his gun last week, shot a buck on the steep hillside of a canyon. In falling the horns were stripped and a game warden who inconveniently appeared on the scene declared Grant had shot a spiked buck and confiscated it.

This British horse artillery battery was in a hurry. Note that the wheels are entirely off the ground as the gun bounds over a ditch behind the galloping horses. Evidently this battery has been concealed behind the forest in the background and is changing position to get out of line of German fire. The picture was taken during the recent British advance. This old adobe, erected as a public museum, is the unique way that a group of public spirited men and women of Los Angeles have chosen to perpetuate the history and customs of the old days "before the Gringo came." When completed it will be furnished completely with the actual relics of old California days. It stands on a promontory overlooking Sycamore Park and just under the Southwest Museum.

The Spirit World.

BECAUSE the primitive peoples, since time began, were profoundly influenced in their actions by a belief in a connection between their earthly lives and a life of a spirit world, the wiseacres of modern times contemptuously set the belief down as a superstition. They said it was something born of ignorance.

There are not so many of these self-constituted wise men now as there used to be. Their numbers have dwindled amazingly. Science itself, in cold-blood, has actually put its indorsement on the existence of a spirit world, regarding now with solemn respect that which it long relegated to the domain of impossible supernaturalism.

The truth is that this belief in a spirit world, like many other immemorial beliefs, has persisted and does not fade away, but grows stronger with enlightment and education.

By this, we do not wish to be understood as indorsing the existing cult known as "Spiritualism," if indeed it may be dignified with the name of cult, as generally practiced. From a discussion so serious it is necessary to absolutely exclude mountebanks of all descriptions.

What we contend is that in the experience of almost every man, something has occurred at some time or other to make him feel that there is a world of the spirit, and that he has positively come into touch with it and with those who dwell therein.

We think that all religions admit this belief into their doctrines. Some religions are built wholly upon it. And religions are not the result of ignorances, but are, instead, systems of belief that have been spread and maintained by thinkers, by scholars and the truly wise.

Certainly the Christian religion, which is able to point to precedents for every belief it holds, does not exclude the belief that man during his earthly life may come into touch with the life of the spirits of those who have gone before.

It is not alone a religious belief that Christ appeared in the spirit to his disciples, to His mother, to Mary Magdalene and others after he had been crucified and was laid three days in the tomb. It is a fact of history as indisputable as any other fact of history, and fully authenticated in the only way that facts of history can be authenticated, namely, by the testimony of unimpeachable witnesses.

Here, then, is the precedent in Christianity for the belief in not only the existence of the spirit after what we call death, but also in the belief that these spirits are able to come into touch with the earthly world and those who dwell in it.

This being true, it is the most wonderful of all things, and the one thing, above all others, to give peace and consolation to the human heart.

It means that when we lay a loved one in the grave we do not part with that loved one forever. It means that we shall be reunited, in another and a far happier way, with those whom the world says we have lost. And it means, too, that the spirits of the dead are not far from us in the meantime; that their love is still around and all about us, even in greater degree than ever before.

It seems to us that as long as the human heart can cling to this assurance, the troubles and the sorrows and the burdens of this life may be borne in patience and with a strength that shall tide it over to another time when sorrow shall be no more, and when the glass through which we now see but darkly shall be as crystal to our eyes.

Folks South of Us.

THR is no denying that the peoples of the republics of Central and South America have not liked the Americans of the United States very well for a long time past. Perhaps it is true that they never did like us. It is too bad that this has been so, because they are nice folks and we are nice folks. And, we are what you might call neighbors. Anyway, we are all sister republics, and we should always have behaved like sisters in our attitude toward one another.

Signs are strong now, however, that the situation is to undergo a change in this respect. The war, for one thing, has brought about closer and more friendly relations between us all who dwell on the continents of North and South America. The United States has been at infinite pains to gain the full confidence and good will of the folks south of us. That the effort has not been in vain is plainly to be seen.

Doubtless there shall be vastly more intercourse between the peoples of this hemisphere from now on than there has ever been heretofore. There will be plenty of ships to travel in. We have never been supplied with sufficient means for visiting our Latin neighbors. That we shall enjoy seeing these people and the countries where they live goes without saying. Their countries are wonderful, and the people are wonderful. They have almost the finest cities in the world.

The more Spanish taught in the public schools of America in the future the better it will be. Socially, commercially and every other way, a knowledge of Spanish will add to the friendship between this nation and the great, growing nations beyond the Rio Grande and the equator.

Music of Words.

DOUBTLESS we might be less ill employed, at times, than in cocking an ear to the music of words. Life is the better for whatever and all kinds of music there is in it. And you would wonder how much more music there is in words, sometimes, than in a flute.

There are those who say that we no longer have orators or poets. That's really what every other generation said of its own times. It seems that each era is afflicted with a pessimism peculiar to itself. The fact is that we have both orators and poets now, as past times have had them.

But, even though we were without them, we still have those who lived in other days. The music of words is a music you hear in your heart and in your soul more than from the voice. Instruments are not necessary to it. Indeed, it is in silence that one hears it best, like one hears the singing sands of a river.

There is every kind of music in the music of words. In Homer we hear the deep tones of the organ; in Tennyson the sweet strains of the violin; in Stevenson the lilt of the pipes.

And, the surpassing wonder of it all is that even the deaf can hear it, too. It is the music of the soul.

Light.

PRESENT conditions have interfered with the progress of what is technically called hydroelectric development in California, but enterprise in this direction has been only temporarily stopped. It will go forward again with renewed vigor when the war is over.

This means that we shall have the best lighted State in the Union. When all the plans that are now made shall have been carried to completion, as they will be, the whole State of California will be lighted up like a ballroom.

Ony the engineers who have calipered every square foot of the territory have any idea of the extent of the water power available in this sovereign commonwealth. There are waterfalls almost without number that can be used to turn turbine wheels which are capable of turning dynamos.

Even at the present time electricity is transmitted over wires that stretch half the length of the State. The man who turn on his evening lamp in San Diego has a waterfall in the Sierras, hundreds of miles away, to thank for it.

The best roads in America are in California, and soon these shall be the best lighted roads in the world. It will be as easy, as safe and as comfortable to drive by night as by day.

Nor is this all that the waterfalls shall do for us. They shall also turn countless wheels in factories, in mills and mines, until the hum of human industry shall be even greater than the hum of the honey bee that feeds on the endless bloom of shrub and flower anywhere and all the way between the Oregon border and the race track at Tia Juana.

THE PIPERS.

The pipers off to the wars are gone—
But not the pipers I knew,
For, they are dust now, every one,
And dust are the pipes they blew.
Old and gray,
They are long away.
Under the sod and the dew.

They used to play on their pipes for me
When I was a little lad;
They came with the bluebird and the bee
When earth with the Spring was glad.
Soft and low
I heard them blow;
And many a lilt they had.

They were as kind as Japheth and Shem
To the naked world on their way;
And they wrought to lure me away with them,
In the dusk, at the close of day—
The road for their feet,
And their pipes were sweet—
And I was a fool to stay.

I was a fool to stay behind,
Bound to the wheels of the mart,
When the pipers fared on the roads that wind
Into the green world's heart,
Never a care
Or burden to bear,
And neither a horse nor cart.

Sun and rain on their pathways fell,
There was no dust of the street—
I was a lad and they loved me well,
But the tether was on my feet;
'Tis on me still,
And I have no skill
To make the pipes blow sweet.

JOHN S. M'CROARTY.

Women to Rule.

THOSE tireless and sometimes amusing persons, the statisticians, have estimated that, at the close of the war, the population of Germany will be in the proportion of nineteen women to one man. If this shall prove to be true, then the Kaiser may as well kiss himself good-by, and eke the Crown Prince, the barons, the counts and the vons of all descriptions, together with their appurtenances and hereditaments.

For, while it may be a fact that German women have been taught to think differently from other women during the past forty years, they are still essentially and fundamentally the same as their sisters all over the world. They will get back to the old basis. You can fool some of the women all the time, and all of the women some of the time, but you can't fool all the women all the time.

The women of Germany will rule Germany, not only because they will constitute the majority, but more so because it is up to them to superintend the pantry and operate the cook stove.

Fritz and Heinie may as well prepare to lay aside the gold lace and the tinsel and all the pomp and circumstance incident thereto. Back to the sauerkraut orchards for them. What swords they may be able to bring home with them will make excellent pruning hooks, and the guns will be fine for plowshares after a few alterations at the foundry.

We predict that the day is coming when the palace at Potsdam and the Krupp works at Essen will look like the remains of a village in Flanders, with German women gloating, bare-armed, over the ruins.

The Skid.

WHEN you have passed, say, your fiftieth birthday anniversary, that foxy old gent, Mr. Time, puts the skids under you and greases them good and plenty.

It is appalling, then, how quickly the days and the weeks and the months pass. You start in on Monday morning, and before you know it, it is Saturday night again. Even the years slip by as though you were riding through life on a roller coaster.

The thing to do then, brother, is to put on the brakes. Slow up and get a little more enjoyment out of the scenery.

Some men think that just the other way is the best method to adopt, but we are convinced that they are making a mistake. Their idea is that the thing to do when one grows gray and bald is to keep up with the procession, wear pinch back clothes, silk socks and a sailor hat with a polka dot band.

But, if you do that, all you achieve is an acceleration of the pace. It is a pathetic form of camouflage that deceives no one, and yourself least of all. When you are 50 and over, you know it, and everyone else knows it.

When a man is 50 he should have a home in the country, or at least out of the town. He should awake before dawn and say good morning to the sun, sip his glass of water deliberately instead of gulping it down, move serenely, take his time.

When night comes he should be able to say, "Well, this has been a fine, long day," instead of saying, "For the love of Mike, where has this day gone to?"

Then, when old age comes, you will be able to say with the sage: "Old age is the night of life, but is the night not beautiful with stars?"

A Fair Exchange.

WE ARE glad to observe that the American people obey the behest of the Food Administrator with little or no murmurings. He has taken white bread and sugar and many other things away from consumers, but they go right along without them, smiling.

It is because the soldiers must have all these things, and as much without stint as possible. The soldier, you see, has given up the comforts of home, and he stands ready also to give his life. If he is willing to do this, we are certainly willing to do without whatever he may need. It is a fair exchange, only we still have far the best of it from a selfish point of view.

The Professor Loses a Pupil.

"No, to get back to good, sound sense, the man I marry is got to inspire me. He's got to make me tingle. Prof, look at me an' gaze at a woman who has never tingled!

"I've read all about those creepy feelin's, I've seen 'em fillumed. I've had gurglin' brides coo at me how hopelessly happy they were, I've dreamed, and I've tried to imagine. But I never felt that divine sizzlin'. Did you ever read a book by Kipling—a poem—named 'Tomlinson?' It was all about a party who died, an' when he got to heaven's gates he couldn' tell one honest thrill he ever got out o' life, an' when they passed him to hell gate he couldn't tell o' one there, either—Tomlinson was the Myrtle Crawford of his time, I guess.

"If I was whisked off to the Great Call right now I could say that I been amused, annoyed, entertained, shocked; chased, but never caught; angled for, but never hooked; shot at, but never hit; reached after, but never grabbed; gassed, but never suffocated.

"Maybe I'm unforch'nate enough to be immune; maybe I'm over finicky; maybe I ain't human at all. But maybe not. Maybe I'm the one girl who can't learn to take a joke when the laugh is going to be on her till death doth show her the point.

"An' maybe I can afford to be mighty exactin' an' particular.

"I'm young, the world says I ain't hard to look at, I got my health, I make a decent an' sufficient livin', I look the whole doggone universe in the face an' ha-ha when I'm in a ha-ha humor, I own a Liberty bond, I got eighteen plunks in a savin's bank, I vote the Australian ballot in an American ward, I got an average sense o' humor, I got a dotin' mother, I got—say, I got a girl's three priceless graces; faith, hope an' chastity.

"I'm an heiress, come to think it over, if I got all those assets. I'm secon' cousin to a queen with half of 'em. An' some day a prince might come along an' crown me—with the greatest o' these, love.

"Well, let him come.

"I've looked many a male applicant caref'ly over; but none of 'em was him. The slipper o' my affections didn't fit a foot of any of 'em. That's kind o' reversin' the story, but reverses is nothin' new to me, an' some o' the old an' accepted stories is better upside down, anyways."

"Let me be your prince," sighed Halvorsen. "Ay can fill your loveless existence—"

And he sank on one knee at her feet as she sat, amazed, on the part payment piano bench.

"Well!" she exclaimed. "I've been proposed at many a time, but I got to give it to you for one thing—you're the first ever to get down in the orthodox fashion.

"Arise, fair haired one; it isn't fit for a prince to be on his knee before a commoner.

"Arise. An' let me slip you a tip that may be of service to you as you wobble through life hereafter; never go down on your knees unless you know you're going to get up a winner.

"What you can't get standin' squarely on both your feet you can't get grovelin' on your face. The world is past that stage where humility gets anybody anything. Ask for what you want; if you want it bad enough, fight for it. But beggin' is not only not an argument, it's a misdemeanor.

"Come—come. Get up. You give me the creeps, down there with that pleadin' expression. I'm sorry for you, Prof—but I couldn't ever be so sorry that I'd give you myself, my life, my future, my devotion' jus' to show you that I got a good heart."

Halvorsen picked himself up and brushed at the knee that had been on the rug.

"Never mind brushin'," said she. "My rugs are as clean as your knee. Cleanliness in this home is next to economy, which is the first law."

He started abruptly for the hall.

"Say—don't I get the rest o' my lesson?" she called after him. "I still got twenty minutes comin'."

But he made no answer.

She followed him out into the little vestibule. In her palm jingled some silver which she had rapidly taken from her purse on the piano.

"Wait a minute," she commanded. "Love is love, but business is no slouch, either. If I don't get any more lesson, you get paid for what lesson I got. Forty minutes is two-thirds of an hour; two times fifty c's is a dollar, an' a third o' that is thirty-three and a third—call it thirty-four. Will you run over the scale with me once more an' kill the thirty-five? I ain't got change for the nickel."

"Oh, that's all right," he said, petulantly, with his hand on the knob.

"You think it is? Not a chance. I owe you so much, an' you'll not leave this house without bein' paid—in full. I never do business other than on a pay-when-due basis. Jus' becus you were crazy enough to want to hold my hand forever is no sign you should lose a third of a dollar. Here—take thirty-five."

He shook his head in protest.

She poked a quarter and two nickels in his hand. He tore open the door and banged it after him.

Myrtle was just turning back toward the sitting-room when her mother, summoned from the kitchen by the doorslam, wandered forth to make inquiry.

"What's wrong babe?" she piped.

"Wrong? Oh, not much—lost a pretty good piano teacher. I'm blocked for the present in my musical c'reer, an' one an' two-thirds cents shot to nothin'; but, thank the luck, I'm still fancy free."

Adventures of a High Brow.

university graduates, who usually turn their attention to academic employment, or philanthropic and specialized charity clerkships.

As I became invested with more authority, many women called upon me, beseeching aid and advice and employment. I was horrified to find how disproportionate was the number of refined fairly educated "ladies" to the number of jobs, even under the most favorable circumstances, open to them. More than all was I grieved to learn how many square pegs were endeavoring to fit themselves into round holes.

Hundreds of instances appeared before me of women, once rich "gentlewomen" or "ladies," as they doted on calling themselves, in dire need, yet totally incapable of adapting themselves to the actual, practical needs of the business world. All of them claimed to be educated, and not one of them was! All of them wanted "to write," having had a vague sentimental notion as to the refinement and aristocracy of the literary profession. In vain I told them that there are constant openings for every class of solicitor; they hated the thought, and could and would not learn the technicalities of the job. They scorned the work and feared commercial men.

Always Treated With Respect By Business Men She Met.

LET me say right here, that in all my experiences in all of the dirty, crowded, quarters of the great metropolis, I never once have had a man whom I was attempting to interview, insult me as a woman. I have, of course, come up against boorish characters, and ill-bred and disagreeable heads of concerns. I have had difficulties getting past office boys and stenographers. I have had men say gruffly, that there was "no use to talk to them;" they "would not listen." But this is exactly what they would have said to any young man who had solicited them for the same business, coming to them as a stranger. There never was a hint of mistreating me because I was of the opposite sex. On the other hand, I failed to notice any of that boasted "gallantry" which many men insist handicaps them unfairly in their business relations with women. I do not believe that any responsible man signs a contract, involving the smallest sum of money, merely to please or accommodate a pretty woman.

I learned to see the woman-trying-to-work problem from other angles than my own. I became impersonal. I studied the question of our inefficiency, and the reasons for it.

I began to evolve ideas regarding the trade school, the industrial educational system, manual training in the public schools, and all of those practical schemes which are being very gradually forced upon archaic school boards by a very few enlightened educators.

Particularly did I realize the crying need for a practical education for the girls of the future, which shall be manual and commercial and industrial, and fit each individual for making her livelihood, quite irrespective of her parents' financial condition.

Mrs. Maranda F. Adams, principal of the Emerson School, Portland, Me., knit a pair of Red Cross socks in eleven hours and twenty minutes, and at the same time read the life of Robert Louis Stevenson.

The Central Railroad of Georgia employs nineteen women agents, whose duty it is to solicit and handle all freight and other matters pertaining to this end of the business.

Uncle Sam Mobilizing the Mines

some to our Allies. Thallium, which the Germans use for the manufacture of hard instrument glass of certain grades, formerly came only from Germany, but it is now made by our experts from the flue dust of our sulphuric acid works and from the smelters where pyrites containing thallium are reduced.

Among the metals used for drugs and other purposes, bismuth and mercury have gone sky-high since the war. Bismuth is now $3 or $4 a pound, and at one time mercury was selling for 1000 per cent. more than the price when the war broke out in Europe. Bismuth is used for surgical dressings, for the treating of wounds and in medicines of one kind or another. It is also used in staining pottery and glass, and as an alloy of steel and other metals. The stuff is found in connection with lead, and is one of the by-products in the refining of lead by electrical processes. There are large deposits of it associated with other ores in the mines of Saxony and Bohemia, and some is also found in Colorado, Connecticut and Utah. We find it in the lead, copper and lead-silver mines and it can be saved from the dust of the smelters.

Mercury is important in medicine, but its value just now is chiefly in the making of caps to explode shells, cartridges and mines, and for the safe and effective use of high explosives in the war. This metal is sold by the flask of seventy-five pounds. Before the war it brought $35 a flask, and since then it has sold at times as high as $350 a flask. We have deposits of it in California and in Arizona, Nevada and Texas. In ordinary times we can produce about 1,500,000 pounds per annum, but the war prices will probably greatly increase that amount. The metal is used largely for the recovery of gold, and also in making electrical appliances and scientific apparatus.

There are many other metals which have assumed increased importance since the breaking out of the war, but there are none which we have not ourselves or cannot get from our Allies. A great deal of antimony was formerly imported from Germany, but we are now getting it as a by-product from smelting certain kinds of lead ores. We are finding antimony ores in Alaska, California and Nevada, and are importing antimony from the Chinese smelters. We use this metal as an alloy of lead in leaden bullets for small arms and shrapnel. The antimony hardens the bullets so that they retain their shape when the shell is exploded.

We formerly got considerable magnesite for lining our open-hearth steel furnaces from Austria-Hungary, importing 120,000 tons in 1914. We are now getting it from California, and new deposits have been found in the State of Washington which are better than those of Austria. It is said that there is at least 10,000,000 tons in sight, and that much more will probably be developed.

We are getting our cobalt from the cobalt silver mines of Canada. We use the stuff in connection with tungsten in the making of steel. It increases the strength and elasticity of the product, the addition of 4 per cent. cobalt and 16 per cent. tungsten making the very best tool steel now known.

And so I might go on mentioning other metals which we shall use for the Army and Navy and for our world trade at the end of the war. There is none except platinum in which Germany has the monopoly, and her platinum is dependent upon her possession of Russia. Indeed, in connection with the Allies we have the control of the most important deposits of the world's minerals, and it is to be hoped that we shall have the good sense to maintain this control when the great war is over.

GIRL U.S. ARMY EMPLOYEES IN FRANCE.

BY STERLING HEILIG

A BEAUTIFUL FRENCH CITY (Rear G.H.Q.) August 10, 1918.—Recent Paris illustrated weeklies contained photographs of a great parade passing a grand stand. At the head of American hospital nurses marched their girl captain.

Now, from the main street of this beautiful old French city, an American girl stenographer attached to the United States Army Medical Corps Bureau, turned into the shady courtyard of one of the three smart tourist hotels of before the war, taken over by the A.E.F. She was in uniform, and carried a parcel.

"Ten of us arrived last night," she said, "detached from Paris. I have a corner room, with view on a flower garden."

"Have you secured your sugar?" I asked, viewing the parcel. "The Sales Commissary has it."

"You cannot tell me anything about quartermaster stores," she answered. "I know them all. National biscuits, standard chocolates, lemon drops, stick candy in tins, and Jack Frost pulverized sugar, for fruits. I know them all."

(Such products, craved by restricted civilians, may be sold from army stores only to the army.)

"Is your board included?" I asked.

"I don't know," she answered, simply. "Here's my traveling order (producing paper.) It pays $2 per day flat; and they brought us to this hotel. I did not inquire. We girls can trust the army!"

She spoke truer than she knew—all through. Very great developments are under way. By the time these lines can be printed, Miss Elsie Gunther may very possibly arrive in the United States, from France, in the interest of the Female Labor Bureau, A.E.F.

Miss Gunther has offices at Barracks 66. On the door is "Labor Bureau." I first met her at the post quartermaster's, telephoning about furniture for 5000 Waacs, expected to arrive next week. I mean the Waacs. The furniture beat them to it.

Uncle Sam Borrowed a Regiment of the Waacs.

SHE is the young woman whose efficiency at Plattsburgh brought her into notice, last year. She remained six months is secretary to the general commandant of Plattsburgh Training Camp, then came to France as chief of the Women's Labor Bureau attached to the United States Army.

The army had been averse to bringing women into the game, at least American women. Her first contingent is composed of the Waacs already mentioned, 5000 English, Scotch and Irish girls of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps, due to take possession of their own camp outside this French city and go into the United States Army Central Records and Statistical Department, to replace as many enlisted men, doing clerical, stenographic, filing, card-cataloguing, etc.

Such was the first move; but the Waacs will be absorbed entirely by the Central Records Office. Our army authorities had been naturally averse to having anyone go home to bring out American girl clerical forces, because of the difficulty to give them ocean transportation, which is crowded. One of the great works of the General Purchasing Bureau, A.E.F., in France has been to purchase labor—regularly, male labor, gathered from many quarters. The chief purchasing agent, under whom Miss Gunther works, asked her to try the British Islands; and the British government, after six weeks and much discussion, answered: "We can not give you organized labor; but will lend you a regiment of our Waacs." They supposed that 5000 girl clerks would last indefinitely for all our army offices; but, instead, they are being taken up by one great department.

It results that American girl clerks are needed. The Women's Labor Bureau attached to the United States Army in France has already under its care, not only thousands of French women working in the salvage department and at heavy ordnance work and the regiment of British Waacs already mentioned, but all army nurses, A.E.F., and a considerable number of American girl employees.

They are Queen Mary's—no Longer W.A.A.C.'s.

I SAW many Waacs at work, in the Central Records. Of 5000, perhaps 1600 have arrived with new groups of, say, fifty girls coming in daily. One wore an orange-colored brassard (arm-band,) indicating an administrator. All were in uniform of faded or light-tint khaki. Typewriting industriously, card-filing with interest, copying into register loose-pages with meticulous care, the English, Irish and Scottish girls are visibly proud of their job; and the hundreds of our enlisted men temporarily clerking beside them speak well of their application and capacity, with a point of natural male condescendence.

"The Waacs," said their girl quartermaster, "do not call themselves Waacs any longer. Since Queen Mary is Colonel-in-Chief, we are Q.M.A.A.C.'s, which is harder to pronounce; but we prefer it."

They are governed by a girl chief controller, corresponding to a general commanding. For example, she controls this entire American unit of 5000. Suppose that 200 of them be sent to a neighboring city—they still remain under her, wherever they may be scattered. A girl unit administrator corresponds to post-commander. She has all to do with the personnel, their work, discipline, and so on. And, finally, a girl quartermaster completes the trinity of a general staff of Waacs with the A.E.F.

I met the girl quartermaster, who acts exactly as a post-quartermaster, receiving all material, furniture, etc., except that the food is both supplied and cooked by the A.E.F. Post-Quartermaster. In their cookhouse, a serious boy from Montana had just turned out vast pans of hot, fragrant cornbread sweetened with molasses, which some forty blonde Waacs sat and gobbled with enthusiasm.

The cornbread was just the color of the girls' hair; and spick-and-span girl quartermaster, Miss Sylvia Corner, of sweet voice, glowing soap-and-water complexion, schoolgirl simplicity, Star of Mons and Order of the British Empire on her khaki tailor-made, was a symphony in browns and chestnut, cloth uniform, silk blouse, tie, everything. "It's all right for you girls with brown eyes and brown hair," said an American girl secretary in West Point gray-blue uniform, "but I think the best uniform is that of our Y.W.C.A.!"

American Red Cross women had been wearing a similar gray-blue uniform, close to the Cadet blue; but the later models seen are much darker. Now, this question of the uniform is becoming quite important

Our Girls Will Probably Wear the Old Army Blue.

THE American Quartermaster Corps, it may be stated, is arranging to provide girl workers of the A.E.F. with uniforms, and to supply them with shoes. It will probably be the army uniform of navy blue, similar to that worn by A.E.F. Telephone Girls and Army Nurses in France, with small overseas cap. The nurses, at present, are wearing large black hats. All, finally, it would seem, will be obliged to wear uniforms. You see where it is tending.

An example of propriety is seen in the A.A.A.'s (It stands for Army Auxiliary Corps.) American girl clerks refuse the initials; but when French girl employees of the A.E.F. came down from Paris, being in all kinds of civilian clothes, they were given a white arm-band with the letters A.A.A., in order to protect them. They were expected not to be seen in the street without it. Now, our ordinary Signal Corps Telephone Girls, here and elsewhere in France, have no such need of arm-band protection. Chief operators and assistant-chiefs wear it to distinguish their grade, with the silhouette of a telephone-receiver instead of the initials. The ordinary telephone girl, A.E.F., has simply her uniform.

Whether or not they take the initials, all on the army payrolls—telephone girls, stenographers, copyists into registers, filing clerks, statisticals, postoffice A.E.F., or army nurses—all constitute, in fact, a auxiliary branch of the service. Long ago President Wilson insisted on their being so considered for the purposes of insurance. And there are higher motives. Higher motives are crystallizing into act. Perhaps Act of Congress.

All come, technically, under the Women's Labor Bureau attached to our Expeditionary Forces, even the aristocratic army nurses although of these latter, Miss Gunther says frankly that "they are already so well cared for" that she "is not bothering" with them. Their chief advantage, highly appreciated as soon as realized, is to find, all ready for them, excellent accommodations in the one-time tourist hotel already mentioned, when they pass through Rear G.H.Q., and similar thoughtfulnesses elsewhere, as tired girls on their travels.

It is no small thing. None of these things are small. This story is Odyssey, Crusade and City of God! Opposite the Labor Bureau Offices in Barracks 66, I saw a large sign: "Rest Room." It was a cool, long, high-ceiled sitting-room, with couches, arm-chairs, tables, desks rugs and a big mirror.

Women's Barracks Are Like Beautiful Clubhouse.

AT THE Waacs' Camp, they took me to an immense frame "barrack" furnished up in the same way. The curtains, fluttering in a breeze, were Y.W.C.A. blue—and, like many similar refinements, furnished by that organization. Girls' rest rooms, cantines, sewing-rooms, recreation halls, and, even, facilities for washing and ironing blouses are set up, all through the S.O.S., by Miss Gunther's Labor Bureau. Also, the Waacs today enthusiastically "vacation camping" in frame barracks, will not be kept so lodged, in snowbound suburbs, during winter. Part of a vast old French permanent barracks, in massive masonry, are being fitted for them and for others. Only those who have seen the fair white walls and floors with Turkey rugs of generals and colonels, S.O.S., in a similar old barracks pile adjoining, can appreciate the essential security and comfort of the transformation!

A hundred or more telephone girls are installed in a hotel which I shall call the Moderne (every French city has a "Moderne.") The sign over the door is Signal Corps Club, Y.W.C.A.

Others are snug in boarding-houses, which they call, naturally, "billets." I have known such to be fixed luxuriously, confirming colloquially and trustworthily an already good use of the French language, from French families.

Yet others are, temporarily, I should say, at the Hostess House of the Y.W.C.A., on a beautiful old avenue of cathedral elms.

THINGS FOR EVERY HOUSEKEEPER.

BY RETTA BADGER.

I SURELY often wish that clothes were like the much talked of "One Horse Chaise" and that they would go—"altogether, and nothing first" so there would be no more making over.

Of all human apparel, men's shirts are least like this wonderful vehicle for they wear at the cuffs and where the collar rubs when the material is still perfectly stout and the color good, so economy demands they must be put to good use. I make breakfast sets of them, constructing a middy like the picture. As three middies will be soiled before one skirt, I make the skirts for all white, fashioning them from the stout portion at the foot of old sheets. These suit well with any shirt material as the ground work of that is generally white and I wear white sailor collars with the blouses.

Other shirts I have fashioned into kitchen aprons by simply cutting off the tail in the back after turning the shirt around, and cutting out the neck and sleeves. All rough edges are then hemmed and the whole apron can be completed in half an hour for the original buttons and button holes will serve for fasteners.

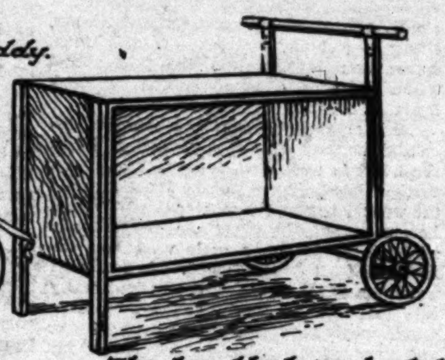
Small apron.



The box that graduated into a tea wagon.

Or a pretty little, heart-shaped apron may be cut out of the back and a bib made from one sleeve, and the whole hemmed or bound; but this, of course, is more trouble.

My husband also likes when he works in the yard, the sports' shirts I construct. I cut off the sleeves at the elbow and make a soft, low collar of the lower portions of the sleeves.

If you want to try to use the shirts a little longer as real honest to goodness shirts just cut pieces from the tails and use those pieces for a large patch on the outside of the front. This patch must be long and wide enough not to show its edges in the "v" of a vest. By carefully turning it in and whipping it down around the neck it will not be necessary to remove the neck band to put the piece on. This will give the shirt a new lease on life.

The Box that Graduated.

The following suggestion from a correspondent is a splendid one.—[Ed.

After "pricing" tea wagons at the furniture store, I decided quite suddenly that I did not really want one. There are so many things that one can buy for twenty-four dollars.

You really do not need to saw a board straight to make a wheel-tray from a box. Of course, the box must be solidly built and of the right measurements, a box, which is two feet wide and three or four feet long will do. Then you must find two wheels with the rod that holds them. I found that an old pair of wheels, which had been used on the baby's sulky, were very good for this purpose.

Go to the lumber yard and get a piece of lumber, twelve feet long and one inch thick. Saw this in four pieces of an equal length. These pieces are used for the legs. The front legs should rest upon the floor, but those in back are raised so that they rest upon the rod that connects the wheels. These are clamped on the rod to hold them in place. All of the legs must be nailed solidly onto the box.

Do not cut the ends that stand up above the top of the box, but fasten a broom stick across them. The broom stick is used for a handle.

If the box has a great deal of deep lettering upon it, it will need two coats of paint, but if the box is free from this, a stain will do very nicely. The stain which I used brought out the grain of the wood and it looks very nice.

After the entire process has been finished, the humble box has graduated with high honors into a wheel tray. The graduation causes the box to become so useful that we wonder how we kept house without it.

It is used to set and clear the table. Outdoors, it goes with the entire lunch upon it and in it, if we wish to lunch under a tree or on the porch. Then it is convenient to put away the laundry, after it is folded and ready for the drawers. We have no occasion to use a wheel-tray for the sickroom, but I know that it would be very useful in that capacity. I also used it to give the baby his bath, that is placed the tub upon it and after the bathing was over, removed the tub and spread the bath mat upon it. It seems very much easier to bathe a baby if he is placed thus when being dressed, they are such little wrigglers. The lower shelf is used to keep the clean clothes, powder and the like, when the wheel-tray is used as a baby stand.

MADE WITH BROOM HANDLES.

Perhaps you have saved your broom handles left from worn-out brooms to use as handles for wet mops or to use as stakes for young trees, beans or chrysanthemums in the garden. If you still have some extra broom handles that you are just saving "to use some day," you can use them now if you put on your thinking cap.

Lacking a curtain pole a broom handle will make lots more clothes room in a tiny closet if fastened lengthwise across the closet, just as a curtain pole is used. In a linen closet a broom handle used as a curtain pole is fine for keeping best linen from too many creases, for the linen can be folded once to form the center crease and then thrown over it just as if it were a clothes drying rack.

The broom handle can be brought into the bedroom, boudoir or sewing-room if you are willing to do a little painting with gray or white enamel paint. Four broom handles fastened as legs to an oblong market basket will make either a pretty work basket or plant stand. If a work basket is planned, paint the basket and legs to match the room in which it is to go, and line the basket with flowered silkoline, crepe or cretonne. For real practical use two baskets fastened like two shelves to a table to the broom handle legs makes plenty of room for the family mending. If the stand is to hold plants on the porch, paint it dark green and set a wooden box in it to prevent moisture from rotting the basket.

In the back yard the kiddies can have great fun with broom handles. For the tiny tent houses that children love to make with old burlap, furniture covers or shawls broom handles are safe tent poles. For the budding Boy Scout broom handles will make camp-fire cranes for outdoor camping safe at home in the back yard where his parents can watch him!

GINGERBREAD.

Always liked and inexpensive. One cup cornmeal, one cup wheat flour, two teaspoons cinnamon, two teaspoons ginger, one-half teaspoon salt, one teaspoon baking powder, one teaspoon baking soda, one cup molasses, one cup sour milk or buttermilk, two tablespoons fat.

Sift the dry ingredients and add molasses, milk and fat. Beat well and pour into a greased pan. Bake twenty-five minutes. Notice that this recipe uses cornmeal for half the wheat flour ordinarily used.

CAKE WITHOUT SUGAR.

An excellent cake, though not quite so sweet as with sugar. One-fourth cup butter, oleomargarine or other fat, two cups corn syrup, two eggs, three cups flour, one and one-half tablespoons baking powder, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one cup milk.

Cream the shortening, add the sirup and the egg, and mix well. Add the milk. Sift the baking powder and flour together, add it slowly to the mixture and beat. Bake in a moderate oven as a loaf or layer cake or small drop cakes. One-fourth cup of raisins added to the batter gives more flavor and sweetness.

FOR THE DOUBLE DUTY PILLOW.

A large pillow had to serve as an ornament for the lounge by day and a pillow by night for the unexpected guest. In spite of its usefulness, it did not always present a neat appearance, because of three large safety pins which served as fasteners for the open end and refused to be hidden. My friend who watched me trying to thrust a fat pillow into the cretonne cover, and making awkward attempts to pin the opening, calmly smiled and said, "Why do you fasten it in that fashion with those ugly pins? You will simplify matters by sewing on a few snaps. Then you will be able to unfasten the cover and remove it with ease, whenever you wish."

I followed her advice with pleasing results, so that when the unexpected guest arrived, the cretonne cover was quickly removed and a white pillowslip took its place.—[S. S. R.

POTATO BISCUITS.

Sift together one cup flour, two teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon salt, one tablespoon sugar. Add two rounding tablespoons shortening, one cup of finely mashed potatoes, and a little milk, just enough to make a soft dough. Roll out lightly, cut and bake in a hot oven for about twelve minutes. They must be eaten as soon as baked as they fall in a very few minutes.—[M. D. V.

CHOCOLATE OATMEAL DROP CAKES.

Sift together two cups flour, one cup sugar, one-half teaspoon salt, two teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon cinnamon, one teaspoon ginger, one-half teaspoon cloves, four rounding tablespoons ground chocolate. Add one-half cup shortening, one-half cup apple sauce and two eggs. Mix well and add one cup rolled oats, one cup of raisins which have been floured and one-half cup cocoanut, or any chopped nut meats if you prefer. Add enough milk to make a stiff batter or a rather soft dough and drop either into patty pans or in spoonsful on a greased pie pan. Bake in a rather quick oven about ten or twelve minutes. The apple sauce may be omitted and twice as much shortening used.—[M. D. V.

FITTING A LOW NECKED DRESS.

Many people have trouble in fitting their low necks as they often become bulgy, especially after laundering. Try this. It never fails to give a smooth fit to any shaped low neck. Try the dress on and mark with a chalk or pencil just where you want the neck; then before cutting out, sew on the under side with machine stitches, a narrow piece of tape. Do not stretch the goods while sewing. Then cut the neck out, leaving the tape on to hold the neck firm. If the goods is transparent or colored and you have no tape to match, use a narrow double straight strip of the same material, and finish the neck as desired. This band will always hold the neck in shape, and prevent that ugly bulging seen on so many low necks.—[M. D. V.

FRUIT FOR DESSERT.

Raw, stewed or baked fruits, dried or fresh and dried sweet fruits like dates, figs and raisins. By using fruit for dessert instead of rich pies and puddings you will conserve wheat flour and fats as well as sugar. Besides, the fruits are more wholesome and often less expensive. Bake or stew your fruit with corn sirup instead of sugar. The result is very good. For stewing use one-half cup of syrup to one pound of fruit. When dried fruit is used, soak it first in water overnight and cook for ten minutes.

PARISIAN SWEETS.

Another sweet which is very good. Use equal quantities of figs, dates and nuts. The nuts may be omitted and prunes or raisins added. Put through a food chopper. Mix well and roll in a little powdered sugar or grated cocoanut.

UNCLE SAM MOBILIZING THE MINES.

BY FRANK G. CARPENTER.

WASHINGTON (D. C.)—The United States Geological Survey and the Bureau of Mines have been making special investigations as to the minerals which Uncle Sam requires for the war. They are numbered by scores. Some have a part in explosives, some are usd in shells and projectiles, others are indispensable to the airplane and the battleship, and others have to do with increasing our food supply. In fact, everything connected with the fighting in Europe depends upon mineral resources of one kind or another. The war is a fight of metals as well as of men, and the forces that can produce the best combinations and can command the raw materials to do so will come out victorious.

The necessity for the principal minerals is well known. We have these in abundance. We were producing 40 per cent. of the world's coal output before the war began, and almost three-fourths of the petroleum. Nevertheless, we had a famine in coal last winter, and there is now danger of a shortage in gasoline. As to iron, which forms the basis for everything in transportation and fighting machinery, 40 per cent. of that mineral comes from the United States, and our smelters have been producing half of the world's copper and about one-third of its lead and zinc.

All of these minerals are of enormous value as to the war, but in the use of them to make the best fighting machines other minerals are required, some of which until now we have been importing from various parts of the world. Our output of iron ore last year was over 70,000,000 tons, but that used in making high-speed tools, ordnance, armor plate and the stronger parts of airplanes and automobiles had to be mixed with other metals, the names of which are hardly known to the ordinary reader. Among these are molybdenum, vanadium and uranium, cobalt and chromium, tungsten and manganese.

Vanadium and chromium are employed to make steel hard and tough, and able to resist the shock of an explosion. We have vanadium in some of the ores of Colorado and Utah, but the most of our supply comes from Peru, whose yearly output is about 3000 tons. The chief mines are high up in the Andes within a short distance of the great silver and copper deposits of Cerro de Pasco. I visited them during my last trip to the Andes. They were owned originally by an Italian, but were sold by him to capitalists in Pittsburgh, who now control the chief source of the world's supply. We are now producing about one-sixth as much as Peru.

The Germans are using chromium also to make up their shortage of tungsten. It is especially valuable for making hard cutting tools and for automobile axles and springs. It is used for cannon linings and in armor plate, and is one of the metals specified in certain parts of the Liberty motor. Chrome steel can be made so that it will not rust, and altogether it is so valuable as a military metal that the Bureau of Mines recommends that the government provide for at least one year's reserve supply. Until within the past two or three years nearly all of our chromium came from British South Africa and the French islands of the Pacific, but now we are producing thousands of tons, the most of which comes from Shasta and Fresno counties, California. We have the metal in Oregon and other western States as well, and some has been quarried near Baltimore, Md.

As to uranium the Germans have taken all of that metal they can find and are using it in their steel works for some military purpose which has not yet been discovered. It is probably in connection with tungsten in combination with which it is valuable as a ferro-alloy. The stuff brigs about $7.50 a pound or $15,000 a ton. We have the largest deposits in existence and are using it to make high speed tools.

Tungsten is So Indispensable that the Price has Risen Out of Sight.

A METAL which is of much the same class as those above mentioned, and perhaps the most important of all, is tungsten. Its value was known before the war in Europe began, but since then it has become almost indispensable and the price has risen from $360 to $6000 a ton. Tungsten is used in shells and projectiles, but its chief value is for making high-speed tool steel. It is estimated that one man equipped with tungsten steel tools using a single machine can do as much work as five men with five machines equipped with the carbon steel tools that were formerly used One of the makers of cheap automobiles says that his company would have to add $200 to the price of each automobile if it had to use the old-style carbon steel tool.

The metal is used also for filaments in electric and incandescent lamps. It can be drawn out into wires one-eighth as thick as a human hair and almost as fine as the finest strand of a cobweb. By tungsten filaments one can get for 15 cents as much electric light as formerly cost him $1, and the light is better. It takes a very small portion of the metal for each light and the saving runs into the hundreds of millions of dollars a year.

A bauxite mine in Missouri. This ore gives us aluminum for airplanes and electrical transmission.

Tungsten is valuable in speed tools because it melts only at 5900 degress Fahrenheit. Such tools will keep on cutting when red hot, and they can be speeded enormously. The metal has a tensile strength of more than 300 tons to the square inch, and it resists rust and acid. It is absolutely essential to us in this time of war in order to maintain and increase the output of steel parts needed for munitions and for military and naval equipment.

Before the war began tungsten was used largely in Germany, but the supply began to play out before we came in. The Deutschland, the submarine that came to this country in 1916, bringing a cargo of dyes, took back a cargo largely made up of tungsten. Before the war the Germans got most of this metal from the British possessions and they owned also mines in Argentina. The ore was smelted in Germany and sold to the rest of Europe. The most of the product went to the Krupp steel works at Essen.

Today the United States is the largest producer of tungsten ore in the world, making about one-fifth of all that is mined. Our principal deposits are in Colorado, California, Idaho, New Mexico, Nevada, South Dakota and Alaska, the richest and most valuable of all being in the Mojave Desert of California. The mineral is produced also in Burma, Bolivia, Portugal and Australia. It takes but a small amount of tungsten to each ton of steel, and the world supply is not large. The metal is used also in ignition systems, in telegraphy, and as a substitute for platinum as electrical contact points.

Platinum is Worth More Than Gold was Before the War.

AS TO platinum itself, this is now one of the most valuable metals on earth. It was worth twice as much as gold before the war began, and it is now worth five times its weight in that metal. The most of the world's supply has come from Russia, and before the war the Russian output was controlled by a French syndicate which brought the platinum to France and sent it out from there. When the war came the Russian mines broke down, and from now on they will be in the hands of the Germans. We shall have to get our additional supply from Columbia and California, Nevada and Wyoming, where it is known to exist in small quantities.

We are indebted for our present supply largely to one of our army officers who was traveling through South Russia at just about the time we entered the war. He saw the great need the United States would have for platinum, and without any authority from the government he secretly bought up all the platinum he could find. He had to buy it in competition with the Germans, but he succeeded in getting something like 2000 ounces at a cost which I am told was upward of $100,000. He paid for this out of his own pocket and those of his friends, and smuggled it out of Russia and across the Trans-Siberian road to Japan, and thence to the United States. It is now in the hands of the government.

Outside of Russia the chief deposits of platinum are in Columbia, South America, where the Germans are buying all that they possibly can. It is an imperative need that we send men to that country to secure every ounce that comes into the market.

The supply of platinum that we now have is made up of that imported before the war began. We had more than 116,000 ounces in 1914 and we have been getting something like 20,000 ounces a year from Colombia. There is considerable in the jewelry of the stores and in the hands of private parties, and some also owned by our dentists, who use it for pegs for crowning teeth and for bridgework. This could be commandeered if necessary.

No Other Substitute will Do the Work in Crucibles for Fine Laboratory Work.

AMONG the chief war values of platinum is in the making of acids for high explosives. It is used by the contact process in the manufacture of sulphuric acid, and it may be used in the same way in the turning of ammonia into nitric acid. In these processes there is but little loss of the platinum and it can be used over and over again. In 1916 we used 44,000 ounces of platinum for contacts.

Another most important use of platinum in these days of scientific warfare is in the little crucibles for fine laboratory work. There is no other known substitute that will do for this. The metal is employed also in the making of incandescent electric lamps. It expands and contracts in the same way as the glass and, therefore, it can be sealed in the glass at the base of the lamp. It is used in electrical apparatus for intermittent contacts, and especially for our airplanes. In combination with iridium, it is employed in the setting of diamonds and other precious stone. The metal is harder than copper, having a strength of upward of 30,000 pounds per square inch. Platinum wires have been drawn out so fine that 1200 of them laid side by side would cover a width of only one inch.

The United States Geological Survey and the Federal Bureau of Mines have been investigating the platinum situation. They roport that there are placer fields in Northern California and Northwestern Oregon which produce this metal and that at three places in Wyoming and Nevada small amounts of platinum are found in the rocks. The amount needed is not great, but we dare not risk a lack of supply.

A mineral which is of tremendous importance in making war steel is manganese. This has doubled and trebled in value since the war began. We have some of it in Virginia, Georgia, Arkansas, Colorado and California, and we are now importing a large amount from Brazil, India has some which was formerly in the hands of the Germans and now goes to Great Britain. Russia has mines, the supply of which will now go to Germany. The United States may be able to get all it needs from this country and Mexico, as our geological, experts have called attention to the new available supplies. I am told that we can use 1000 tons a day as long as the war lasts.

Manganese is necessary to the making of all the high grade steels now in use. When iron is made into steel practically all the carbon and other impurities are taken out in the open hearth furnaces or the Bessemer converters, and it is necessary to put back a small amount of carbon to make the best steel. Manganese is used for this purpose. It adds to the toughness of the metal and makes a dense solid steel free from honeycombs and blowholes. There is some of it in every bit of armor plate, and in every shell and other projectile. It is used in all our airplanes, motor cars and other vehicles of rapid transportation. Since the war began we have imported millions of dollars worth from Brazil.

A metal used somewhat like manganese is titanium. It is employed as an alloy for steel rails and in forgings and castings to give them wearing qualities. The principal producer of this metal is the United States

Magnesium the Chief Lights Used Over in No Man's Land.

THE chief lights in No Man's Land are made of magnesium. This is the lightest metal known, and it remains fairly stable under all atmospheric conditions. It is stronger, tougher and harder than aluminum, and it is used as an alloy with it in airplanes. It is found also in shrapnel shells and in aerial bombs and rockets.

When magnesium burns it produces a white cloud by day and a brilliant white light by night. This lights up the surroundings, and shows also where the shells strike. The metal was selling before the war for $1.65 a pound and all that we had was imported. It is now selling for $6.50 a pound and we are getting much of it in the United States. We produce a great deal from the waste materials of the Michigan salt brines. We made almost 100,000 pounds in 1915.

The best red lights for the battlefields are made of strontium, a metal which was produced chiefly in Germany until the war broke out. We got our material for making the red signal lights for the railways from that country. We are now making strontium ourselves and we shall be able to supply all of our home demands from now on.

As to aluminum, the chief ore from which it comes was not even mentioned in a list of useful minerals published by the Geological Survey twenty-five years ago. This ore is bauxite, of which there are large deposits in the South and especially in Alabama, North Carolina, Arkansas, Tennessee and Georgia. There are also large deposits in France. Before the war we were producing about two-fifths of the world's output and more than 80 per cent. of our supply came from Arkansas.

We are the leading country in the manufacture of metallic aluminum and in 1916 we exported that metal to the amount of $15,000,000. Aluminum is used largely in airplane bodies and in automobiles. It is used for electric cables, and as a conductor in long-distance power transmission. Los Angeles has one such line 200 miles long. Aluminum forms a part of the camp equipment of the soldiers, and mixed with amonium-nitrate as a dust or powder, it makes an explosive for shells. It is used as a paint, and the bauxite ore is employed to make brick for furnace linings. The metal is valuable on account of its nonrusting qualities, and for its resistance to the action of acids and especially sulphuric and nitric acids.

We are now getting the most of our nickel from Canada, and that country will supply us with all we need for the war. It has great deposits at Sudbury, Ontario, just a few miles north of Georgian bay.

There is not in the Bible, from Genesis to Revelation, a single passage which commands or suggests that the first day of the week should be kept holy. The observance of the first day was introduced as an economic measure by the Emperor Constantine, in the year 321 A. D.

Medical Monopoly.

IS THE American Medical Association aiding to win the war when it refuses to permit experienced and capable men of other schools to go to France?

The A.M.A. is urging federalization of all State, and perhaps all municipal health organizations in the United States, as a "war measure."

This is another step toward medical monopoly, under cover of the war.

At the annual convention of the American Optical Association, in St. Paul, a strong criticism of the small clique in Chicago that runs the A.M.A. was voted by W. T. McConnell of Pittsburgh on his retirement of the presidency. Mr. McConnell characterized the American Medical Association as the "Hun" in the professional life of America.

While we are fighting for democracy in Europe let us guard against the establishment of a medical autocracy in America.

A bill is in committee in the House of Representatives admitting osteopaths into the Army Medical Service. Congressman Osborne of Los Angeles has declared himself in favor of such a bill.

Underweight.

DO NOT worry if you are a little underweight. All tables of weights, copied parrotlike, are wrong. They are all far too high because they are taken from the average man and woman, and the average civilized man and woman is not normal in weight. Canadian actuaries, in convention, recently said that all popular weight tables are 15 per cent. too high. Sometimes they are 20 per cent. too high. That is to say, when the skeleton is light.

Fruit Pits.

IT IS figured that from 30,000 to 40,000 tons of peach pits can be gathered from the year's crop of peaches this season in California. These pits will be used by the United States government for the purpose of making charcoal, to be used as a purifying agent in the gas masks carried by our soldiers at the front. The season's peach crop is estimated at 15,000,000 bushels in this State, which will approximately be 31 per cent. of the entire peach crop of the United States.

A better use may be made of the pits of peaches and other fruits than to burn them. They are a valuable food.

When you eat stone fruit, crack the stones and eat the pits. Thus you get all of the fruit. It is more nourishing and digests better.

It is the same with meat. Carnivorous animals eat all of the carcass, including the bones and blood. They would gradually starve to death if they ate only the flesh, from which most of the blood is removed. Man is not carnivorous.

Before the war apricot pits were shipped from California to Hamburg, where they were used in place of almonds, for confectionery, and for other purposes. At Redlands, Cal., Prof. S. M. Woodbridge has been making a fine oil from apricot pits.

Salt Rubs.

WHILE I do not approve of salt internally, it is good occasionally for exterior use. A salt rub is a good way to stimulate the skin to action.

A correspondent reports that a woman cured herself of rheumatism in this way. It will not cure rheumatism, or any other ailment, while the diet is wrong, but it will help.

Fasting for Mental Ailments.

I HAVE often said that fasting, followed by an abstemious non-stimulating eliminative diet, with sun and air baths, and the judicious use of water, would go a long way toward emptying our insane asylums and reformatories. Here is a confirmatory statement on the subject by R. L. Alsaker, M.D.:

"There is no question but that a fast, followed by a light diet, containing less of the heavily starchy and proteid foods and more of the succulent vegetables and fresh fruits, with their cleansing juices and health-imparting salts, would result in the recovery of over half of the insane. Most of them are suffering functionally and here the outlook is very hopeful. Christ cured a lunatic 'by prayer and fasting.'

"Proper feeding would work wonders in prisons. It would also be very beneficial for wayward girls and young men who are passion's slaves. St. Peter recommended fasting as an aid to morality, which is another evidence of the profundity of his wisdom."

Doctors and Diet.

SEVERAL "regular" medical friends of mine, belonging to the allopathic school, frankly confess that they know nothing about diet, beyond perhaps a smattering of "calories," which are misleading.

How should they know? They have not been taught in medical college. Yet the building of the body by food is the most important feature of the art of maintaining of health, and the curing of disease.

It is never too late to learn. It would pay physicians to take a postgraduate course on this subject. There is an increasing demand on the part of the public for information. Many people are no longer content to be told to "eat what you please" or to "eat what seems to agree with you."

Weak Heart.

FOLLOWING is from "Food" by J. H. Tilden, M.D.:

"I have found that a weak heart usually accompanies excessive stoutness. So common is this accompaniment that I have decided a weak heart is necessary. The weakness is due to enervation, and this enervation may come from many causes. A shock, uncontrollable emotions, stimulants, living in bad air, excesses of all kinds, have their influence on the heart; and when there is a predisposition to weak heart it becomes established.

"Any organ with impaired function becomes the host of waste products. When the heart is weakened, deposits take place, further interfering with its function; and the weaker it gets, the stouter the individual becomes; but the stoutness is gradually added to by dropsy—a state where the tissues are all water-logged. When this transition is taking place, the patient really eats less than formerly and grows more stout, until he declares that he can live and grow fat on water—which is not far from the truth."

Equity.

"EQUITANIA or the Land of Equity" is a book of 168 large pages, by Dr. W. O. Henry, formerly of Omaha, Neb., now of Los Angeles (Marsh-Strong Building.)

Dr. Henry was in the active practice of medicine for more than thirty years, was professor in a medical college and in hospitals of Nebraska, and has been closely identified with Y.M.C.A., church, Sunday-school, philanthropic and other work. He has also voyaged to the Orient and Europe, to learn something of conditions there. In his preface he says:

"I have tried to study man as a rational, intelligent, responsible being, with almost infinite possibilities of growth and development, and have endeavored in this work to give my conclusions and the reasons therefor as to the ideal environment and government in which man might have the best opportunities in his process of evolution toward physical, mental and moral perfection."

There is much radical food for thought in this book.

Water Drinking.

YOU may easily drink too much water, as you may eat too much food. The system may become "water logged."

Many writers advocate drinking two quarts a day. Why it should be just two quarts I have never been able to understand. In cool weather, sitting at a desk, half a pint may be too much, whereas toiling with a pick on a summer day or marching through the desert may require over a gallon.

Again, it all depends on the food. If you live mainly on fruits and vegetables, which contain from 80 to 90 per cent. of water, you need no water at all, but if you eat mainly of concentrated dried food you need some water to make up the deficiency.

Also the false habit of salt eating leads people to eat much more than they should. Salt robs the tissues of their moisture.

Never drink ice water, if you value your health.

Many remarkable cures have been effected by the "dry diet." This is especially valuable in cases where there is constipation.

Uses of sulphuric acid.

Few persons realize to what extent sulphuric acid enters into the manufacture of many articles of everyday use or wear. The tub for the morning bath, if enameled, has been touched with sulphuric acid, and if an old-fashioned tub of tin, plated on sheet copper, even more sulphuric acid was used in its production. Water for the bath has, in all probability, been treated with sulphuric acid. The towel used after the bath has met sulphuric acid, and some of it was probably employed in the preparation of the soap used. The bristles of the hair brush used have been treated, and the back of the brush, if of celluloid, could not have been produced without it. The razor used by father was probably pickled in sulphuric acid after it was annealed.

Underwear is bleached with sulphuric acid before being woven, or possibly subjected to a sulphuric acid bath after being woven. Sulphuric acid also is necessary in the outer garments for scouring the wool and making the dye. It is likewise used in button making, in tanning shoes, and in producing shoe polish.

At breakfast the cups used, if decorated with gold, have seen sulphuric acid, which is used in dissolving the gold. The silver of which spoons and forks are made probably came from a sulphuric acid works which had first burned the ore. If plated, they were plated in a sulphuric acid bath. Rolls or bread eaten at breakfast have probably been made from flour produced by a farmer who used phosphate, which is sulphuric acid and phosphate rock, as fertilizer for his wheat land. If buckwheat cakes are eaten the sirup used on them probably has a little of the acid in it. Sulphuric acid is used in the production of any artificial light which an early breakfast hour may make necessary. It is essential in the refining of kerosene and gasoline, and is of prime importance in the manufacture of copper wires that carry an electrical current.

Sulphuric acid has been known commercially for about 100 years. The first step in its manufacture is the burning of sulphur. This forms a gas, which is [illegible] treated to produce sulphuric acid. A curious feature of the acid is that it cannot be shipped in diluted form in iron containers, since it will eat through the iron, but strong sulphuric acid can be shipped in tank cars.

There is but one form of immunity that is sure and that is good health. Good health renders people proof against the common diseases which are now believed to be due to bacterial causes.—[R. L. Alsaker, M.D.

MARRIED LIFE OF HELEN AND WARREN

BY MABEL HERBERT URNER.

"WAIT a few days longer," urged Helen. "He may call you up—or write."

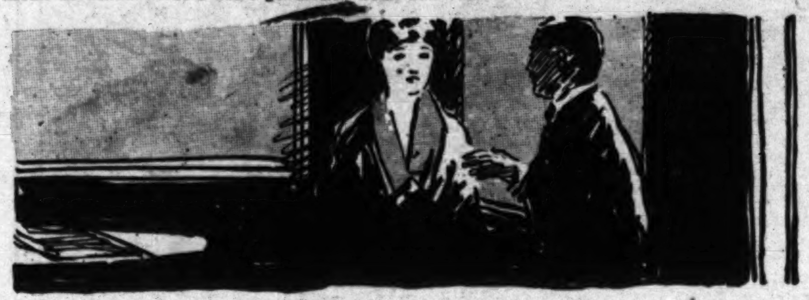
"I've waited over two weeks," desperately. "I can't stand it any longer."

"He may be out of town?"

"No, I called up his office Monday—at noon when I knew he would not be there. His stenographer said he'd be back in an hour. Oh, I must see him!" pausing in her feverish pacing, Marion dropped on the window-seat. "I can't go through another night like last night!"

With aching sympathy Helen knew that her pallor and pain-darkened eyes were evidence of more than one sleepless night. Yet she invited even greater suffering by trying to see this man who was deliberately avoiding her.

"Oh, I wouldn't ask this of you if it didn't mean so much. But I can't go alone—he'd know then that it was just to see him."



"I don't mind going with you—it isn't that," protested Helen. "But I'm afraid you'll only make things worse."

"How can I? I can't suffer more than I have the last week." Then with a startled glance at the clock, "It's a quarter of one now."

Reluctantly Helen went in to dress, while Marion phoned for a taxi. To do to the restaurant where he lunched was her plan. She knew his regular table. If they took one near by he would have to come over and speak to them.

Helen felt strongly that from such a forced meeting nothing could be gained, yet she could not refuse Marion's tearful pleadings.

"Don't look so disapproving! Don't make me feel I'm doing something so dreadful," when they hurried down to the taxi.

"It's only that I'm afraid you'll be more unhappy afterwards."

"I can't be! Oh, if you knew what these last few days have been!"

"Try not to show it now. You mustn't let him see that you've suffered."

The cab drew up before the canopied entrance of the Riltmore. A flushed excitement now relieving her pallor, Marion led the way to the grill room.

"I'd like a table by that second window."

The head waiter, impressed by her decisiveness, ushered them to a table just back of the window. The one directly by the window was marked "Reserved."

"He hasn't come yet," whispered Marion. "You order—anything. Oh, my heart's beating up here," her hand at her throat.

Her emotionalism seemed to charge the air, for Helen felt her own pulse quicken as she watched the entrance. The place was filling rapidly, mostly men—the prosperous, well-groomed business men of that neighborhood.

"There he is! No don't look yet," Marion dropped her gaze.

Through discreetly lowered lashes Helen saw the head waiter draw out a chair at the reserved table. Then her held breath came in quick relief—he would sit with his back toward them.

"In the mirror!" whispered Marion.

The mirrored wall-panel by their table reflected the table beyond—the broad shoulders and clear cut but rather hard profile of Willard Forbes.

"Oh, I'm afraid—I almost wish I hadn't come," breathed Marion.

"We can leave now—without his seeing us!"

But Marion, her gaze still riveted on the mirror, shook her head.

"Oh, he looks thinner—don't you think he does?"

"I haven't seen him lately," evaded Helen, to whom he looked assertively robust.

"Did you see that?" eagerly. "The man who just passed spoke to him, and he barely nodded. He's brooding over something."

Marion was pathetically striving to deceive herself. Her hungry gaze followed his every movement, trying to read into them some thought of her.

It seemed that the very intensity of her presence would cause him to turn. But apparently he was unresponsive to her mental telepathy.

"Oh, I can't let him go—I must speak to him!" quiveringly, when she saw the waiter bring his check.

"I wouldn't," restrained Helen. "Write or phone him—but don't force a meeting here."

He was pushing back his chair—now he rose.

"Willard!"

He turned sharply. His eyes hardened as they rested on Marion. For a moment he hesitated, then reluctantly came forward and took her extended hand.

"Won't you—won't you sit down? You've met Mrs. Curtis?"

A formal bow acknowledged Helen's presence.

"Are you in a great hurry?" steadying her voice with a laugh. "Can't you have a cordial with us?"

"No, thanks, I'll have to get back to the office."

"Willard, you must—just a moment!" her control breaking.

His frown deepened. Again he hesitated—then took the extra chair at their table. And awkward silence. He was cruelly waiting for her to speak.

Helen felt her face grow hot. The situation was becoming impossible. Marion was only humiliating herself.

"I—I wondered if anything was wrong," with a pathetic effort to regain her composure. "I haven't heard from you for so long—over two weeks."

"I've been very busy. Barnard's away, and I've had extra work."

"Oh," eagerly catching at this, "then perhaps you can come up Sunday?"

"No, I'm going out of town for the week-end."

"Willard, what is it? Tell me—I can't bear it!" now throwing off all restraint.

"I'm afraid I don't know what you mean?" flushing angrily.

"Oh, don't—don't make it any harder! I'm humiliating myself enough."

"And quite unnecessarily." Then as he rose, "You'll have to pardon me—I've an appointment at 3 o'clock."

The color flooding her face Marion rose also. Then turning to Helen.

"I'd like to speak to Mr. Forbes as he goes out. You'll excuse me a moment?"

Helen with throbbing anxiety watched them cross the crowded restaurant. Oh, why had Marion done this? She was only repelling him. What if she should break down and make a scene in the corridor?

As the moments passed and she did not return, Helen's anxiety grew. She was watching the doorway and the marble clock above it. Ten, fifteen, twenty minues! Summoning the waiter, she paid the check and hurried out.

She passed through the corridor and the almost deserted reception rooms. Then with a sudden premonition she turned into the ladies' dressing-room. Then, on the chintz lounge, the attending maid hovering over her, lay Marion!

"She seemed quite ill when she came in," explained the maid. "Then she fainted—but I think she's better now."

In less than ten minutes Helen had her in a taxi. Stonily silent, her face drawn and set, Marion gazed out the cab window.

It was not until she had thrown herself on the couch in her own tiny studio that she broke down with a moaning:

"Oh, why did I go there? Why did I try to see him? He despises me now."

Helen could say nothing that would not add to her humiliation.

"He said—Oh, I can't tell you—I can't tell you!"

"Don't try—oh, please don't! It'll only make you feel worse."

But with hysterical persistency Marion kept dwelling on that scene. He had told her brutally that he had credited her with more pride. That when he felt inclined to call—he would. He needed no reminder from her.

They had never been definitely engaged, sobbingly Marion admitted that. But for over a year he had called or taken her out at least twice a week. And now—had he met some one else for whom he cared more? Or was it something she had unconsciously said or done? The anguishing over this through sleepless nights had driven her to seek him.

It was after 6 o'clock before Helen reluctantly left. Marion would not let her stay. Though another tortured night confronted her—she would face it alone.

All the way home Helen brooded over the cruelty of the code that a woman must make no overtures to the man she loved. He was free to come or go as he choose—but she must not attempt to hold him.

Even at dinner the injustice of it all still rankled, and Helen was unusually silent. Her few remarks to Warren were brief and abstracted.

"You're nice and cheerful tonight," was his ironic comment when they left the table. "Why the gloom?"

"Oh, I've felt depressed all day," determined not to tell him of Marion.

"Jove, see that sunset!" He was looking out at the crimson-streaked sky.

Drawing him down to the window-seat Helen snuggled up beside him. Then musingly, as she gazed out at the dazzling panorama:

"Dear, do you think woman suffrage—their growing independence and all that—will ever make any real difference in their—Oh, I mean—will a woman ever be able to show that she cares for a man?"

"If she does she'll never land him," with grim conviction.

"Why not?" excitedly. "Oh, it's so unfair! Why must she always sit and wait? What if the right man never offers?"

"Then she'll take whoever she can get—and be mighty thankful."

"Oh, that makes me wild! Why don't women rise up in revolt? Why shouldn't they demand an equal right in the selection of their husbands? Isn't that a thousand times more important than the right to vote?"

"Well, when they try to put that over—there'll be a superfluity of old maids. What's the idea, anyway? What's started you off on that line?"

"Oh, I—I was reading a story today." Then tensely, "Dear, before we were engaged—suppose I hadn't heard from you for several weeks, and I—I made it a point to see you and let you know that I cared? Oh, of course, I wouldn't," with feminine inconsistency, "but just suppose I had! What would you've done?"

"Couldn't have seen me for the dust," with a grin. Then shrewdly, "I don't know who she is—but she can't land him that way. A man prefers to do his own courting. They're mighty wary birds—they'll all shy when you try to put 'em over the jumps. She can bag him by stalking him! Just slip her that, if you get the chance. Here, hand me that ash tray!"

Girl U.S. Employees in Prance.

Among these, I cite girl draughtsmen, attached to the aviation and the engineers. Before the war, they were meritorious American artist girls, in Paris, receiving as high as $100 per portrait!

All is in a state of glorious evolution.

Think of the immensity of it all, when a regiment of 5000 Waacs is absorbed by a single great department! As, arriving in groups, they release enlisted men, and undertake new and increasing work too great for the original contingents of these latter, in the Permanent Records and Statistical Department, few, indeed will be left for the Postoffice Department.

Yet the Postoffice A.E.F. cries for female clerks.

To "Camp" in a Wonderful Eighteenth Century Palace.

SO THE other departments.

So, they are starting another great camp, halfway between here and B——, to hold about 1096 of the finest new American girl clerks to be brought over. Nothing could be prettier, more "club," more "vacation camping" with all comforts than these girl camps; and they have all the experience of the Waacs regiment organization to aid them. But this gives the measure of speed, and not the last word. The last word, for the coming winter, is the grandiose B—— Barracks, already referred to, vast old rectangular pile of eighteenth century masonry with a parade-ground court, capable of transformation to any degree of comfort and, even luxury. It is only a question of Quartermaster Corps supplies and wonderful quartermaster organization!

Meanwhile, I like to stand and look in on the shady courtyard of that hotel where the Medical Corps stenographer girl has a corner room on a flower garden.

I am not sure that she will keep it. Let us call this hotel the Negociants (there is a "Negociants" in every French city.) Before the war, it was a rather expensive tourist house. Miss Gunther nailed it over night! Today, there are some fifty pioneer American-girl stenographers and telephone operators in it, rather the new arrivals than overflow from the Moderne.

At Any Minute Their "Sailing Orders" May be Expected.

THEY cannot stay at the Negociants permanently, if it be required by others. Any of them, also and any way, may be sent up along the lines, at any moment. You see?

The Negociants will be used by passing American girls, new arrivals awaiting billets, a certain number of army nurses who may come through, and by secretaries, etc.

The hierarchy is evolving. I was much impressed by that girl quartermaster of the Waacs, immaculate in uniform, of soft, decided voice: "that's so!"—"that's it!"—a bread-and-butter schoolgirl of aristocratic poise, who has in her memory the horrors of the glorious Retreat of Mons! What has she not done since? The Order of the Empire gives a guess.

Then my admiration turned to two American girl leaders. One, a secretary in West Point gray-blue, pale, slender, work-worn, was swiftly ticking off a quantity of rest room requisites. The other was Miss Gunther herself. Probably she has lost twenty pounds in France. In the sun-faded light khaki uniform of an American lieutenant, travel worn by swift trips to Paris and London, hair and overseas cap powdered by automobile dust, keen-faced, intent, talking business on an equality with men, she personified the American Girl.

When ex-Ambassador to Germany James W. Gerard addressed a meeting of 14,000 persons in San Francisco recently, the price of admission was fixed at one pair of usable shoes, either new or old, the same to go to war victims of the Allied nations.

Brown said, "I changed from low to high."
Said Jones, "That you've a car is news."
Brown said, "The deuce a car have I, I'm speaking not of gears but shoes."

Fibroid Tumors.

FIBROID tumors on the uterus are very common and give women much anxiety, which is encouraged by the attitude of medical men, who, following the prevailing mania for surgical operations, say that these tumors must be cut out.

On the contrary, not one fibroid tumor in a hundred needs an operation, and then, of course, the operation cannot cure. It does not remove the cause, which is the presence of waste matter in the blood, due to the ingestion of surplus food, that cannot be digested and assimilated. So long as this condition continues the tumor, like the rest of the body, is fed and grows.

So far from an operation curing it encourages the growth, as more surface is exposed. Hence we see unfortunate women submit to one operation after another, until they become nervous and physical wrecks.

Whether fibroid tumors ever degenerate into malignant growths is a subject that has been much discussed, some writers declaring that they are liable to undergo such degeneration, others maintaining the contrary. Among the former was Virchow. Changes of this kind, however, are exceedingly rare.

Usually uterine fibroids do not attain to great size. Exceptionally they become enormously large, weighing forty, fifty and even seventy pounds. Sometimes they exist in great numbers.

I know a woman who has had a fibroid tumor for thirty years and it has not increased in size. However, she has lived very abstemiously.

Fibroid tumors are met with at all ages after puberty, but they occur most frequently between the ages of 35 and 45. They are found both in the married and the single, in the sterile and fruitful.

J. M. Finney, M.D., says:

"Childless women suffer more from cystic diseases that lead to cancer than women who had children, a protest against modern civilization, and a growing peril.

"It is most prevalent among childless women and among women who have had one or two children, but did not nurse them. Mothers who have reared four or five children and nursed them all rarely have tumors."

The cause of these growths are constitutional. The blood becomes filled with impurities and the general circulation is obstructed. Congestion arises and abnormal growths develop. By keeping the blood pure in quality and freely circulated in every part of the body abnormal growths, whether benign or malignant, will not appear. The two chief causes are sedentary habits and eating more than the system can appropriate.

Fibroid tumors are apt to give rise to excessive menstrual discharge, profuse leucorrhoea, painful menstruation, pain throughout the pelvis, and where there is pressure upon important nerves, the mind may be more or less disordered.

Having attained a moderate size, the tumor usually remains stationary, or it may increase slowly until the menopause, often giving rise to considerable hemorrhage. After the change of life these growths are apt to undergo a certain degree of atrophy and to cease to be a source of annoyance, or at least of danger.

Absorption or atrophy of such abnormal growths may be effected by adopting a frugal, abstemious and temperate mode of living, eating to live instead of living to eat. And there is no other way.

The first thing to do is to give constitutional treatment, for this, like other ailments, is not a local disease, but a disease of the whole body. The clothing must be loose, so that the blood will circulate freely in every part of the body. As to diet, rich dishes as meat and pastry must be avoided, also seasonings and condiments. Vegetables and fruit should be the principal articles of diet. Overeating will cause congestion and aggravate the disease.

The bowels must be kept open, not by "harmless cathartics"—which are always harmful—but by natural methods. Sitz baths will help to keep down pelvic congestion and arrest the growth of the tumor. A wet pack, worn at night, with a dry cloth over it, is very helpful. Also, local hand manipulations, to stimulate action of the skin and remove congestion. The extremities must be kept warm at all times. There should be daily exercise in the open air which will take the blood away from the congested organ and distribute it to other parts of the body.

Intemperance in Eating.

IT WOULD be amusing, were it not sad, to see ardent prohibitionists, who think it a crime to take a glass of beer or light wine, gorging themselves to repletion on stimulating food, washed down with as harmful stimulant, in the shape of hot coffee, or eating combinations of starches and sweets, that form alcohol in the stomach. R. L. Alsaker, M.D., writes:

"Men and women band themselves into societies and associations for the purpose of decreasing or doing away with the use of tobacco and alcoholic drinks. They advocate temperance and even abstinence in the use of those things which do not appeal to their own senses; but most of them are far from temperate in their eating. They have very keen vision when searching for weaknesses and faults in others, but are quite near-sighted regarding their own.

"Is excessive indulgence in liquor any worse than overeating? Not according to nature's answer. The inebriate deteriorates and so does the glutton. Both cause race deterioration. Gluttony is more common than inebriety and is responsible for more ills. Gluttony is often the cause of the tea, coffee, alcohol and drug habits. Overeating often causes so much irritation that food does not satisfy the cravings, and then drugs are used.

"Improper eating, chiefly overeating, causes most of the ills to which man is heir. If people would learn to be moderate in all things disease and early death would be very rare."

Two Classes.

MEN and women who work in offices and stores and take little physical exercise may broadly be divided into two classes—those with weak digestions, and those who have inherited strong digestions, from parents who lived nearer to nature.

Among the first class digestive troubles stop at the stomach. The food eaten does not digest. They are thin, dyspeptic and nervous, and suffer from chronic catarrh of the stomach. They are constantly complaining. They may live to be a hundred years of age, but they accomplish little, and make life miserable for those around them.

Those of the second class turn all they eat into flesh and blood. They are optimistic "pictures of health." They can "eat everything." These people get a hint from nature once in a while and perhaps cut down their intake of food, but soon resume "good living" until one day they go off suddenly from apoplexy, or pneumonia, or perhaps die from some slow and painful ailment, like Bright's disease.

It may seem strange to some that the cure in each case is the same—moderation, which is true temperance. Not merely abstaining from alcoholic beverages—we may do this and yet be grossly intemperate—but in eating to live instead of living to eat and tickle the palate.

To this you must add a reasonable amount of physical exercise and proper breathing.

And there is no other way.

Lessons From the Animals.

WE MAY get many useful lessons from those creatures flippantly termed "inferior animals," although they are superior to many men and women. That is, we may obtain such lessons if we are not too proud to learn.

Observe the dog, when it is sick. It goes into a corner and lies quiet. You cannot make it eat anything, unless you force food down its throat, when it will immediately vomit the food again. It may seek out a rough form of grass and chew some of it, to promote vomiting.

An Arizona correspondent writes:

"We have a cat, which seemed to have been bitten by a snake or some poisonous lizard. Its face swelled, one eye appeared to have run out, and it looked as if its days were numbered. It would not eat. I thought of your writings, to see how they would work out on the cat. For fully a week or ten days it did not eat, drinking a little water. Finally she seemed to be getting better, the swelling broke, and even the eye has come back, as good apparently as ever."

But then, as I have said, many human beings have not so much sense as God had given unto geese. So, when they are sick they immediately want to "take something" or "do something," instead of ceasing to do those things which have made them sick and letting nature cure them, which she will always do if only given half a chance.

Condiments.

A FEW months ago the great wrestler Frank Gotch died of nephritis. He had been very fond of chili con carne, which contains much red pepper, and he ate large quantities of it.

Dr. J. H. Kellogg has said that one of the worst cases of what is known as "gin liver" that he has ever seen in dissection was that of a man who was an ardent prohibitionist, and who had consumed large quantities of pepper and other condiments.

With condiments I class chloride of sodium, or table salt, and refined white cane sugar. Both are harmful irritants.

Condiments are craved by those whose stomachs are inflamed. And then the stomachs become more inflamed, demanding more condiments. A healthy stomach does not crave condiments.

School in September.

IT IS again time for me to make my annual protest against the custom of opening the Los Angeles schools in September.

This year the schools open on September 3, or about ten days earlier than usual. Worse and worse.

According to records of the Weather Bureau, September is the hottest month of the year in California.

Children come back from free open air life to be cooped up in school buildings in hot weather. Under such conditions they cannot apply themselves vigorously to the task of learning. Much of the benefit of a vacation is undone.

In this climate the schools should close later and open later. I am told that bookkeeping in Sacramento interferes. Then let the method of book-keeping be changed. This is not China.

An Absurd Law.

UNDER the Los Angeles Sunday closing law, it is permitted to sell unwholesome candy, but it is forbidden to sell wholesome fruit.

Also, candy will keep, while fruit will rot on the hands of the dealer.

It is difficult to imagine a more idiotic law than this.

N. B.—I don't say that members of the Honorable City Council are idiots. I do, however, venture to ask, "Why is a City Council?"

Probably before these lines are published—three weeks hence—an indignant public will have forced the Council to retract a law that never should have been passed.

If the Los Angeles City Council is determined to have a Puritan Sunday, why not go the "whole hog"? Why not enact the "Blue Laws" of Connecticut, which were abolished in that State only about a year ago. Here are some samples of them:

"Mothers were prohibited from kissing their children on Sunday. A sea captain, returning from a four year voyage, was impious enough to kiss his wife as she ran out of their home to meet him on the 'Sabbath Day,' for which offense he was fined.

"Another man was fined for 'unseemly walking' on the 'Lord's Day,' and although he protested that he ran to save a man from drowning he was made to pay his fine.

"Aguila Chase and his wife were fined in 1646 for gathering peas from their garden on the 'Sabbath.' James Watts, in 1658, was publicly reproved for writing a note about common business on the 'Lord's Day.'"

Meantime, the seventh day is the Sabbath, not the first.

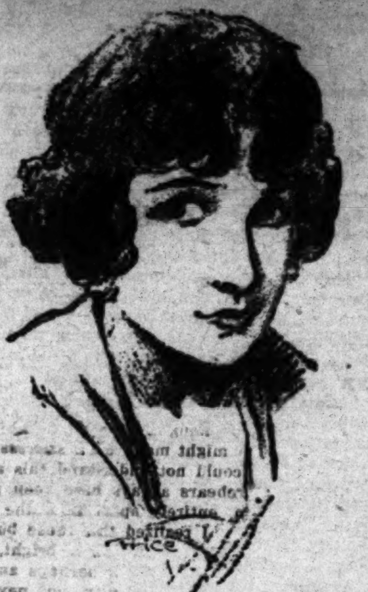
THE PROFESSOR LOSES A PUPIL.

BY JACK LAIT.



EVERY Sunday morning, after she returned from church, Myrtle Crawford, model de looks, perfect six and thirty, and just turned five and twenty, took her piano lesson.

Myrtle had her longings for culture, and among these the foremost was an ambition to tease the ivories into a syncopated outpouring; she had no dreams of attaining counterpoint, getting all the counterpoints that she had time or patience for in James & Younger's department store, where she toiled her good six days of each week. But she did yearn to reach ordinary parlor ability as an interpreter of current popular "numbers."

A piano had been installed on installments, accompanied by a nearly mahogany bench and a topheavy stand lamp. All of this set her back $6 the month, which she made up by scrimping her allowance for gum, lunches and movies. In addition, she paid 50 cents for an hour each Sabbath, the standard rate extracted by Prof. Elmer Halvorsen, who played nights in the neighborhood picture show, and who gave instruction in odd hours.

Myrtle had engaged him because he was the only handy piano teacher she knew—traded with him as she did with the corner grocer, because he was the nearest and most obvious. She had heard him make the instrument at Hochstadter's Picture Palace moan, yodel, and rip it up, and his technique had made good with her. But not for a moment had she considered, not to say encouraged, the attitude which the professor suddenly assumed on this, the third of the Sunday sessions.

Finger exercises were in progress when the surprise broke. Myrtle had never quite fathomed why, in order to play "Blooey Blooey Blues," she had to become adept at chromatic scales, but she had undertaken to "go the route in this piano thing," and she minded attentively the professor's minute instructions regarding the arch of the wrist, the relaxed poise of the digits, and the horizontal position of the forearm, and was sincerely trying to "get" all the points as he had demonstrated them.

Despite her concentration and zeal, however, her tyro hands failed to master the trying poses and maneuvers which can come only with repeated practice, and several times the professor had mildly chided her.

Myrtle tried again, but the professor moaned. Then he petulantly reached over her shoulder with his own uncalloused hand and dived it, like the descending hawk upon its lambkin, down on Myrtle's plump hand.

He began to knead her knuckles and to demonstrate how her fingers should be flexed. Myrtle thought she understood now—would he please let go and let her go on. But the professor only tightened his manual embrace. She looked up, puzzled. In the face of her instructor she saw an expression which to another might have been cryptic, but which to Myrtle, the veteran wooee, tooted its warning signal horn.

"Jus' what's the idee, Prof?" she asked, rather in expostulation than in inquiry.

"Ay—ay want to hold your liddle white hant forever," he said.

"You'll be holdin' your eye if you don't let go," snapped Myrtle. And she wrenched loose from the effeminate grasp of the sighing swain.

"Ay lofe you. Ay want you to be Mrs. Halvorsen. Ay—"

"Nay. Gee, I thought you Scandihoovians was nootral. Where do you get that grabbin' women like Dutch Huns? Gee, you're a rough party, Prof. You almost choked me in the wrist."

"Ay want to smother you in my arms."

"Easy—easy there! If your chances o' goin' to heaven rests on your smotherin' one Myrtle Crawford in your arms before you enter, I'm afraid you better reserve a lower on the limited for Satansburg. Say—at 50 cents an hour you wanna be a Douglas Bushman; those lads get a lot o' money for foldin' the heroeyene in their arms on short notice. You're in the wrong studio. Will we go on with our lesson—takin' out three minutes which you burned up in unnecess'ry comedy an' addin' them to the twenty minutes I still got comin' for my half a smacker?"

He drew a deep, temperamental heave and said he couldn't proceed now—even music could not soothe the burning that was seething within him. Only love—only love from the lips of her whose charms had entranced him—only that could he center his mind upon now.

"Aw, gee, Prof," said Myrtle. "Now you made a bum out o' the whole lesson. You could at least o' waited till after I got so I could have each finger on its right base an' the thumb on the home plate, C.

"But I s'pose that settles my lesson; an' now I'll have to get busy an' hand you yours. Well, then, pay some attention to this, Prof, because you ain't likely to hear a line of honest United States like what you're gonna take for some considerable period.

"Into the life of ev'ry woman comes three men—the man she loves, the man what loves her, an' the man she marries.

"Some girls are lucky, an' for them all three is molded into one.

"In my case—well, I don't know yet. But I know this; you ain't not only the three of 'em, you ain't even any one of 'em.

"Lemme ask you—or rather myself, for I'm going to do the answerin'—are you the man I love? Well—do I look goggle-eyed or anything? Am I tryin' to ketch my thumb with the rest o' the fingers on the same hand? Did I ever impress you that I thought I was Napoleon? Or that I was bein' pursued by mysterious avengers tryin' to kidnap me for ransom? No, I guess I'd pass the county court an' a competent jury o' physicians, even if I was loony enough to hire you to come into my house on a peaceful Sund'y and desecrate the holy atmosphere by hookin' my paw as if it was free lunch. No, I don't scarcely think you're the man I love.

"The man I love is got to have a chest twice as broad as yours is—an' a shave. Whiskers is an institootion intended to make vaud'ville comedians who haven't got any nach'ral comedy in their system funnier than what they would be if they looked like human bein's.

"The man I love is got to have hands what have done a few days o' Christian toil. A piano teacher is all right in his line, but I p'efer other lines. The man I love is got to make good first—to the world an' then to me. Oh, I know you're a bearcat at ticklin' the black an' whites. But that ain't a business—that's kiddin' the population out of a livin' an' kiddin' yourself that you're gettin' away with somethin'. I wouldn't love a man who played the piano as good as you do—that ain't art; it's the sign of a misspent youth.

"The man I love is got to be a good man—or a bad man—anyways, some kind of a out an' out man, not an unclassified article tossed out o' miscellaneous odds an' ends on the bargain table—ladies, take your pick, only one to a customer.

"The man I love is got to be—well, he's got to be somebody else but you, Prof."

Halvorsen, the pale blood rising to his very white cheeks where they showed in the hairless sections, combed his wheat colored beard with his fingers, gulped, then started to feebly make answer. But Myrtle caught him on the fly—

"Now, takin' up the man who loves me:

"To be loved sanctifies a whole lot, an' goes, I guess, a long ways towards fillin' in the cavity that ought to be stuffed by lovin'. But, do you love me?"

"Yes—oh, yes," he darted in.

"Wait. First of all, are you capable o' lovin' a vig'rous, 100 per cent. all around Christian girl? You know what love means? You think its spoonin' and hand-holdin' an' kissin'—ugh!—an' like that. Well, it ain't Love is sufferin', that's what it is; it's doin' without an' givin' an' sacrificin'—it's what the good book calls abnegation.

"Maybe you got qualities in you that never rose up before my weak vision; I'll confess I never searched very close, an' I never laid awake nights tryin' to figger out heroic promptin's that might be in your heart. But I kind o' learned, in my many years o' meetin' men an' women of all kinds, to follow what newspapers call a woman's instinct, what I am slangy an' rude enough to denominate jus' plain female hunches. An' it hunches me that you're not the kind o' man who would tear down brick walls with your bare an' bleedin' hands for a woman jus' becus you loved her, or that you'd go without so she could have a li'l more, or that you'd tune the strings o' your life to the pitch o' her sense o' music, or dance to the tempo of her heart beats.

"No. I think you're a gen'leman, an' that you wouldn't be cruel to a woman, but I scarcely think you got th true nature in you to really love—to love the way I'd be expected to love an' the way I'd undertake to love right back from the moment when the right man says to me, 'I love you' and I answer in good faith, 'An I love you, too.' Prof, I've never said those words to a man—not to a single man on earth, an' goodness knows I've met a few of 'em. Now, what makes you think that out of all the men in the world I should pick jus' you?

"What do you think marriage is? A pastime, or somethin'?

"I dress pretty up to date, but in some of my inside ways I'm terribly old fashioned. Marriage to me means jus' what it says—to love, honor, an 'obey till death doth part. The man I marry I got to love an' honor, an' him I'll obey till the curtain an' the exit music. I don' love you; I'm frank in sayin' you may have your hon'rable points, but I haven't seen anything out o' the ord'nary to 'specially honor about you; an' as for obeyin' you—say, don' make me laugh.

"The man I marry is got to show me first of all that I can't live without him, an' I'll show him that I'll live with him. He's got to show me that he can't live without me, an' I'll show him how nice it'll be to live with me. What we'll live on is important, too, but not most important. It's nice, I guess, to have ev'rything, but nobody ever had ev'rything. If you have a whole lot you're sore becus you haven't got more. I guess Rockyfeller is grievin' because he's poor—he knows a buildin' in Syracuse an' a farm in Labrodar what ain't his.

Navy Really in War.

J. S. CONKLIN of the Alabama was watching a quartermaster hoisting the admiral's flag, and was turning away, when a new man who had been watching him said:

"Say, Jack, what's the two stars mean in that flag?"

The "old timer," after sizing him up, said: "Son, that flag is for two sailors who left this ship and joined the army. It's our service flag."

In Vaudeville.

DRAFT men coming to Camp Kearny recently for training decorated the railroad cars in which they traveled with all sorts of mottoes and inscriptions.

When they got there they were required to wash them off. However, one car got away from camp in some unexplained fashion, while these words still adorned its sides:

"This is the bunch that's going to make the Kaiser whistle the 'Star Spangled Banner.'"

Blind Luck.

ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY soldiers who have lost their sight have taken unto themselves wives and are settled quietly down to home life in London.

"And a topping lot of girls they have picked up with," says Sir Arthur Pearson. "You might think they would only get the 'left-overs,' but they know too much for that!"

In connection with the blinded soldiers' children fund, a schoolmaster asked his boys to bring a gift accompanied with an appropriate proverb or quotation.

On the day appointed, one little boy put down 12 cents with the remark: "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

A second angelic looking boy placed a quarter on the desk and said: "Cast thy bread upon the waters and it shall return to thee after many days."

A third boy, bright faced and cheery, placed a coat on the desk with the remark: "A fool and his money are soon parted."

No Social Standing.

AN AMERICAN woman who is a Y.M.C.A. worker in London vouches for the following story:

A newly arrived American sailor met a first draft friend at the Eagle Hut in the Strand.

"Hello, Jake!" said the former. "I suppose now that you are living in London, you're meeting quite a lot of titled ladies?"

"Huh!" replied Jake, "you don't meet them sort—why, they wait at table?"

Like the Old Mill.

CARL EMIL JUNCK, importer, of Chicago said in a Red Cross address:

"The grain shortage in Germany is a most hopeful augury for the Allies. Germany one of these days will reach the starvation point. The war will then end automatically.

"Grain today flows out with such dangerous slowness to the German people that it reminds one of the old stone mill.

"A miller, you know, had an old-fashioned stone mill that ground very, very slowly. A customer, after watching the mill a while, said:

"'I could eat that meal faster than your old mill can grind it.' 'Mebbo so. But how long could ye keep on eatin' it?'

"'Till I starved,' said the customer."

Sensitive Man.

ANDREW CARNEGIE, complimented one day at his Scottish castle on his gifts to the cause of education, said to a young lady:

"There's nothing so pathetic as the self-made man who is conscious of his lack of education. These poor fellows seem to think that everybody is educated but themselves.

"Once, in a smart New York restaurant, I heard a man with a diamond horseshoe pin say hoarsely to a waiter:

"'Shove over that there chandelier.'

"'It isn't a chandelier, sir,' said the waiter, as he obeyed, 'it's a cruet.'

"'Well, never mind what she is,' shove her over,' he said. 'We ain't all been to college.'"

Suspicious.

SENATOR CHAMBERLAIN was talking about a war profiteer.

"I don't say the man's dishonest," he concluded, "but I do say he's got a very low moral standard.

"He was playing bridge in a Red Cross Tournament the other night. His partner, a bishop's wife, left the call to him, and he made it diamonds, but when he put his hand down, it was found to contain only two diamonds, both low cards.

"'What on earth induced you to go diamonds on such a hand as that?' the bishop's wife asked.

"'Didn't you twiddle your diamond ring, ma'am?' said the profiteer."

Getting Back.

ROBERT W. CHAMBERS, the novelist, was talking to a literary critic in Sherry's.

"I hear a jolly good one, my boy, about a member of your craft," Mr. Chambers said. "The chap had roasted a popular woman novelist, and he met her that night at a party.

"'I think it was awfully mean of you to roast me,' the novelist said to him, 'especially when you know that I have three children and a husband, who is a literary critic, to support.'"

Self-abnegation.

THERE had been a fire in a big block of flats, with heavy loss of property and many narrow escapes.

"Were there any acts of conspicuous heroism?" queried the reporter.

"Yes," said one of the victims. "With a self-abnegation never before witnessed in a case of this kind, sir, we all turned in and helped to carry out the piano that was on the second floor."

After the War.

SENATOR LODGE is a deep thinker. The other day he remarked that a great many inventions brought out by the war would be of inestimable benefit in times of peace. "Indeed, why wait for peace," he continued and explained by telling the following yarn:

"I understand Mrs. Gabson has left Mr. Gabson and gone home to her mother."

"Yes, a sad affair. She charges him with excessive cruelty."

"You surprise me. Gabson doesn't look like a man who would beat his wife."

"Oh, he didn't do anything of that sort. He got hold of a gas mask somewhere, and when Mrs. Gabson started one of her monologues he put it on."

QUEEN MARY sent a beautiful bouquet, that had been presented to her, to a soldiers' hospital. To show their appreciation, the inmates commissioned one of their number to stand at the hospital gate the following morning, holding the gift, when the Queen passed. He did so—with rather unexpected results.

Queen Mary, seated in her car, saw the soldier standing there, bouquet in hand, and assuming that he wished to present it to her, she reached out and took it. After she had thanked him her car passed on.

The soldier stood quite dumfounded—then recovering his speech, he said: "Well, she's pinched 'em."

Tuesday, 9 o'clock a.m. Still full of good cheer. Minus porridge!"

FATHER KELLY now an army chaplain tells the following on one of his flock of rookies.

"Pat was very forgetful, even on his wedding day. When going to his bride's church he happened to meet an old friend, and they began to talk about conscription. Suddenly he remembered he would be late, but rushing off to the telegraph office he sent the following wire to his intended:

"'Don't get married until I arrive.—Pat.'"

SAMUEL REA, ex-president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, told a railroad story at a dinner in Philadelphia:

"It's a very ill-managed road," he said. "Once on its Flying Bullet express a storm came up, and the express stopped for the night at Mugg's Siding.

"'Conductor,' said a traveler, 'we're going to be late.'

"'No, we hain't goin' to be late, nuther,' snarled the conductor.

"'But I thought we were going to tie up here all night?'

"'Well, so we are,' the conductor admitted, 'but that ain't goin' to make us late. We don't run so close to time as all that.'"

Poetry and Pretty Girls.

RICHARD LE GALLIENNE said in a recent lecture:

"Sincerity is the only thing that will give a poet success. Technical excellence, such as Swinburne's, counts for nothing with the public. The public doesn't understand it.

"The public is a good deal like a pretty girl I was talking to the other day on the beach.

"'Of course,' I said to her, 'you know what hexameters are, don't you?'

"'Sure?' she said. 'I guess I ought to. I've ridden in them often enough.'"

Quite Convenient.

THERE is going the rounds in Paris a characteristic story of M. Caillaux. The other Sunday afternoon he appeared for the last time before the committee of eleven charged with investigating his case. He had, as usual, staggered everyone with the absolute coolness with which he met all charges. But when he left the chamber, in the darkness, no cab was to be found.

"Le Diable," cried the Deputy, as he looked in vain for a friendly "fiacre." Then an idea struck him, and he approached a motor car containing detectives.

"Is it you who are shadowing me?" he questioned.

"Yes, monsieur."

"Very well, then; take me home," said M. Caillaux, as he entered the police car.

MANAGER SIBALD of the Alexandria tells this one at the expense of a certain army officer who came up from San Diego and roamed about the streets looking for a bank where he could cash a check. Finally he accosted a lively newsy, who volunteered to lead the officer to a money mart.

It took the lad less than five minutes to turn the trick but the officer gave him two bits for directing him to the bank, remarking "that's easy money for you, my son."

"Bank directors all get easy money," replied the youth.

BEN TURPIN, Mack Sennett's cross-eyed comedian, tells a funny yarn at his own expense. Seems he had approached two small boys and asked one to carry his grip to the station.

"Which one, mister," piped both urchins in chorus.

"You," said Ben.

"But which one?"

"You," patiently explained the funny man.

There was a pause. Then one of the small boys mustered up courage and said:

"Please, mister, if you'll close one eye, then maybe we can tell which of us you are talking to."

Never Would Do.

LLOYD GEORGE had been discussing woman's part in the war. "And wouldn't they make just as good soldiers as the men?" asked a member of the party.

"I'm afraid not," was the answer, and to the astonished "why," he continued:

"I'm going to let you in on a state secret. It happened in the War Office, where a huge roomful of young women are doing their part toward winning the war.

"Right in the middle of the afternoon, the calm was broken by a chorus of shrieks which brought every soldier and sailor in hearing on the run. They burst into the room, swords and revolvers ready for instant use.

"And what they saw was a distracting array of femininity, perched on chairs and tables, and one poor little mouse running aimlessly about.

"Now just supposing we had a woman's division and it was ordered to charge across No Man's Land, and Fritz turned loose a score of rodents—."

"He had been sent out to get a story, and when he came back, wrote out a brief account and turned it in to the editor. The latter read it over and called the young man to his desk, saying:

"I think it is," was the reply, "but I don't know what they'll think at the studio. Suppose you read it and decide for yourself."

ADVENTURES OF A HIGH BROW.

BY ONE WHO WAS CHASTENED.

This is the second and final installment of an article relating the actual experiences of a highly educated and cultured young woman who found that the world did not want to buy high brow general culture.

MY HUSBAND and I had saved enough money (by unbelievable economies) to take a somewhat elaborate European trip. I learned, upon my return, that every city contains thousands of people who yearn to see the glories of the Old World, but cannot do so. These really desire ardently to see pictures and hear experiences from those who are capable of being entertaining. When I gathered a few of these eager listeners about me, the news spread, and soon my "classes" contained several hundred regular "pupils" every week, and I had to divide them into small groups, for convenience. Even men, who had always spoken condescendingly of women's clubs, petitioned to join my classes, and lawyers and manufacturers (some who had university degrees; others who were self-made and wholly uneducated) listened appreciatively to the history of Ancient Rome, and descriptions of the modern city; and all the other narratives of Europe.

For two years, I earned regular and comfortable little sums by carrying on these classes. Stereopticon lectures on travel also proved attractive locally, and always drew large audiences.

It seemed as though I had reached the limit of my capacity, unless I would burst the shell of my environment, and this I scarcely had the temerity to do. Whether I ever should have been more than a woman who maintained a pleasant home, went out a little socially, contributed a few services to philanthropy and civic work, and "pieced out" her husband's income, and kept fresh intellectually, by a little lecturing and writing, I cannot say. Fate took matters out of my hands.

positions?
hb

My husband became very ill, which necessitated his ceasing work for a time, and our changing our environment My husband's education had been equally ornamental and cultural with my own, including such eminently practical and beneficial preparations for coping with the industrial world, as Hebrew and Homiletics!

Blind Newspaper Writer Who Wanted a Private Secretary.

WE DETERMINED not to be daunted by vain repinings, but to put our shoulders to the wheel.

Having no "pull," or even letters of introduction, and being in great haste to make enough money to live on, I began by answering advertisements. Scattering and futile as this is, it is not always useless. Once I went far out into a suburb to answer an "ad" requiring a private secretary. I found a blind man who picked up a meager living by doing a little newspaper writing. Of course, he was able to pay a "secretary" almost nothing.

Again (bearing in mind my superior education!) I applied for a position to "oversee" a corps of stenographers. The manager (I think it was a patent medicine concern) found me unsuited, because I had never been a stenographer, myself, nor had I worked up through efficiency to become the head of any department.

Finally, I got in touch with a Lyceum, which was beginning a course at a great auditorium. To my disappointment, the managers wanted "educated" people merely to sell tickets! As the series was very high-class, however, including twelve of the greatest musicians and lecturers in the world, and tickets were to be sold to selected lists of school teachers and clubwomen, I set my teeth and went to work. I was a complete stranger, and was compelled to call at people's homes where I was not expected; but the proposition itself was so thoroughly commendable, that I had few unpleasant experiences. Each morning when I started out, it seemed to me that I could not possibly approach the first house, but soon I got into the swing of the thing. I systematized the addresses—which was a complicated task, as I was totally unfamiliar with the streets and their relations to one another—and soon saved many miles by following a preconceived route. Usually, the women I met were gracious, and a good proportion bought season tickets, because they thus got quite a substantial reduction. I never stopped for lunch, as noon was the best time to find people at home. Some days my commission amounted to only $1 or 50 cents; one day I made $18!

Got a Regular Job at Last—Selling Tickets.

THE management were pleased, and believed that they had stumbled on to something superior to what is usually found in the unemployed who answer advertisements. They, therefore, offered a two-years' contract at a fairly decent salary. I promptly closed with them, for this position was not ticket-selling, but representing them in another city as manager of one of the biggest lecturers from Europe. The task was somewhat dull and lonely, as I was wholly unacquainted in the city, but I was thankful, for the first time in my life to be on a salary basis. My services at last were worth a definite sum to somebody! Some months later, the firm became involved financially, and was forced to break its contract.

By chance, the principal of a high school in a large eastern city, suddenly needed a teacher, and after passing an examination for a substitute's license, I was given the position for the season. This could not have been filled had I not held a university diploma; so that in this instance, it was of some technical value. Just as I was mastering the art, and really getting some pleasure out of imparting knowledge to adolescent human beings, I was put out of the position to make way for an inexperienced girl—the reason being that I was a married woman! The Board of Education in that city puts a premium on inexperience in the deeper problems of living, and will not allow its teachers to be wives or mothers!

Before I could take up the broken threads of my scattered activities, or recover from my disappointment, a friend recommended me to an editor and reformer, as a "clubwoman, writer and speaker." This man wanted just that combination—someone who was in touch with women's clubs, to organize an association which should be effective in a great crusade in which he was interested. His subject did not appeal to me as one which had ever been studied in my own life, but it was a worthy cause, and offered me fairly congenial occupation.

I plunged into the work of organization, and before many months had interested a great many women (and some men) throughout America, and had established a local branch with some 800 members. Here, again, I labored under a very heavy handicap, for I was almost a total stranger in that city. It is comparatively easy to get dozens of one's friends to join anything; but to approach and impress a stranger, is difficult and unpleasant.

Of course, I had to master an entirely new subject; but the more I studied and learned from the specialists who had given their life to all the ramifications of the work, the more interesting it became. I discovered, often with surprise, that I was accumulating a vast deal of useful and practical information. I wrote hundreds of little articles bearing upon various phases of the subject, and somehow, these found a ready market, because they were not my theories or soulful aspirations, but simple practical facts which everyone wanted to know about.

There were constant demands for me to speak before women's clubs, and I prepared some bright little addresses, which sugarcoated the reform measures, and made the lectures, not only practical, but enjoyable. As I was on a salary there was no charge for these lectures, and I became a familiar figure on stages and platforms; in magnificent city hotels; in exclusive women's clubrooms; in public lecture halls in civic centers. I was respected for my semi-philanthropic line of work, and as a person who is master of one subject. Various offices were thrust upon me, including the highest national one along my line; but I was and am absolutely modest and truthful in asserting that I cannot bear to hold office, and am never so happy as when writing on some congenial theme, shut away from the entire world.

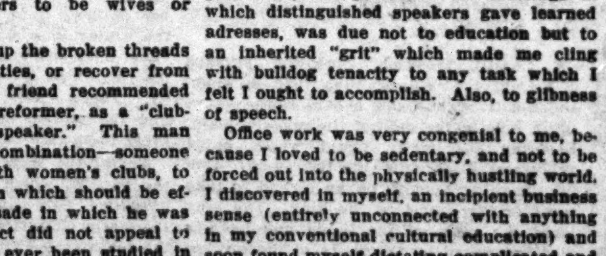
Noble "Cause" Did Not Spare Her Many Unpleasant Experiences.

BEFORE reputation and money and fairly congenial tasks became my portion, however, there were many very galling experiences.

In order to interest any considerable number of people in any new enterprise, one must force her way into the actual homes of strangers. No matter how noble her "cause," she must employ some of the methods of the obnoxious book agent. City people live in apartment-houses, zealously guarded by griffins, who manipulate the telephone switchboard, and bar the entrance of a visitor until a name is given. If that name does not strike a familiar chord in the heart of the recipient, far away in a remote upstairs room in the building, a word of dismissal is issued, and there is no possible way of giving your message. It requires tact, nay, craftiness, for a stranger to have herself ushered into the presence and get launched upon her subject.

Not a particle of my education fitted me especially for this task. What was required was a good address and pleasing personality, which any high school girl, or magnetic young woman above the illiterate class, might possess. That I eventually gathered around me some 800 people, who paid dues, and presided over meetings at which distinguished speakers gave learned adresses, was due not to education but to an inherited "grit" which made me cling with bulldog tenacity to any task which I felt I ought to accomplish. Also, to glibness of speech.

Office work was very congenial to me, because I loved to be sedentary, and not to be forced out into the physically hustling world. I discovered in myself, an incipient business sense (entirely unconnected with anything in my conventional cultural education) and soon found myself dictating complicated and shrewd business letters to stenographers, turning from one to the other, and keeping four busy at once. I was "speeded up" to the highest mental and nervous tension, until I felt like a legerdemain artist, who keeps four balls gyrating in the air at the same moment.



Sometimes in a big rainstorm or in winter, I was asked to go to some far-distant corner of the city to see some man, up four flights of stairs in a factory. The necessity of transacting that particular business at such an inopportune time, was not apparent to my mind, but I proudly withheld any refusal. Mine not to reason why, mine but to do and die, was a kind of infuriated motto with me.

Too Many Ladies Who Don't Know How to do Anything.

IT WAS even necessary to plunge into many commercial things, which, while often intensely uncongenial, doubtless afforded me valuable experience. I have had strange men who were at the head of great corporations say to me, with perfect courtesy and respect, "You are a crackerjack of a solicitor; if you are ever out of a job, come around and see us." It might be that their business was suburban real estate, or some other line entirely foreign to my activities, but I knew that they were sincere in praising my combination of qualities, which might make me a successful solicitor. I could not understand this ability, for my forebears always have been professional men, entirely apart from the realm of business. I realized that these business people looked upon me as a bright, energetic, young hustler, with perhaps an extra bit of refinement or dignity, but never for a moment placed me in the scholastic set of

ON THE TRAIL OF THE AZTEC INDIANS

BY MARCO POLO.

ALTHOUGH it joins us over rocks and cactus from El Paso to the western sea, across hundreds of sun-baked, wind-torn miles, few Americans know much of that vast wild region of Northwest Mexico—or of the score of Indian tribes who roam over it

The customs and habits of our own dwindling Indians we know fairly well; but the 4,000,000 Indians of Mexico are almost as unknown to us as are the far-away folks on Mars. The simple fact that in the republic of Mexico sixty-three languages and dialects are spoken, and that fifty-two of these are used by Indians with characteristics as widely different as those of the Choctaws and the Chinese, gives a faint idea of the diversity of races below the Rio Grande.

You would not suspect, for instance, that within 500 miles of Los Angeles, on a lonely, evil rock in the "Gulf of Cortez," there dwells the last living fragment of the American aborigines; or that over on the Sonora-Chihuahua highlands is found a tribe of hill people 25,000 strong whose very name ("Tarahumares") is unknown in the outside world—save to ethnologists and wandering prospectors.

Here, too, in the northwest of Mexico, the turbulent Yaqui holds sway; then there are the fair Mayas, remnants perhaps of a lost white race; the little-known Opotos, the degraded Seris and the strange, timid Coris of Nayarit or Tepic.

No country in the world as civilized and as thickly settled as the United States has such a horde of half-wild tribes living so near its borders. A day's ride from the Arizona frontier lands you in the heart of the Yaqui country—where settlers barricade their homes and carry guns with them to plow or chop wood, as did the American pioneers in the days of the Apaches and the Sioux.

Look at the map of Mexico's west coast and you will see why this is so. The country, considering the long time that has elapsed since the Spaniards first settled it, is strangely lacking in large cities or means of communication. One railway, and one only, splits this vast region from Nogales to Mazatlan. The big towns, few and far between, are all near the coast. Highways or good wagon roads as we know them do not exist; only rough mule trails here and there, winding for long, lonely miles, many of them originally made by wild cattle moving from one water-hole to another. The rich river valleys of the lowlands are of course fairly well settled by rich ranchers and sugar planters. But thousands of square miles of the mesas and foothills are almost uninhabited except here and there where, near a spring of water, some hardy cattle man has built his "dobe house" and corral of mesquite poles to save his colts and calves from hungry lions. In all its turbulent history, for example, no wheeled vehicle has ever traversed the 800-mile length of the peninsula of Baja California, and its population is less than one-third of a human per square mile!

A few explorers and scientists, like Carl Lumholz and Prof. Frederick Starr, have traveled and lived among the Indians who people the vast and almost empty areas of Northwest Mexico. Brave, hardy padres have come and gone, and for two generations grizzled Yankee prospectors with burro, rifle and pick have trekked over the lonely hills, leaving their bones to be scattered by coyotes and to whiten in unmarked and forgotten canyons. And here and there, even in the heart of the high "back country," Americans have opened mines and built ore-reduction works. Yet thousands of square miles are as wild and unknown as when Cortez came, having changed not one whit since the mysterious Toltecs tramped down this coast from somewhere in the north a thousand years ago. And hundreds of the primitive Indians in these remote, unmapped hills have never even seen a white man. They know nothing of the big world outside, of its races and its wonders. Some of them, like the Seris and the wild hill Coris of Nayarit, have perhaps never even heard of Christianity. Even the fearless padres who came with the Conquistadores gave these strange tribes a wide berth.

The Place Where Geronimo Fled from the Soldiers.

EVEN our own Apache was once a terror in these parts and for years the Mexican government paid $250 for every Apache scalp turned in. Geronimo himself was chased across the international border near Nogales by American cavalry and finally threw up his blood-stained hands near what is now the peaceful village of Santa Cruz. Gen. Miles and Crook, and even Leonard Wood—then a young army doctor—trekked over the picturesque hills of Sonora in quest of these fugitive devils from Arizona. And the records at Washington show that scores of Americans who freighted and mined in Sonora before the old Santa Fe was built from Guaymas to Nogales met death or had their homes and freight wagons burned by hostile Apaches. Then the Yaqui, first cousin of the American Apache, took up the hatchet against the foreigner; and for twenty years, or until the advent of the Sonora Governor, Gen. Luis Torres (who scattered the Yaquis and deported hundreds to Yucatan) the Sonora hills were unsafe for any traveler. A difficult phase of the Yaqui question was—and still is—that the war-path Yaqui of today may yesterday have been quietly working on your ranch or in your bean patch, or digging sewers or setting telephone poles up in Tucson. He is a good worker and a first-class fighting man, and changes from one to the other on the merest whim, and so adroitly that no man can say whether any particular Yaqui is really wild or tame.

Most conspicuous among the untamed people of the Northwest country are the Tarahumare Indians of Chihuahua. They overran the whole of that state at the time of the Spanish conquest. Their tribal name is derived from a queer game which they play, wherein they roll a giant ball. Both the men and the women participate with phenomenal endurance. Lumholz says the Tarahumare is the greatest runner in the world. It is claimed that one of these Indians has been known to travel 170 miles on foot without stopping for sleep; there is a tradition of an Indian messenger who made a trip from Guazapares to Chihuahua City and back, a distance of some 600 miles, in five days. During these feats of endurance the Indians subsist on pinole or parched corn and water. Many of these Indians have been tamed and are employed on Mexican cattle ranches. If new saddle horses are needed a group of these Indians is sent out to "walk down" the wild horses. Working in relays, and following the herd of wild horses hour after hour, they literally run the animals down after two or three days. By use of the same method they catch deer, following the deer for days through the rain or snow until the beast is exhausted and may be killed with arrows or stones.

A People That Are an Example to the World.

THE wilder elements of the tribe in the high Sierras are expert archers and make bows as much as seven feet long. The Mexicans say the women can run as fast and as far as the men, and that a sort of torchlight race is very popular among them. They much enjoy another sport wherein they run races, each of the runners kicking a ball in front of him. You see many of these Tarahumares around Chihuahua City, where messengers from the tribe go to do their trading. The pure bloods, unspoiled by contact with the outside world, are famous for truth and industry. They are a sturdy chocolate-brown race of medium size; both sexes wear their hair long and let it hang down. The men have no beards, as all the hair on the face is plucked out. Whiskers are obnoxious to these Indians, who say that the devil alone has a right to wear a beard. Chastity is a well-known characteristic, and to it is attributed their great physical endurance and long lives. The Indians live in the open and many are said to reach the age of a hundred or more. In the high country they think nothing of walking barefoot through several inches of snow; and yet one of their chief pleasures is to strip naked and lie in the scorching sun.

That region of the Sierra Madre where these Indians make their home is one of the most healthful in Mexico, and the few American sportsmen who have seen it declare it to be the original hunter's paradise. Wild turkey in flocks of from twenty-five to fifty are often met; there are bears, too, to say nothing of deer and antelope. The Indians hunt the latter by wrapping their bodies in an antelope skin and stalking these curious animals, as the American Sioux used to stalk the buffalo. They kill the rabbits with a boomerang, something like the one used by the Moquis of New Mexico.

In this same region, too, there dwells the biggest woodpecker in the world. "Campephilus Imperiales" the scientists call this giant bird, which ranges down the Sierra Madre as far as the State of Jalisco. The male bird sometimes measures two feet from the end of its pointed bill to the tip of its tail and sports a most gorgeous plumage. These strange birds go only in pairs and are so shy that they are seldom shot or trapped. They are looked on as a great delicacy by the Indians, and it is said that to get them, or their eggs, the bucks will work half a day cutting down a big tree. Mexicans say that a pair of these giant woodpeckers have been known to attack a large tree and so perforate it with holes that it will fall down. The Mexicans also claim that the feathers of this woodpecker are beneficial to health and that a man suffering from an earache can cure himself by tickling his own ear with this bird's feathers!

One Place it is no Shame for a Woman to Propose.

THE wild Tarahumares are very bashful; the men are even more shy than the women, and it is the latter who do the wooing and the proposing. The marriage ceremony is unbelievably simple. The tame bucks who come down to the Mexican towns or to Chihuahua City wear a blanket; but up in the hills the wilder ones go naked in summer or wear a gee string. The women wear short skirts and rope sandals and are very fond of glass beads. But they never look at themselves in the mirror, believing that it would bring bad luck. They make beads from the seeds of a plant known as "Job's tears." To these same beads the medicine men of the tribe attribute curative powers. These medicine men or priests also bandage their own heads tightly to keep their thoughts from escaping.

The legends and folk lore of the tribe indicate that the Tarahumares are a people of great antiquity. They indulge in odd fetish worship and believe that spirits live in stones. They attach magic powers to a cactus which they call "hikuli;" it is a sort of "live-forever" and will remain green for several months after being pulled up. The Indians eat it, and a condition of mental ecstacy follows.

Indian boys hauling water.

The wild members of the tribe up in the Sierras seldom build houses, but live mostly in caves or beneath overhanging cliffs. They divide these caverns into rooms by building stone or mud walls and often close the entrances as a protection against storms or wild animals. In places they have also built porches or artificial terraces in front of these caves, which extend out forty or fifty feet and are a hundred feet long.

This Indian makes a crude pottery not unlike that found in the old cliff dwellings of Arizona. His only wealth is cattle and goats. A buck with three cows and a dozen goats is called rich. They grow corn, and in lean years turn happily to a diet of birds and skunks, with mice and gophers. They also hunt wild mushrooms or truffles; to locate this delicacy, which tastes like a blend of pears and onions, the Indians employ the services of a pet pig or dog which is trained to locate the truffle through the sense of smell. The coyotes and the bears of the Sierra Madre also hunt this truffle. In all their dances and celebrations they drink an intoxicating beer called "tesvino."

A superstition, strangely like that of the Tagalogs, is current among these Indians; that is, that when a man is asleep his soul is absent from his body; and a sleeper should never be awakened suddenly lest he lose his soul. They wear their finger and toe nails very long, as the Chinese do, believing that to cut them short might produce blindness. They will not eat the meat from the spinal column of an animal lest their own backs should become swayed, and backache follow. They punish immorality by switching the culprit in public on the bare skin, and wild animals are supposed to be able to change their form.

The Indians Are Not Tempted by Gems Nor Gold.

ALTHOUGH Sonora is the richest mineral region in the world, and although the gulf waters around La Paz have long been famous for their yield of big pearls, the Indians of the west coast are strangely indifferent to these riches. If a foreigner strikes a rich vein and opens a mine, the Indians will come and work by the day for wages. They will hire out in the same way to the pearl fishers of La Paz, but they seem indisposed to prospect the hills or to fish for pearls on their own account. The mountain streams of Sinaloa are famous for their placer gold, and any husky Indian might make an easy living working one or two days a week. But they do not. Tradition tells that when the Spaniards landed at what is now La Paz, they met an Indian there on the beach who had a perfect pearl as big as a pigeon's egg—and that he traded it to the Spaniards for a mere trifle. In the Planchas de Plata Canyon of Sonora two Papago bucks once came upon a solid nugget of silver weighing several hundred pounds. They turned it over to a priest. The nugget was so big that the priest had to build a platform and swing it between two stout mules to carry the nugget out of the country. When I was on the Island of Tiburon I tried to separate a Seri buck from his bow and arrow. He spurned the coins I offered, but grabbed with alacrity at a handful of cheap guilt buttons cut from the coat of a petty officer from our ship.

Down in the rank, jungle-choked wilds of Tepic (or Nayarit as the Carranza government has named it,) there roam the strange Cori and Huichole tribes. "Vishalikas" or healers, the Mexicans call these Huicholes, of whom there are some 4000. Their home is a vast, isolated barranca in the Sierra de Nayarit, of which a priest once said: "It is so wild and frightful to behold that its ruggedness, even more than the arrows of its warlike inhabitants, took away the courage of the conquerors, because not only the ridges appear inaccessible, but the towering mountain peaks confuse even the eye."

These little-known Huicholes are the same color as the Tarahumares. They are short of stature, singularly healthy and attain to an incredible age. They are quick-witted, tricky, and not overcourageous. Some of them bear such strong facial resemblance to the Chinese that the Mexicans call them "Chinos." Every man is called the son of some god, and every girl is a goddess. An odd trait of the Huichole babies is that they never crawl or put their knees on the ground, as a white baby does, but walk on all fours like a young monkey.

Like the Seris they use bows and arrows, and strike fire with flint and steel. Marriage is arranged by parents, and morals are slack. The men are effeminate in taste, trimming their hats with flowers. The women are handsome, wearing knee skirts which they weave on a hand loom, in elaborate patterns. They are fond of personal adornment, and make clumsy earrings of enormous size and wear necklaces of blue and white beads, men and women alike.

The Huichole house is built of stone, circular and thatch-covered, and in shape looks like an Eskimo igloo. These Indians worship idols, which they keep hidden in sacred caves in the hills, but in each village is a "godhouse" in which certain small idols and symbolic articles of worship are found.

They make reed flutes, with ornaments resembling a rattlesnake's rattles, and their tribal drum is a hollow log set on three legs, one end covered with a wild cat or deer hide. The priests beat the drum, and it is used only in worship.

Here Again is Found the Story of the Flood.

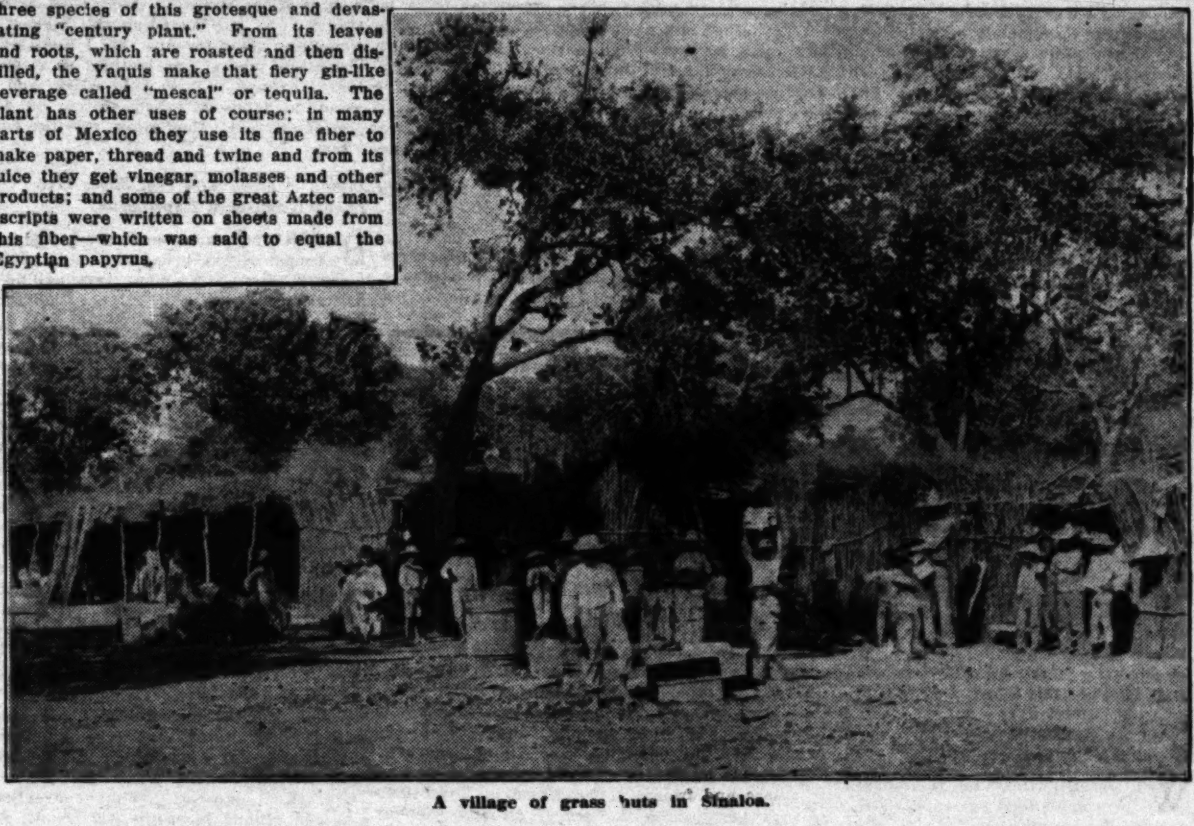
NEAR these Huicholes live the fast-vanishing Cori tribe, of whom there are perhaps not over 2500. Although they resemble the Huicholes, in speech, religion and habits the Cori hate the Huicholes, and call them "Hashi" or crocodiles. Near one of the Cori pueblos is a deep volcano lake, which the Coris say is a remnant of the "large flood," of which they have a tradition. To an American the Cori looks like a Corean, the men wearing sparse "goatees" and having the docile, meditative aspect of the men of the Seoul. It is difficult to believe that they really are Indians, since they differ so greatly in physical appearance from other tribes of the west coast.

Girls marry at 15, but age late in life. They are expert weavers and delight in gay dress. The friars have established missions on the edge of the Cori country, and the Indians are devout Christians — until they get off in the hills. There they return to their tutelary gods and secret shrines. Their high divinity is the Morning Star, which they call "Chulavete." Both the Coris and the Huicholes worship the setting sun, and far up in the Sierra de Nayarit, overlooking the Cori pueblos, is a huge idol of the setting sun, "looking toward Mexico." Their dead they bury in caves.

The young men weave fish nets of cotton thread and catch crayfish from the streams by crawling along under water, pushing this net ahead of them.

Of all the Indians of Northwest Mexico we Americans have of course heard most of the fierce, untamed Yaqui. He deserves his bad name—and, like the Apache, he can never live it down. The truth is, however, that the Seris, the Coris and other tribes might bear an equally bad name if foreigners came in contact with them as they have with the Yaquis. It so happens that the Yaqui is the only Mexican wild man through whose hereditary estate white men have chosen to push a railroad. And it is on rich farm lands claimed by Yaquis that Mexicans and foreigners have seen fit to settle and plant crops. This encroachment has brought the same conflict which developed in Arizona between the whites and Apaches and it can be settled only in the same way—either by the reservation plan or by a fight to the finish.

The Yaqui, too, is under the accursed spell of the maguey plant, that evil cactus that has blighted so much of Mexico since the days of the Aztecs. The American aloe or pulque is the best known of the thirty-three species of this grotesque and devastating "century plant." From its leaves and roots, which are roasted and then distilled, the Yaquis make that fiery gin-like beverage called "mescal" or tequila. The plant has other uses of course; in many parts of Mexico they use its fine fiber to make paper, thread and twine and from its juice they get vinegar, molasses and other products; and some of the great Aztec manuscripts were written on sheets made from this fiber—which was said to equal the Egyptian papyrus.



A village of grass huts in Sinaloa.

How the Spell of Mescal Was First Woven.

A YAQUI tradition, borrowed perhaps from the Aztecs, says that in olden times a tribesman saw a field mouse gnawing a hole in the bulb of the maguey plant. Securing the curdy liquid which oozed therefrom, Papantzin (the tribesman) sent his daughter Xochitil on an errand to take some of this liquid to the king. The king liked the taste of the liquid and he was also impressed by the looks of the girl, so he espoused her immediately. From their union a child was born called Mecontzin, or "Child of the Maguey." And the Toltecs date their own downfall from that event. In commemoration of this legend many of the small cages in Mexico where pulque was once sold used to call themselves "La Hermosa Xochitil." By government decrees the Yaquis and other people of Sonora are now prohibited from manufacturing pulque or mescal, but the moonshine variety can still be had.

All these Indians raise little patches of corn—and have done so through endless generations. Even when Columbus came corn grew from Pennsylvania to Chile, and the Indians in Cuba and Haiti were using it. Tucked away among the rich plunder of gold and gems and strange copper-colored captives that Columbus took back and laid at the feet of Isabella were several ears of this same wonderful grain. It was the great staple of Montezuma's court, and when Cortez tramped up this Mexican west coast he found it growing everywhere.

The Indians to the south enjoy an odd delicacy which looks to us like caviar. It is made from marsh flies and they call it "axayacatl." Thomas Gage, an Englishman who had turned monk and who traveled in Mexico long ago, says of this odd food: "The Indians gathered much of these flies and made cakes thereof like unto brickbats—and they did eat this with a good stomach as we eat cheese; yea, and they hold opinion that this fatness of flies on the water is the cause that such great number of fowl cometh to the lake which in the winter season is infinite." These cakes "like unto brickbats" are made from the insects, which are about the size of a house fly. These small bugs look like fish roe, and the Indians mix them with eggs and press them into cakes.

Among the Maya Indians a choice fruit is the papaya, which is kin to the American pawpaw. This same papaya also grows in the warm countries of the Far East and in the south seas. The wild pig, or peccary, of this west coast are also fond of the papaya—and the Maya is fond of the peccary. So when this Indian is hungry for fresh pork he takes his gun and a bag of stones and climbs one of the larger papaya trees—when he knows wild pigs are lurking in that vicinity and waiting for the ripe fruit to fall. He then deftly drops a stone. The pig, hearing the noise, thinks a ripe papaya has fallen and rushes out to grab the fruit only to be shot down by the waiting Indian.

But among all the Indians of the northwest of Mexico the degraded Seri or Tiburon Island stands lowest in the scale of humanity. Some ethnologists say that he is lower even than the Bushman of Australia. I visited his island myself not long ago—and his plight is indeed a sorry one. On the whole of this almost barren, twenty-five-mile, long, high, dry, rocky isle I counted less than fifty people. Their only shelter was made from piles of mesquite and paloverde brush, on the leeward side of which men, women and children and dogs were huddled together to escape the driving sand and chill wind of winter. Their only clothing was deer skins, blankets made of pelican skins or old coats and jute bags given to them by stray fishermen. In the whole tribe were half a dozen useless old rifles, a few turtle spears and bows and arrows. Their only utensils were a few clay pots or ollas, made by the women. The women's faces were hideously painted with bird guano and the blue juice of a wild berry. Their shrill speech—which is not akin to that of any other Indian—was like the whining yaps of coyote puppies. Only the old chief spoke a few words of Spanish. He told me they lived on fish, turtles and deer meat. While I was there the bucks brought in a deer. They ate its entrails raw.

Such is a brief sketch of some of the tribes who live so near our southern border—and yet who are so far from us. Some of them have guns—have had their pictures taken—and are shrewd enough to beg the traveler for tobacco and trousers. But at heart they have changed but little since Cortez and the roving Spaniards first saw them in their quest of El Dorado.

Uncle Sam Mobilizing the Mines

and these belong to the International Nickel Company, whose headquarters is at New York City, with refining works in New Jersey, not far away. I visited the mines some years ago. They have already taken more nickel out of them than would make a solid block as big as the national Capitol at Washington, and the deposits seem to be practically inexhaustible. The ore that looks much like iron; it is a combination of nickel, copper, sulphur and iron. It is mined like iron, and smelted into the matter which is sent to New Jersey. The smelting gives forth an enormous amount of brimstone fumes and the men employed have to wear gas masks or rubber nose caps to withstand the burning sulphur.

When the war with Germany began, Great Britain prohibited the export of nickel except to the British possessions, but Canada had then no refining plant of its own, and a special license was given to the International Nickel Company to send the metal into the United States, provided it was not sold to the Germans. We have practically no nickel deposits, and the Bureau of Mines suggests that the government ought to accumulate a reserve supply of something like 40,000,000 pounds, and keep that for emergencies.

Nickel is of great importance as an alloy of steel and it seems to be essential to making the armor plate for our battleships. A war vessel plated with ordinary steel would be shattered to pieces if it were struck with one of the great modern shells, whereas, if it were plated with nickel steel the projectile would make only a dent or at best a clean hole, leaving the plate unshattered. Some of the dreadnaughts of today have armor plate of nickel steel about eighteen inches thick. The metal is also employed in bridge building. It does not expand or contract like common steel, and for that reason it is used in measuring and gauging instruments and in pendulums for clocks which in order to keep the right time must not change in length by expansion or contraction.

Bismuth Used for Surgicaal Dressing has Gone Sky High.

CADMIUM, a metal used by the Germans for glass coloring and also for certain secret war purposes, formerly came only from Germany. It is now being produced in the United States, and we are shipping

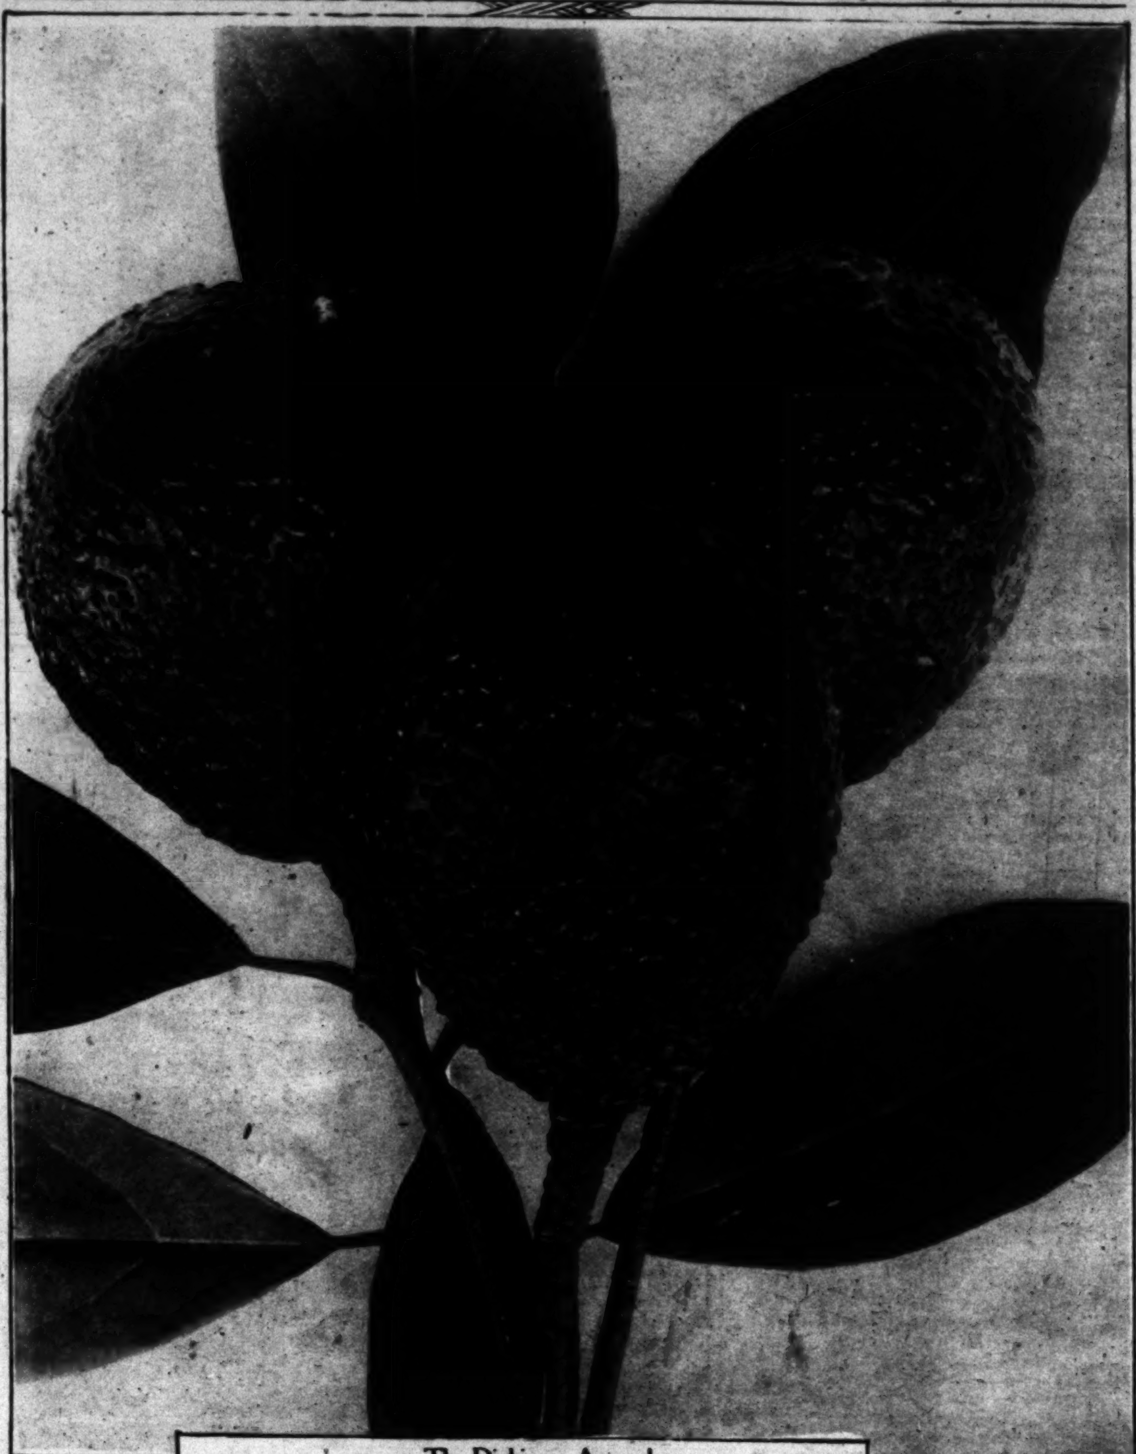
"All aboard for the tractor show!"

The Garden Beautiful in Southern California.

INFORMATION BOTH PRACTICAL AND SCIENTIFIC. BY ERNEST BRAUNTON.



The Dickinson Avocado.

TOWNSPEOPLE are taking more note of avocados than they have in the past. More and more each year they are coming to regard them as food for every day and also as "food fit for the gods." Constant demands are made on this department as to what is the best named sort for the home garden; for two or three of the best; or for four trees that will each supply a full quarter of the year so that fruit may be plucked in the home garden any and all months.

Correspondents in many sections of the South have now grown several sorts for several years and many are disappointed. They wish some one to tell them, without fear or favor, what sorts have proven best under any and all conditions. One of the main difficulties has been that young trees have been killed or injured by frost and demand is made for a tree that is hardy in its early days, for all trees are hardier when of good size. Some named varieties have not fruited sufficiently, nor have they met the claims made for them. Nearly all the early named varieties have given way to better ones and this process of elimination is still going on and may for years to come, or for all time. But there are on sale, very generally at present, avocados good enough in all ways to satisfy the most severe critic. Let us plant them freely, in every garden.

After visiting many orchards and gardens where they are fruiting and discussing their relative merits with several acknowledged experts, we are firmly of the belief that the Fuerte is the one best for all localities and conditions. It is believed to be the hardiest of all good sorts, is a good sure cropper over all of Southern California and of fine flavor and texture, as well as high in percentage of oil. We shall have more to say of this variety later and also hope to show a good illustration of it. Beginning with the present for a year's programme of ripe fruit, the best three sorts now coming into market are Sharpless, Taft and Northup, the two first are of good size and thick-shelled, while the Northrup is a thin-skinned or smooth-skinned variety and is one of the best of its class. The Sharpless is one of the finest in appearance of any we know and as a market fruit will sell on sight more quickly, perhaps, than any other. It is also desirable in every way. As a budded tree it has not yet been fruited generally enough to be absolutely sure of good crops everywhere, but up to the present it has "made good" and we have no cause to doubt its value or its rank as a leader in the "best sellers." The Taft has of late proved a little disappointing as a cropper, though the fruit is of high grade. In some parts it bears a good crop; in others it varies much from year to year. It is still a good standard sort and at present is being generally planted. Though they vary as to season, from year to year, the Northrup, Sharpless, and Taft generally ripen now and for several weeks to come, often remaining on the trees until the close of the year. A splendid variety of nearly the same season but a little later as a rule, is the Pueblo, a most excellent fruit in all ways. Then comes the incomparable Fuerte, which fruits from January to April, inclusive. From April to June the Blakeman is a most excellent sort. In July and ranging to September we have the Dickinson, Lyon and Spinks, of which the first is no doubt the best, all points considered; though both the others are in the high-class list. The Lyon is a trifle less sure as a cropper and the Spinks a little less in oil content but yet so good in all other ways that it will continue as a standard sort for present and future planting. As this data was secured after many visits to the trees named, talks with our best growers, coupled with the writers thirty years' experience with avocados in the local field, no other varieties will be named. From the list given four trees may be selected, that when of good size, will yield ripe fruits every month in the year.

Better Castor Beans.

The well-known castor bean plant has for years been used in all countries as one of ornamental value and except in isolated sections has not been seriously regarded as of great commercial value. Now that castor oil has become of immense importance (ugh!) the attention of plant breeders has directed to improved varieties having as marked characteristics greater bearing capacity and higher per cent. of oil in the beans. The large beans are called the Zanzibar type and the smaller ones the Bombay type. The million bushels imported each year come almost entirely from India; a few only from Mexico and South America; occasionally also a Chinese shipment. Both sexes of flowers are found on each plant, the females at the end or top of the spike and the males below or at base of the flower spike. The plants are now grown commercially as far north as Iowa. The flowers are excellent for honey bees and this ensures perfect pollenation. For that reason they may be planted on waste land near apiaries and the better types selected for perpetuation by seeds. As they breed fairly true, the best local type for selection is that having the densest flower spikes. Those of loose form do not yield so heavily.

The Horse Nettle.

Southern California has a large species of plant, Urtica holosericea, which is known as the horse nettle. Its sting is painful. "How do they do it!" The plant is covered with fine hairs having very sensitive points and filled with an albuminoid liquid under pressure from the root system. The slightest touch breaks the delicate point, it pierces the skin but delicately like a tiny hypodermic needle. The juice in the hollow hair is injected and an intense burning results. Of what use this property or possession is to the plant scientists have been unable to determine.

Protective Coloration in Plants.

In some South American varieties of corn or maize the kernels are oddly mottled and speckled, though a few are self-colored or single-colored. This corn is much troubled with the larva or worm of a moth. It was found that infested "selfs" were common while the mottled kernels were far less affected or infested. It was found that kernels already infested take on a somewhat mottled appearance and this fact has protected those naturally mottled or spotted. The latter are passed by in the belief that they are alre[illegible]habited, for few seed grains are infested with two larvas. Numerous animals and insects have a natural camouflage but in plant life the examples are very few.

Plant Improvement.

Improvement in ornamental plants is so noticeable to the casual observer that statistics are unnecessary. But in plants of purely economic value some account of their behavior is necessary to record progress. In England a new barley known as "Plumage" was introduced a few years ago, a decided improvement on the older varieties. At the close of 1916 the British Board of Agriculture estimated that this variety had added $1,250,000 to the value of the English barley crop, and no doubt will [illegible] equally valuable in some other countries.

Girdling Induces Fruitfulness.

Experiments are under way by local growers to note the [illegible]fect of girdling on the crop of certain avocados that are known as "shy bearers." Two or three large-sized branches have been completely girdled, an eighth of an inch of bark and inner bark being removed. The remainder of the tree is left untreated. The present is the first year's experiments but it appears at present that the girdled branches bear much the heavier crops. Reports on results will be made when crops are ripe. Girdling has long been practiced with other plants and has been found of special value in the fruiting of certain named sort of grapes, a quarter-inch ring of bark being removed at blossoming time. Local experiments are being made in Fresno vineyards.

A Glorious New Coral Tree.

From Darjeeling, India, seeds of a new coral tree, Erythina arborescens, has reached Los Angeles. Excepting only the well-known Poinciana regia of warmer climes, it is said to be the most gorgeous, when in flower, of all trees. The plants are sufficiently hardy in local territory and some are now ten feet high. The writer is anxiously watching these to see if they qualify up to their established reputation gained in far away India, their native land. If so we shall 'holler agin';" if not, silence puts a "kibosh" on their further distribution. At present we are reminded of William Cullen Bryant's comment on a book: "The binding is superb," for the foliage is handsome.

The Old, Forgotten Crop the War Brought Back.

For the Air Fleet.

BY VERNE DYSON.

WHEN the need of ships for the transportation of food and war materials placed an embargo on the shipment of castor beans from India, leaving the United States without satisfactory lubricant for flying machines, the War Department asked for an emergency crop of 100,000 acres in this country. Steps were at once taken to bring about the necessary planting and then it was discovered that there was a dearth of information about this old industry. In the crisis early records of castor bean growing in Los Angeles and Marysville, Cal., supplied valuable data to the government experts in Washington.

Planting directions and former prices were obtained from a reference to castor beans in the Los Angeles district in "The New West or California in 1867-1868" by Charles Loring Brace:

"Among the strange variety of vegetables in this favored region," wrote Mr. Brace, "is the castor bean. The beans are planted two or three in a hill, and then thinned out, leaving one healthy plant to the hill. They require no more work than corn, and will yield often thirty to forty bushels to the acre. Fifteen hundred pounds to the acre is not uncommon, which is equal to seventy-five gallons of oil, worth at $2.50 per gallon, some $187—a good return per acre. This plant grows well, also, in the north of California."

Close-up of a cluster of ripe castor beans.

In the Pharmaceutical Journal and Transactions for May 20, 1871, appeared an article quoting the Druggists' Circular and Chemical Gazette, which in turn reproduced an article from the Marysville (Cal.) Appeal, describing the local "castor oil manufacture" of Dr. M. Daniel:

"Being a novice in the preparation and pressing of the castor bean, and the process employed to produce pure oil, we were surprised at the simplicity of the machinery and everything connected with the modus operandi. The beans are first subjected to a dry heat of an hour or so in a furnace. This softens them and brings them to the peculiar state required in expeditious pressing. They are then taken out and placed in a screw-press, run by horse power, and capable of pressing between eighty and 100 gallons of oil per day. From the press the oil is conveyed into a vessel, and from thence into a large iron tank or boiler. In this is placed sixty gallons of oil and the same amount of water, the latter serving to cleanse the oil of all impurities. The oil is then boiled about an hour, and kept standing until the next morning, when the water is drawn off and the oil transferred to the clarifiers, which are composed of zinc, and capable of holding from sixty to 100 gallons each. After standing about eight hours in the sun, it is taken out and put into cans, and is ready for the market. Beans of a superior quality are worth about $90 a ton, and 100 pounds are supposed to produce five gallons."

ON THE WRONG TRACK.

Early in the hurried quest for information about castor beans, a misleading statement about the industry in California in a standard encyclopedia caused loss of time and annoyance to Dr. W. W. Stockberger of the United States Department of Agriculture, who was pursuing the castor bean investigation. He read in the encyclopedia:

"A considerable quantity of castor oil of an excellent quality is also made in Italy; and in California the manufacture is conducted on an extensive scale."

"Aha!" thought the doctor. "California will be able to supply just the practical information that we very much need in this emergency."

Late books on California in the Library of Congress were consulted, but not a word about the "extensive" castor oil industry. This was puzzling to the expert. Then inquiries were sent direct to officials on the Coast, and the disappointing discovery was made that California at the present time has no castor oil industry at all.

"I was curious to know how such an absurd mistake could occur in a reputable reference work," Dr. Stockberger declared recently in Washington, "and I assigned an assistant to run it down. He discovered that the article on California in the encyclopedia was written some forty years ago and had been used verbatim in all subsequent editions."

Dr. Stockberger believes that the article in the Marysville Appeal was the basis of the perpetual article in the encyclopedia. Although the government census for 1850 mentioned twenty-three castor oil mills in the Middle West and South, the encyclopedia refers only to the industry in California.

Castor beans were the forerunners of lima beans in Santa Barbara and other California coast counties. Old residents recall a castor bean field of 150 acres near Santa Barbara and for several years the crop was grown by many in the southern part of the State.

THE OIL INDUSTRY.

The other day in Kansas City, Charles Marsh related how his father, the late William N. Marsh, established a castor oil mill in the Missouri city in 1875, patterned after the quaint Marysville institution. The Missouri mill grew to proportions and when the castor bean industry was at its height handled 500,000 bushels of beans in one year.

The Marsh family of Kansas City is the connecting link between the old castor bean industry and its present revival under government inspiration. When American farmers quit raising the beans and the supply came from India, the Marsh interests acquired the Baker Castor Oil Company at Jersey City, N. J., which has been called the "castor oil trust" in late years. F. C. Marsh, a brother of Charles W. Marsh and a son of the pioneer castor oil dealer of Kansas City, is president of the wealthy Jersey City corporation.

When England decided to quit using ships to transport castor beans from India, there was a shipload of the seed on the Pacific Ocean consigned to the Baker concern. For a time England threatened to recall the cargo, but with the assistance of the oil company and diplomatic pressure from Washington, the cargo was acquired, on condition that it be used in planting a war crop in the United States. England by this time was needing India's supply for her own airplanes.

Besides the Baker plant, there are only two other mills in the United States that manufacture castor oil for the trade. They are at Buffalo, N. Y., and Cleveland, O. There is a mill in Grand Rapids, Mich., and small mills at several other places, operated in conjunction with manufacturing plants where the oil is used in large quantities.

The sudden and unexpected demands of the government for castor oil has called attention to the remarkable versatility of this substance of the bean. Aside from its time-honored place of importance in the family medicine chest and its parexcellence as a lubricant for delicate and fast moving machinery, we now have it impressed upon us that castor oil gives stickiness to sticky fly paper, brilliancy to Turkey red, transparency to soap, gloss to imitation leather; also, that it kills moles and mole crickets. In China it is used as cooking grease! In India it serves as an illuminant, and jumping back a few thousend years we see the Pharaohs of ancient Egypt using the leaves of the plant to keep mosquitoes away.

Naturally they grow larger in California than anywhere else. This castor bean plant was photographed near San Gabriel.

VARIETIES PLANTED.

The castor bean seed distributed to planters by the government belongs to the non-popper variety (Ricinus communis) and is expected to yield approximately 50 per cent. of oil. The popper variety, formerly grown in California and the Middle West, was difficult to harvest and made necessary a certain type of "bean yard."

For a number of years the "bean yard" was a picturesque adjunct to many Missouri and Kansas farms. The extreme activity of the beans made a restraining wall around the yard necessary. When the beans were ripe they would explode from the pods with considerable violence and, if not restrained, would scatter over the ground and be lost. Sod was used principally to make the walls around bean yards in Kansas. Boards, burlap, stones and other material was used in inclosing the bean yards in Missouri and other castor bean producing States.

The castor bean industry in the United States reached its height about 1879, in which year Kansas alone produced 766,148 bushels, an amount equal to three-fourths of the demand of the entire United States in the years immediately preceding the European War. About 1887, castor bean growers in California and the Middle West begun to turn their attention to other crops. In 1899 only 150,000 bushels were produced in the country, and after 1904 the output was less than 100,000 bushels.

The dependence of the United States upon India for castor beans caused a critical situation in the American war programme when the necessity for this airplant lubricant arose. Just at the time double supply of the seeds was needed to make lubricating oil, the foreign supply stopped.

Last January the War Department appealed to growers in Southern States to plant lubricant arose. Just at the time peculiar climatic fitness and her great extent of uncultivated land, was requested to plant 40,000 acres. Six other States, including California, were assigned to plant approximately 10,000 acres each.

THE PRICES ALLOWED.

The government has contracted to buy the entire crop at $3.50 a bushel, f.o.b. the nearest railway station. The contractor in every State but California gets 50 cents a bushel for the beans obtained under his supervision and the grower $3 a bushel. In California most of the growers are signed up with the California Castor Bean Association, which takes 10 per cent. of the government figure, leaving the farmer at the minimum $3.15 a bushel.

So unimportant was the castor bean crop of late years that there was not a castor bean threshing machine on the market. Government experts, in conjunction with contractors and some of the large growers, are now making experiments to perfect a satisfactory huller. The government has announced that the threshing machines would be ready by the time that the beans are ripe for harvest.

Fred Boruff of San Fernando was named as the government castor bean contractor for California in the first list made public in Washington. Later the canvass on the Coast was largely taken over by the California Castor Bean Association of Santa Barbara, of which Henry S. Gane is the head. Capt. H. L. Sealpe, Signal Corps, U.S.A., was sent to California by the War Department to hurry along the planting, and met with success, 12,000 acres having been signed up when he departed.

A large part of the State's allotment of castor beans will be grown in the Imperial Valley, where one man, George H. Reed of Calipatria, is devoting 1000 acres to the planting. A project to establish an oil mill is now under way in Los Angeles.

Southern California farmers are greatly interested in the outcome of the castor bean planting in this section. More will be known about this war crop when the figures for actual yields and the cultural experiences of growers are available and information has so far been the principal thing lacking for those who have considered undertaking castor bean planting.

The cradle of the old and one-time extensive castor bean industry of the Middle West, a castor oil mill in Kansas City, the first units of which were built by William N. Marsh in the early '70's, and which is still in the hands of his family.

The War and American Poultry—A Plea for Utility.

BY STANLEY S. FOOTE.

New Standards.

THE Food Administration and the Department of Agriculture have been urging that we increase the national production of poultry and eggs. This food can be more conveniently used at home, and thus more beef, pork and mutton which are better for shipping, can be released for our Allies and our armies abroad.

In what way can the average city dweller and the average farmer best contribute to a total increased output of poultry and eggs? While we must maintain our specialty egg farms, I believe that the general purpose fowl will best answer our present need. We must now have a hen that will lay from 150 to 200 eggs per year, and when past profitable laying, furnish a six or seven pound choice carcass. Such fowls are the American breeds (the name now having taken on an added significance,) the Plymouth Rocks, Wyandottes and Rhode Island Reds. The Orpington family are also good producers of both meat and eggs.

We are all familiar with the "fine eating" the above breeds furnish, also with their natural beauty. Let us review briefly their performance for the egg basket. Last year at the International Egg Laying Contest, Storrs (Ct.,) 1000 hens of nine different breeds or varieties were in official competition. A pen of ten Barred Plymouth Rocks won the year's contest by producing 2119 eggs, a hen from this pen winning highest individual honors with a record of 277 eggs. Nine pens of Barred Rocks, ninety hens, produced an average of 169.2 eggs per hen, the highest average of all breeds competing. A pen of Rhode Island Reds won the first National Egg Laying Contest, Mountain Grove, Mo., with an average of 208 eggs per hen. In the same contest individual honors went to a White Plymouth Rock hen, in her second laying year, which made the remarkable record of 281 eggs. Last year at the end of the sixth annual contest, a pen of White Wyandottes had set a new world's record of 1226 eggs, or an average of 245.2 per hen. In the far away Australian egg laying contests, the Black Orpington last year made history and set up some fine records for this breed.

We should bear in mind also that these breeds of poultry are the best winter layers. Their size, quantity of body heat and thick coat of feathers make it possible for them to produce eggs when eggs are most scarce and highest in price.

WEED OUT SLACKERS.

Reports of the United States Department of Agriculture indicate that the average hen in this country produces from seventy-five to 100 eggs per year. Such hens are indeed slackers and it is for us, whether we be farmers or city dwellers, to replace the slacker hen with one of high productivity, a thoroughbred, or rather, standard-bred, hen that is not only a "good looker" but also a "good actor."

These hens require relatively little more food and no more care than does the slacker. Merely to test the hardiness of one of my Barred Rock hens and to see how she would produce under very adverse conditions I let her roost all year in a tree. She stood the weather splendidly and during the worst of it, laid an average of five eggs per week. She continued right along through spring, summer, and well into the fall, completing a ten months' laying period with 208 good sound eggs to her credit. Where is the "scrub" hen that can duplicate the above record?

Our country is now being called upon to be 100 per cent. efficient. Poultry is not exempt. How can you make your flock more efficient? How can you realize more from chickens? As quickly as possible replace your scrubs and your non-productive "thoroughbreds" (of which there are all too many) with standard-bred birds of a proven productive strain from your favorite breed. Stop at once wasting costly feed and good attention upon birds that will yield little in return. Do not be deceived because your hens lay well in spring and early summer. Wild birds do that. Begin now to weed out the drones and slackers. The good layer has a long laying season. She doesn't drop off and molt in July. The July "molter" will probably molt a second time before December. The good layer lays along through July, August and even into September, taking her molt in the fall, not in the summer. On the other hand, the productive hens should begin now to show some evidence of having been "at work" during the past months. Their plumage is not so bright and even as it was; their legs are not so yellow; they are not burdened with fat: good layers never are.

It is undoubtedly true that if every back-yard flock of hens consisted of real producers, the city housewife's egg problem would be solved: and if every unprofitable farm flock were either replaced with good birds or rapidly bred up for increased production, the nation's egg problem would be solved. In six years of selective breeding Prof. James Dryden of the Oregon Agricultural College converted a flock of hens that averaged 84.7 eggs per year per hen into a flock that averaged 176.5 eggs.

What the American poultryman needs to realize is that the "scrub" hen has no right to exist. Just as the mongrel range cattle that formerly roamed our pastures have given way to Hereford, Shorthorn and Polled Angus stock, and just as the long-nosed "razor-backs" have yielded to the standard breeds of hogs, so must the scrub hen give up her place to the pure-bred hen, preferably from one of the American breeds.

The Holstein cow is of value according as she produces a large amount of milk and butter. The Poland China hog must produce a great quantity of lard and meat. The Percheron horse must be able to draw heavy loads. At the same time no one denies that the Holstein, the Poland China and the Percheron are delights to the eye. They are indeed works of art. So likewise, let us strive to produce not only fancy, show-winning birds, conforming exactly to the standard, but birds which in addition have great laying capacity. And if that is not possible let the standard be changed. Let the ideal of productiveness, real utility, occupy equal place with the ideal of form and feather. The humble hen must share the nation's burden. We must have more meat and eggs. And now, more so than ever before, can it be said of our poultry, as well as of all other livestock, that "beauty is as beauty does."

FARM AND TRACTOR SECTION.

Devoted to the multiform agricultural interests of the great Southwest and issued every week with the world's biggest Sunday newspaper.

EDITED BY HAROLD M. FINLEY.

Communications from practical farmers, ranchers, stock raisers, poultrymen, gardeners and others engaged either in a large or small way in the vital work of food production are gladly received.

Good clear photographs of interesting farm and garden activities are always welcomed. The Los Angeles Times Farm and Tractor Section is the only farm journal in the west printing illustrations in the incomparable rotogravure process.

"FOOD WIDD WIN THE WAR."

A Sane Exhibit.

FARM tractor and implement journals, as well as manufacturers and dealers in farm machinery and equipment, have often criticised the apparently irrepressible desire of some of the operators at the various tractor shows to turn their demonstrations into speed contests. The farm tractor, as everyone knows, or ought to know, is an essentially practical machine intended for practical purposes. When a demonstrator gets in the seat of one of these sturdy steel horses and starts out trying to emulate Ralph de Palma in his big racing car, thoughtful tractor dealers and manufacturers thoroughly disapprove. The practice of racing machines at a higher speed than sane mechanical considerations will justify has, however, persisted to a certain extent. It is declared to have been far too much in evidence at the recent national tractor show at Salina, Kansas.

"Of course this speed work is employed merely to attract attention," says the Farm Implement News, in commenting on some of the race-track plowing at the Salina show. "The farmer who cheers when one tractor passes another, its radiator spewing water into the furrow where it is not likely to be observed and its fuel incompletely burned, is not the kind of farmer, however, who makes a careful or competent tractor owner. When a maker advises users in his catalogue to plow at the rate of two and a third miles per hour and then runs over three and a half miles per hour at a demonstration, one is tempted to suspect that he manipulated the governor and that the piston speed was higher than he would care to observe in machines in the hands of farmers."

The same writer declares that he did not observe a single instance of first-class plowing done at high speed at the Salina demonstration. "Usually," he says, "the furrow was pitched so violently that the earth broke up into large clods instead of crumbling and pulverizing." The speed demons, in his estimation, did not know how to open up a straight furrow and follow it. He speaks also of the contrast afforded by sane driving in which the speed of the tractor was correlated with the utmost nicety to the plows pulled and good furrows were turned. In conclusion he calls upon the management of the big Los Angeles show to "have a check on tractor plowing speeds; also to judge the quality of plowing, taking into consideration straightness, furrow conformation, covering of trash, pulverization, etc."

The management of the local demonstration intends to do these very things and to make the show a sanely-conducted educational exhibit throughout. The tractor and implement men of Los Angeles, in fact, are so determined to make their show a practical demonstration of modern power farming and to eliminate the "circus stuff" that they have written and rewritten the rules and regulations for the exhibit a dozen times. Recognizing fully the fact that certain makes of machines are designed for somewhat higher speeds than others, they have taken cognizance also of the fact that different tractors are made to suit different requirements and that there is a practical reason back of the individual designing of each of the various types. With this basis of knowledge and understanding as a standard for judgment, they will demand that the character of the work accomplished measure up to the other performances of the different tractors exhibiting. It is only fair to add, too, that the tractor people in particular have taken the lead in their insistence that there be nothing but sane, practical demonstration work at this year's big Los Angeles tractor show.

A tractor demonstration in which such regulations as have been drawn up by the Traction Engine and Implement Dealers' Association of Southern California are rigidly adhered to (and there is no reason to think that they will not be at the coming show) will be truly worth while. The Los Angeles show bids fair to be a model for all those that are to follow the country over.

FARM LABOR AGENCY NO. 191.

The editor of the Farm and Tractor Section is an officially authorized farm labor agent and will receive and forward applications for work from volunteers in any branch of the great farm army, as well as calls by farmers for help.

Farmers or workers wishing to take advantage of this service should anticipate their requirements and desires as much as possible in order to insure getting results and should be as specific as possible in their communications.

Such calls will be received by letter, telegraph or telephone, and every effort will be made to bring farmers and applicants together in mutually satisfactory arrangements. State wages wanted or offered.

IMPERIAL VALLEY CALLING FOR MEN.

Emil J. Bernatche, special agent of the United States employment bureau, finds that the farm labor situation in the Southwest is more satisfactory now than at this time last year, although many workers have left the field for the army, the shipyards and other industries. He attributes this to the action of the farmers in adjusting themselves to conditions, to the increased use of the tractor and other labor-saving farm equipment, and to a moderate hegira of city men to the farm.

Mr. Bernatche states that the greatest call for men at the present time comes from the Imperial Valley, where the greatest crops of cotton and milo ever known there are waiting for at least 2000 workers. This work, however, can be done at any time before the season winds in February and March. To offset the Imperial demand and that of beet and bean growers at this time, workers are coming from the north and from Mexico. Mr. Bernatche has been notified that 1500 salmon canners and miners are coming to Southern California from Alaska soon, and the end of the grape season in Central California will release 1500 more for work further south. The bean harvest on the southern coast region will have been well finished by September 1. This will mean more men for Imperial Valley.

Beet sugar growers and manufacturers of Southern California have found it necessary to call for but 100 Mexicans from below the international border this year, as against from 400 to 800 last year. The Salt River Valley and the Yuma district will import about 300 more Mexicans.

AVOCADO PROSPECTS GOOD.

Prospects for the avocado crop are now excellent, according to the latest Los Angeles County Farm Bureau Monthly.

Last year was a very bad one for the avocado grower, for, in common with citrus trees, the crop quite largely fell off as a result of the heat wave. In addition, severe burning occurred on many of the avocado trees. However, as was the case with citrus, avocado trees bloomed very heavily this season and set a heavy crop. Although a considerable fall of fruits is now occurring, worse in some sections than in others, the prospects are for the largest crop ever produced. For the first time, probably, there will be enough fruit on the local market this fall to make a showing. Quite a number of Fuerte and Puebla trees will come into bearing this season and the indications are that the Knight varieties will show their fruiting quality for the first time.

LITTLE LEAF OF FRUIT TREES PREVENTED BY KNOWING CAUSES.

BY ROBERT W. HODGSON.

THE condition known as "little leaf" in deciduous fruits has been recognized for many years. It is characterized by failure to leaf out at the normal time and the production of leaves which are very small and narrow and yellow in color. This condition may extend throughout the tree or may be confined only to one or two limbs. It varies somewhat in its appearance and effects in different kinds of fruits. In the peach, particularly, it is characterized by the production of long slender shoots on the new growth, terminated by a cluster or tuft of leaves; the small leaves along the shoot usually shed relatively early in the season. In the apple and pear, "little leaf" usually manifests itself more in the dwarfing of the leaves on the affected branches. In the walnut the effect usually consists only in the greatly delayed process of leafing out, with the production of small leaves of decidedly mottled appearance. In all cases, however, the trouble results in the failure of affected branches to carry fruit to maturity. Fruit may fail to set, or if it does, it does not develop, shrivels and ultimately drops. In some cases where only a few branches are affected, the tree apparently grows out of this condition, later in the season, and normal leaves are produced on the affected shoots.

ORIGINAL THEORY.

A number of years ago Prof. R. F. Smith advanced the idea that "little leaf" was to be attributed to unseasonable climatic conditions such as long, dry winters. The exceptionally dry season of 1917, with its long delayed rains, has furnished the writer an excellent opportunity for observation upon this point. "Little leaf" is much more prevalent this spring than for a number of years. It is particularly bad in dry-farmed sections and in localities where the supply of irrigation water is exhausted by the middle of the season. Such is the case in the Antelope Valley, where there are several thousand acres of apples and pears. In many orchards from 15 to 40 per cent. of the trees show "little leaf."

There is a decided correlation between the presence of "little leaf" and light sandy soils. In one orchard of 160 acres, which I visited, practically all of the affected trees are confined to one portion of the orchard and examination with a soil auger showed the soil to be somewhat more sandy here than in the remainder of the orchard, which is underlaid with a clay stratum, very retentive of water. "Little leaf" affected trees are often found in irregular streaks through an orchard and on examination these streaks are found to coincide with old stream beds or washes which have been covered over. In most cases where late irrigation is practiced the prevalence of "little leaf" is much less apparent than on adjacent areas not so irrigated. Taken all in all, the evidence points very strongly toward the verification of Prof. Smith's theory that this peculiar condition is definitely to be traced to lack of moisture in the soil.

OUR LOCAL CONDITIONS.

California fruit growers should bear in mind that a great part of our fruit-growing area is naturally semi-desert in character and that our fruit trees are therefore subject to very different conditions from those obtaining in the East, with its summer rainfall and humid climate. With the exception of a few of the districts of high elevation, winter temperatures are usually not low enough to cause the trees to go into a dormant condition. Indeed, we should more properly consider the gradual depletion of the soil moisture as the most important factor in causing dormancy in our fruit trees. In normal seasons, within a month or two after the depletion of the soil moisture has caused the trees to become dormant, the winter rains come and replenish the soil moisture before it has been depleted to an injurious degree. In seasons like that of 1917 when the San Joaquin Valley and Southern California did not receive any considerable amount of rain until February, the trees stood in a dormant condition without irrigation for as much as three or four months. The weather was intensely hot and dry and the soil moisture was soon exhausted, with the result that the trees suffered dessication. The severity of this dessication varied naturally in different sections and on different soil types and is reflected in the prevalence of "little leaf." The fact that in many cases only a limb or two on a tree is affected may be explained as due to the variation in maturity of different limbs on the tree.

On the other hand, there is a type of injury to deciduous fruit trees on lands which were heavily winter irrigated. This type of injury is manifest in weak straggly growth, with failure to set fruit. Later in the season much of this growth dies back and the tree throws out new sucker growth from the trunk and man limbs. This type of injury is apparently due to exhaustion of the food reserve. The trees were kept growing very late in the season and failed to become dormant until long after the leaves had passed their period of maturity. The result was that they used up a considerable portion of the food reserve stored up for the development and production of blossoms and new leaves in the spring and therefore reached the spring season in an exhausted condition.

RELATION TO DORMANCY.

In a region where winter temperatures are not low enough to induce dormancy it would appear dangerous to practice heavy winter irrigation, for if the trees are already dormant and the temperature is high, they may be induced to leave this condition and if not dormant, they may be prevented from becoming so. Water should be withheld toward the end of the season to induce dormancy but if rains do not come within a reasonable time, a moderate winter irrigation should be given. The soil should not be allowed to dry out.

Fruit growers in general apparently do not realize that there may be actual drought so far as the tree is concerned although plenty of water exists in the soil. "Little leaf" is often found on soils where ground water is near the surface. The water-table rises gradually during the irrigation season and in some cases toward the end comes to within a foot of the surface. This free water is not available to the tree. Only the capillary water in the soil layer above the water-table can be utilized. Tree roots must have air in order to absorb water. The gradual rise in the water-table progressively decreases the amount of water available to the tree and may result in "little leaf." In cases of this kind, the only remedy lies in drainage.

EFFECT OF ALKALI.

Another condition which may cause drought so far as the tree is concerned is the accumulation of alkali salts. This accumulation is greatest toward the end of the season and if the concentration is high enough, water absorption is cut down. There seems to be some correlation between the presence of alkali and "little leaf" conditions, particularly in portions of the San Joaquin Valley.

Another very important fact for orchardists and farmers in arid sections to bear in mind, is that as the soil fertility is depleted the water requirements of the tree are increased. It has definitely been shown that with a fertile soil it takes less than half the water to produce a pound of dry matter than in the case of an exhausted soil. Fruit growers who do not keep up their soil fertility may think that their trees are receiving enough water when in reality, due to the depletion of the soil fertility, the trees are not adequately supplied, with the result that various abnormal conditions are set up, among which may be "little leaf."

FEAR TWINE SHORTAGE.

Because of the labor conditions in Yucatan, a fear is expressed by government investigators that the fiber supply is about to be seriously reduced, with the result that America will face a serious shortage of binder twine unless some substitute for the Mexican sisal is discovered. The United States Department of Agriculture is looking to Porto Rico and the Philippines partially to relieve the situation, but so far has failed to become enthusiastic over the proposition advanced by certain private interests seeking to encourage the use of New Zealand flax for this purpose.

Production, Consumption and Business Methods.

THE LIBERTY FAIR JUDGES. BY HENRY W. KRUCKEBERG.

IT IS important to the prosperity of any poultry community that as much of the consumer's dollar as possible reaches the producer after reasonable charges (packing, cartage, freight and overhead) have been allowed for. When these grow excessive the equilibrium of good business is disturbed and satisfactory intermediary relations commence to disintegrate. For these reasons it has always been a matter of regret to the writer that nearly all poultry organizations are clannish in character; scarcely ever do yon find poultry dealers and shippers participants in poultry meetings, much less are they represented at poultry shows and exhibitions.

When a liberal portion of the consumer's dollar reaches the producer, we are by no means forgetting the intermediary, who also has a place and functions to perform. Markets and distribution are pivotal to the poultry business, for without them production soon languishes and ceases to be attractive. In the light of these facts the consumer is quite as much interested in economic distribution as in production, while the distributor finds producers and consumers fundamental to his sphere of action. The three are a triumverate forming the keystone to the arch of good business methods. It is not so much a question of personality and environment as it is that the system functions along lines of common honesty and decency.

But markets and distribution demand the services of other divisions of modern business. The distributer must often conserve products at periods of oversupply and carry them over to periods when the market is bare. In such cases the cold storage system is requisitioned alike in the interests of the producer and the consumer. It enables the former to realize at once on his products, it offers a supply to the latter when the productive period has passed or has been greatly reduced; and finally, it gives the intermediary an opportunity to do a service for which he is entitled to a fair remuneration. But right here comes in another factor, namely, the banking system. Usually neither the cold storage system nor the producer has the ready capital to handle the business; that is, it affords the producer the money for his goods as against the time when the consumer will take them. The banking system, being a depository of the people's money, here steps in and advances funds to enable business to function, rendering a service to consumer and producer, for which it also is entitled to a just and equitable return. It is not that these elemental practices are negative in themselves, but that the abuses that creep in often effect a hardship to one or all concerned. As applied to the poultry industry, we regret that business acumen and practice has not always been of the best.

The present upheaval in all lines of activity that has followed our bloody adventure with the Hun has suddenly emphasized these evils; has made it difficult for poultry breeders to realize on their industry; has exposed sharp practices in high places; has filled the atmosphere with panaceas by callow youths and academic people that make humorous reading for successful poultry breeders; has precipitated the whole industrial situation into a proud patriotic movement for the winning of the war, where the bright and apt shall sit at the right hand of honest and sane business methods and the unreliable and incompetent be relegated to the limbo of forgotten things. Is it not opportune for consumer and producer, the transportation, cold storage and banking systems to nudge elbows and all lend the helping hand in an effort to standardize the poultry industry? Or shall we continue in the present state of innocuous desuetude?

The Liberty Fair Show.

The premium list of the Poultry, Pigeon and Rabbit Department of the California Liberty Fair is now being distributed and should be in the hands of every breeder interested in this show at the earliest possible moment so that he may begin the conditioning of the stock he expects to enter. This premium list is a real work of art and from a standpoint of premiums is the most ambitious ever issued for a poultry and pet stock show in Southern California.

A total of $1500 in cash prizes is offered to exhibitors in the three departments of this show, so divided that even the smallest classes get a chance to participate in the money prizes.

The directors of the California Liberty Fair recognizing that the poultry, pigeon and rabbit interests of Southern California are large and that the entries at this show are likely to reach record breaking proportions, have at great expense secured the best talent in the country to place the awards. D. T. Heimlich of Jacksonville, Ill., will handle the principal classes in the poultry department. Mr. Heimlich, who is president of the Illinois State branch of the American Poultry Association is one of the best known of the eastern poultry judges. In the exhibition classes Mr. Heimlich will be assisted by A. H. Currier of Santa Rosa, also an American Poultry Association judge of note. In the utility classes, which will be judged for apparent egg capacity, the awards will be made by George E. England of Inglewood and M. A. Schofield of Gardena, both of whom are recognized authorities in that line of work.

The judge in the pigeon department will come clear across the continent to place the awards for this show. George Feather of Dorchester Center, Mass., who is recognized as the ablest judge of pigeons in the United States today, is expected to draw the largest entry of pigeons ever shown on the Coast. Large entries have been promised from Northern California, as well as from points as far East as Salt Lake City and El Paso.

The rabbit department will have as judge Lewis S. J. Griffin of Colorado Springs, Colo., who has given such universal satisfaction at eastern rabbit shows that the directors of the California Liberty Fair felt that they could do no better than to secure his services to pass on the large number of entries that have been promised for this department.

Walter M. Ross will be superintendent of the poultry department, L. S. McKee of the pigeon department and C. E. Sherman of the rabbit department. These gentlemen have had a great deal of experience in the conduct of shows of this kind and exhibitors may rest assured that their entries will receive the proper care and attention during the time they are on exhibition at the fair. Entries in the poultry department close October 1. In the pigeon department, October 6, and in the rabbit department, September 30. A card to the California Liberty Fair, Central Park, Los Angeles, will bring a copy of the premium list and entry blanks by return mail.

Vegetable Protein for Chickens.

Among the poultry experiments now being conducted on the government farm at Beltsville (Md.) are a number of feeding tests in which the value of vegetable protein is being compared with beef scrap. One pen of chickens fed a mash containing 20 per cent. beef scrap produced in five and one-half months an average of sixty-three eggs per hen. Another pen fed a mash consisting of 10 per cent. peanut meal and 10 per cent. beef scrap produced an average of 53.4 eggs per hen during the same period. The hens in a third pen were fed a mash consisting of 10 per cent. soy-bean meal and 10 per cent. beef scrap averaged 44.4 eggs for the period. In other pens cottonseed meal and velvet-bean meal were fed as part substitute for beef scrap with the result that the hens produced a fair egg yield, though not as high as the hens in the first pen mentioned.

Just because your neighbors' hens lay more eggs than yours, does not prove that your breed is not as good. The chances are you are neglecting the birds, or the ration is not quite right. All breeds are good in the lands of good breeders.

DOWN-TO-DATE REPORTS FROM TIMES CORRESPONDENTS.

EAST HIGHLANDS.—The bee ranchers of this section, which has so many apiaries in the hills where the bees can feed on the wild flowers, are assured of the best returns they have had in the history of the business here, for $500 a ton for the best grade honey, it is said, will be no exceptional figure. In most of the stores clear strained honey is now bringing 45 cents a pint, which was what a quart sold for two years ago. Comb honey is selling for 35 cents a comb. The crop will not be as heavy as it has been in some years. There has been comparatively little disease in the broods this year, but the bees could not handle the flower crops, which were of shorter duration than usual. It is declared that in most years the orange trees have bloomed two weeks longer than they did this year and this is said to be the cause of a shortage in the honey production to some extent. A fine grade of honey is being secured and some of it when properly strained is so clear that not a particle of foreign matter can be discovered with the naked eye.

PORTERVILLE. — According to reports by C. H. Doyle, Horticultural Inspector for this district, only about 100 acres of orange groves in this immediate district were marked this season for fumigation for control of gray scale. Due to the weather conditions which have prevailed, and especially the dry winter, the scale pests have shown practically no increase since the last fumigation work, meaning a saving to the orange grove owners of this section of a large sum in the aggregate.

DINUBA.—Highest prices ever paid for table grapes from this district have been reported from the New York market where five cars of Malagas from the Alta section grossed more than $10,000. The high record was made by one car which brought $2270. Tokays also brought an unusual figure, prices of as high as $2.50 per crate being reported for extra choice fruit.

TERRA BELLA.—W. F. McClure, State Engineer, who has been here for the past several days on official business connected with the Terra Bella Irrigation District, has approved in unqualified terms of the present administration of the district affairs. He has unofficially given his approval to plans for new wells, which are to be driven for the purpose of developing a larger water supply.

SAN DIMAS.—A number of improvements are being made at the Orange House, including a new garage, which is being made big enough to house four automobiles. A White motor truck was recently purchased for the use of the company. Besides these improvements the yard around the Orange House is being beautified by the planting of shade trees. According to W. F. Nequette, manager of the Orange House, there will be a big run of oranges this year and about 400 cars of navels will be handled this season. This does not include the Valencias, as no estimate of that variety has been made by Manager Nequette so far.

RIVERSIDE.—A possible new source of sugar is presented in the carob bean, the product of what is more commonly known as the St. John's breadfruit tree, a variety of tree which has been planted in White Park and along certain streets because of its novelty and shapeliness.

John W. Walters of No. 3651 Rosewood avenue, Los Angeles, associated with James W. Bryan of Rialto, have approached the Board of Park Commissioners with a proposal which may lead to far-reaching results. They have requested permission to gather the pods from the trees here for the purpose of experimenting in the making of syrup.

Walters says the pods run very high in sugar content, and are also valuable when converted into meal. The proposal will be considered by the park commissioners at an early date.

SANTA ANA.—It has taken considerable time, money and energy to take the word "Valley" out of the official name of the Santa Ana Valley Walnut Growers' Association, but at last the feat is practically accomplished, and the business now will be run simply as the Santa Ana Walnut Growers' Association. The new association, legally incorporated from the old membership, was formed and the old packing machinery here was purchased. Some new members were received, and a new packing plant is nearing completion. It will be ready to take care of this year's nuts. Indications are for a record crop, say association heads.

POMONA.—Squirrel poisoning has been the order of the day for some time on the Lewis ranch near here. A ton of clean rolled barley was purchased, and sufficient strychnine to affect the entire ton. Then this was placed, in carefully measured quantities, into a barrel churn and slowly revolved. The mixture was perfect—every grain having its proper proportion of poison. When a few grains were placed near a squirrel hole, the little rodents would come running out to devour the good meal. Some of them "keeled over" right on the spot, but numbers of them ran back into their burrows. The State Agricultural Office estimates that five squirrels are dead in the burrows for every one found outside. It is thought that probably 3000 squirrels were slaughtered on the Lewis ranch within a few days. This is a good time to tackle the squirrel problem, for the animals are working hard to store away their winter provisions, and are thus hungrier than if they were idle.

BEAUMONT.—The first carload of apples was shipped from here two weeks ago. They were mostly Summer Champions and were of fine quality. The apple crop will be much larger this season than last and of a much better quality.

A larger operating fund has been created this year, which will materially aid the business affairs of the association, which has shipped many apricots and peaches direct to the market. Most of the peach crop, however, has been sold to the Banning Cannery.

Fruit received by the association this year, not up to the packing standard, will be sold to the Redlands By-product factory.

Eighteen sacks of barley to the acre is the record of the Porter ranch near here this season.

DUCOR.—Experimental culture of Egyptian cotton in the Ducor district apparently has shown that long-staple of a very high quality can be produced in this district and gives promise of an important new industry for this section of the county. Those conversant with the crops in the Imperial Valley declare the condition of cotton in culture here compares with the best of the south.

FINE STOCK TO COME FROM AFAR TO CALIFORNIA LIBERTY FAIR.

GREAT interest is being shown by stock breeders in many States in the live stock show and competition to be held in connection with the California Liberty Fair in Los Angeles. Premiums aggregating $33,500 for cattle, horses, swine, sheep and goats have been offered. The live stock show feature of the fair will rival in importance the United States government exhibit, which is expected to be a fine one.

More than 125 entries, embracing 1500 animals, have been made. There will be at least 800 blooded hogs. So many have entered goats that the entry list in this class has been closed. Already the owners of 550 goats have entered their animals.

Some far-away exhibitors will send blooded stock. Among them are the Miller-Maxwell Company; Steamboat Springs (Colo.) Shorthorn Breeders; the Wyoming Corporation, Denver, showing Herefords; Frank Brown of Carleton, Or., wealthy Shorthorn breeder; the Nevada State Agricultural College, which will show Hereford cattle and Corriedale sheep; and Scharbauer & Young of Phoenix, Ariz., who have Herefords to show.

Other cattlemen who have entered Shorthorn and Hereford animals are: J. A. Bunting, Mission San Jose, Cal.; Caruther Bros., Live Oak, Cal.; C. M. Hawkins, Hollister, Cal.; T. T. Miller, Los Angeles, and the Dibblee estate, Santa Barbara. The Kern County Land Company, the Globe Grain and Milling Company, and W. H. Dupee of Santee, Cal., have announced that they will be represented in the carlot class of cattle. Guernseys will be shown by the Adohr Stock Farm, Owensmouth, and the Elliott-Brant ranch, Owensmouth.

Exhibitors of hogs will include J. C. Craig, W. B. Hewitt and Dr. Michael Creamer, all of Owensmouth, who have fine Duroc Jerseys to show; F. Lee Gordon, Los Angeles, with Hampshire hogs; John M. Bernstein, M. Bassett and Hagg & Son, all of Hanford, who will show Poland Chinas, and the Conejo ranch near Los Angeles, with Hampshires and Durocs.

Mrs. Anita Baldwin will enter various animals from blooded horses to dogs. Special attention will be given the entries of the boys' and girls' pig and corn clubs.

FENCING BIG RANCH FOR LIVE STOCK.

POMONA.—With the addition of 400 acres of land acquired last week by the Frederick Lesis estate west of Pomona, that property now amounts to 7500 acres. Of this acreage, there is a large part given over to pasturage, and within a few months there are to be sent from the Middle West a great number of cattle for both feeding and breeding.

To prepare for this stock, the fences of the entire ranch are being repaired, and some new lines will be run. All told, there will be about 100 miles of wire fence. As a matter of interest to the general public, it was stated yesterday by Elliot Johnson, foreman of the big ranch, that every pound of this wire must be signed for, just the same as housewives sign up for ten pounds of sugar. It is estimated that 15,000 pounds of barbed wire will be necessary for the new lines and the repairs, and there will also be used about three car loads of posts. A force of ten men will be put on the fences at once and will continue working for about sixty days.

Another improvement will be making a new roadway from the principal buildings to the boulevard. At present the surveyors are staking out the road, but work will not be started until the hauling for the beet crop is finished. There are about 150 acres in beets, and as soon as the crop is harvested, which will be in about two weeks, the tops will be pastured to sheep or cattle.

TO SHOW ROMNEYS AT LIBERTY FAIR.

It is probable that the live stock exhibits at the Liberty Fair in October 12 to 26 will include a showing of Romney sheep, according to L. S. Thomas, live stock superintendent. This breed is rather a curiosity in this section, John E. Marble of South Pasadena being the only local breeder who has signified his intention of showing them. Mr. Marble will also show Dorsets, he has announced.

Mr. Thomas hopes to bring some Romneys from Idaho and Washington, and possibly from other States, to compete with the local exhibitor.

The "Romney Marsh" sheep was originally developed in the low, marshy sections of Great Britain, and is noted for its ability to withstand mud and dampness, which are so often the Nemesis of other breeds. It is a good-sized sheep, hardy and active and shears a good fleece of medium coarse wool. Although but recently raised to any extent in the United States and still in the hands of only a few breeders the Romneys have been very popular in Australia and New Zealand a recent importation having been brought to the State of Washington from the latter country.

RETURNS FROM BIG HAY CONVENTION.

Albert E. Nicholls, president of the Nicholls-Loomis Company, who has recently returned to Los Angeles from an extended trip East, where he attended the twenty-fifth annual jubilee National Hay Convention, held at Cleveland, O., reports that gathering a great success in every way. One of the interesting features of the convention was the hay exhibit. Small sample bales of timothy, clover, Sudan, wheat, prairie and mixed hay, in fact, all kinds and qualities were on exhibit from various sections of the United States and Canada. Mr. Nicholls arranged for the shipment of these samples to Los Angeles and they are now on display at the office of the company, No. 2505 Santa Fe avenue.

The National Hay Association was founded in 1893 with fifty leading hay shippers of the East as members. It has grown until at the present time approximately 1250 of the larger and more prominent hay shippers of the country are represented in its membership. A former president of the association, George S. Bridge of Chicago, is now chief of the forage branch, Quartermaster-General of the army. The present officers are: Samuel Walton, Pittsburgh, president; W. H. Toberman, St. Louis, vice-president; Albert E. Nicholls, Los Angeles, second vice-president and J. Vining Taylor, Winchester, Ind., secretary-treasurer.

Mr. Nicholls advises that the largest crop of wheat ever produced is being harvested. In fact, generally speaking, grain and hay crops all over the country are exceptionally good. The principal hay markets have been much congested the last few months, he reports, and the poorer grades of hay particularly, have been hard to dispose of. Prices have declined materially, in some sections, large quantities of old hay being carried over. Corn, he says, is looking fine, aside from a small district, where late frost did some damage. With normal weather from now on a bumper crop of corn will be harvested.

Well-bred and well-fed—a winning combination.

PREMIUM LIST OUT.

The management of the First Annual Exhibition of the California International Livestock Show Corporation, to be held at San Francisco, November 2 to 10, inclusive, has just issued the premium list for this event. The show is to be held at Twelfth and Market streets on a tract of land owned by the San Francisco Hibernia Bank and the Van Bergen estate. Entries for all classes will close October 5th, and animals for exhibit will be received and housed on and after Wednesday, October 29.

The show will include a goat department and a poultry and rabbit section. In the last named section entries will be received up to October 15.

The officers of the California International Livestock Show Corporation are Edgar J. DePue, president; Joseph E. Painter, manager and L. M. King, secretary.

ECONOMICAL PRODUCER.

Two facts stand out prominently as reasons for the increased production and use of milk. The first is that milk as purchased on the market usually supplies food material together with the growth-producing elements more economically than either meat or eggs. The second reason is that the dairy cow is the most economical producer of animal food. One great law of food conservation is to turn inedible feeds into edible foods in the cheapest possible manner. The dairy cow will utilize coarse materials, inedible to humans—such as grass, cornstalks, hay, etc.—and will turn them into milk. Other farm animals also are converters of coarse roughage into edible foods, but are not so efficient as the dairy cow.

GOOD CARE ADDS TO LIFE OF TRACTOR.

The life of a tractor under Southern California conditions is an important factor in determining its value for farm work in this vicinity. It is difficult, however, to accurately gauge the term of usefulness of the tractor here because of the comparatively short time the gas tractor has been in use.

So many changes have been made in the tractor since its adoption as the chief motive power for farm work, that it is impossible to obtain any really definite figures as to the amount of work a tractor of modern design reasonably may be expected to do before it must be replaced.

There are several factors which have considerable influence on the amount of service rendered by a given machine, by far the most important of which is the care it receives at the hands of the operator. The quality of the outfit, the kind of work it performs, and the conditions under which it is operated will all materially affect its life.

Almost all tractors are used under conditions which are extremely severe for any kind of machine. They travel over rough and uneven ground and are subjected to severe shocks both from obstructions in the path and from the load being pulled. A still more injurious condition is their exposure to an almost constant shower of dust and dirt. The soil, if it contains much gritty substance, attacks the gears and bearing surfaces unless an efficient filter is provided for the air intake into the carburetor.

Practically none of the modern tractors are worn out. The nearest estimates of their probable life may best be gained by the experience of the men who have used them a season or two. Almost all the operators estimate that their machines will last longer than the average. The answers to questions sent operators as to the probable length of life of their tractors shows the average conclusion that seven and one-half to eight years was considered the term of usefulness of their machines.

TO OFFER LECTURES ON TRACTIONEERING.

One of the features of the coming tractor demonstration of the Traction Engine and Implement Dealers' Association will be the series of lectures on tractor operation and repair to be given every day of the demonstration under the auspices of the National Automotive School. R. G. Coles, one of the instructors of the school, will be in charge and the entire personnel of the school will be moved out to the grounds for the week.

The schedule of lectures is as follows:

Tuesday, September 17.—Principle of the four-stroke gas engine; twin and four-cylinder types; cylinder designs and cooling methods; tractor ignition.

Wednesday.—Carburetors and mixers; handling heavy fuels; magnetos.

Thursday.—Bearings and lubrication; oils and greases; how to avoid ignition trouble.

Friday.—Breaking in a new tractor; repairing magnetos without the help of a service man.

Saturday.—How to succeed with tractor farming.

The general public will be given the benefit of this instruction, which is the same given the students of the school as part of their regular tractor course. Tractor operators will learn something new of the operation and care of machines in use and will be given a good general idea of the principle of the tractor. A large space has been engaged by the school for the accommodation of interested persons attending the lectures, which will be free to all.

NEW CROPS FOR SUBURBAN FARMS.

T. J. Walker, a San Fernando Valley farmer, has this season tried out two new crops for this farming suburb with marked success. He has a ten-acre field of Early Amber Sweet Sorghum, which has done remarkably well and will run at least twenty tons to the acre. The sweet sorghums make excellent silage and in the hotter, drier portions of the county, where maize cannot be grown successfully, this crop is very promising for the live stock grower to consider. In addition, a fine grade of sorghum syrup may be made from this grain. Several mills will be installed in Los Angeles county this season.

Mr. Walker has also been growing the soy bean in the San Fernando Valley and it is showing up well. The growth made by this plant is remarkable and it promises very much in the way of a summer cover crop. In six weeks it is large enough to entirely cover the ground.

HOW TO HANDLE GRAIN SORGHUMS.

Grain sorghums should not be harvested before the heads are mature nor stored before they are properly cured. When grain sorghum heads are well cured they make valuable feed, but because of the excessive amount of moisture which they contain they may become moldy or musty and unfit for feed unless thoroughly dried before being stored. Well-ventilated bins should be used in storing sorghum grains, for free circulation of air through the mass of grain is insurance against heating.

CURING IN WINDROW.

Under favorable weather conditions the heads may be cured by throwing them in long, shallow piles as they are cut from the stalks. Care must be taken not to make the piles too large if the crop is wet or if it is at all green. When fully mature and thoroughly dry the heads of milo and feterita may be hauled directly to well-ventilated cribs. The heads of kafir require greater care in drying, for the stems may be green and juicy when the grain is ripe.

If threshing or grinding is to be done the grain should be allowed to become thoroughly dry. In ordinary threshing a high percentage of grain is cracked. Cracked grain packs more closely and spoils more readily than whole grain. To increase the percentage of whole grain in threshing reduce the speed of the cylinder and remove part of the concaves of the separator.

PREVENT HEATING.

In storing sorghum heads or the threshed grain every precaution should be taken to prevent heating. The more moisture the grain contains when put in storage the more readily will it heat. If large quantities are stored in one bin, the risk of damage increases. The warmer and moister the climate, the quicker the grain will get out of condition. Weavils working in the grain increase its temperature and decrease the spaces for air circulation, thus making conditions favorable for further damage from heating. Storage bins should be provided with simple, cheap, ventilators made of long, narrow frames covered with wire screen. These should be placed on the floor three or four feet apart, extending the full length of the bin, and opening at either end to the outer air. In wide and deep bins it is advisable to place a row of upright ventilators through the middle of the bin, the lower ends resting on the ventilator which has been placed on the floor, thus making a sort of chimney up through the grain and giving better circulation of air. Whenever possible the storage of sorghum in large bins should be avoided, and stored sorghum should be inspected frequently.

ONE-HOUR TILLAGE TESTS ARE PLANNED.

The one-hour tillage demonstration plan for tractors at the coming third annual tractor meet is to be of great value to the farmer.

Each tractor will be allotted a certain amount of land to plow in one hour's time. These small tracts will be apportioned in proportion to the manufacturer's draw bar rating for the individual tractor. If the machine does what the maker claims for it, the tract will be plowed at the end of the hour allotted. This allows the spectator to judge for himself whether the manufacturer's rating is correct.

At the beginning of this public tillage demonstration all tractors will be arranged in a line, and will get away at the same instant. All will be engaged in the same kind of work. This plan will be repeated for the various types of field work performed by the tractors.

The 1917 demonstration was one of the biggest successes of any farm equipment demonstration ever held in America. It is believed, however, that this year's event will far outstrip it in size and importance. No expense is being spared in making extensive arrangements for the meet. It will be broader in its scope and more instructive to the farmer than any ever held in the West.

FINDS PEAT A GOOD COMPOST INGREDIENT.

After years of study and numerous experiments with peat soils from all the known existing peat beds of the Pacific Coast, Thomas E. Stimson of the local office of the State Commission of Horticulture, states that he has discovered a method whereby peat may be artificially decomposed and used in conjunction with other fertilizing mediums, proving of great benefit to the soil.

The resulting materials, according to Mr. Stimson, is a compost of peat soil, animal manure, and tankage which is subjected to the chemical action of phosphates, sulphates and animal wastes. He claims for the material that not only is it useful as a fertilizer for lawns, flowers, and vegetables, but that it acts as an internal reservoir to lawn and soil, holding five times its bulk and moisture. It is also said to be a mechanical conditioner of the soil, binding up and making more friable a heavy clay soil. Mr. Stimson also claims for it that it carries a large amount of animal and vegetable organic matter, and is valuable to the soil on account of the resultant humus.

Experiments have shown, Mr. Stimson points out, that Orange county peat soils lack the acidity characteristic with most peat soils and will prove valuable where the peat can be cheaply hauled and used as bedding for stock and later composted in the manure pile.

The best insurance against accidents in gardening is knowing how to garden.

CHANGE OF TRACTOR SHOW SITE PLEASING TO THE EXHIBITORS.

CONFRONTED with the impossibility of properly accommodating the large number of exhibitors at the originally-intended site on Whittier boulevard, officials of the Traction Engine and Implement Dealers' Association have changed the location for the big tractor demonstration to the La Brea ranch just west of the Los Angeles city limits. The final decision was made at the banquet of the association at the Alexandria Hotel a week ago and the change is now known to most intending tractor show visitors.

The new site is on Wilshire boulevard at La Brea avenue, and consists of 450 acres of land admirably adapted for the purposes of the demonstration. The Santa Monica red car line serves the tract, which is also accessible to automobile travel from the whole section.

The change of location makes it possible for many additional entrants to be accommodated, and visitors will be better able to enjoy the show, which starts Tuesday, Sept. 17, and closes Saturday, Sept. 21.

The general committee is warm in commendation of the spirit which led G. Allen Hancock, owner of La Brea ranch, to grant the use of a large part of this fine property for the demonstration. Mr. Hancock explained to the tractor men that he wanted to do what he could for the development of power farming, which is so necessary for increasing the food supply. Incidentally Mr. Hancock intends to go back to the farming of his great ranch on a large scale with the opening of the next growing season.

Being nearer the business section of Los Angeles, and more centrally located for both exhibitors and farmers, the committee also points out that the La Brea ranch is nearer the beaches, where exhibitors and farmers can take their families for the week. None of the construction work was actually started at the Whittier boulevard site, so no financial loss has been sustained because of the change.

A banquet will be tendered visiting tractor and implement men from the north by the local association at the Alexandria Hotel on the evening of Sept. 17.

THE HOMECROFTER AND OLD HI COST.

BY UNCLE MARSH.

There are many combinations possible in the homecroft garden that cannot be generally attempted in open field work. We therefore suggest to the lady inquirer from Puente that we would rather plant the ground under the spreading walnut tree to alfalfa than to cut it down, providing she has sufficient room for her vegetables in other parts of her lot. Of course eight walnut trees are more than anyone has personal use for but the years of growth represented in that spreading tree are quite valuable and while we do not believe in real homecrofters growing any product directly for sale in the market, yet it is true that walnuts are very good trading material among fellow homecrofters for anything else that may be needed. To cut it down so as to grow potatoes means a direct loss. The walnuts with a yield of only fifty pounds will be worth $7.50. Eliminating the risk of failure, the potatoes in that same space would not be much more than that. The lady undoubtedly has chickens and needs alfalfa. She has now or must soon have a milch goat and needs alfalfa all the more. Alfalfa needs sunshine, but if the walnut tree stands out in the center so that the different angles of sunlight sweep under the tree she can make some considerable alfalfa there to the benefit of the tree as well if she does not stint the supply of water. The alfalfa, carefully tended and fed occasionally with gypsum, which makes it grow magically, will furnish some little pasture for bees, feed for chickens and goats and be a beauty spot.

Another profitable planting in a shaded area should be horse radish. This is a very profitable crop and one that a homecrofter can raise to some excess because the product is usually exchangeable at the grocery store as readily as eggs; that is, after it has been prepared in bottles.

There are several combinations that can be worked out to make one piece of ground produce two crops by giving it personally applied attention.

While only a few of us may be able to save all of our seeds for next season's planting, every homecrofter should certainly save his corn seed. In the great corn belt it is considered a critical error to plant imported seed corn. It is an established fact that corn brought in from other localities is likely to be inferior in yield and quantity. Thousands of tests made in experiment stations and tests made in twenty-eight States by the government show the losses from using corn seed imported from other localities. Your seedsman at Los Angeles may have local seed, but the very best seed corn for you to have are the selected ears from this year's crop. Go select them. Strip down the husks and remove any worms. Then tie the husks back and allow the corn to cure on the stalk. Then remove and hang in cool, dry place among the rafters of the workshop until next spring.

PROMISING TRACTOR MARKET IN MEXICO.

Special efforts are now being made by President Carranza of Mexico to introduce American methods of agriculture and American farm implements, especially tractors, in the southern republic, according to C. J. Boothroyd, general agent of the Constitutionalist railways of Mexico, formerly called the National railways.

One of the important steps in this direction was the importation of 250 farm tractors from the United States. More than 100 other tractors have been ordered, and will be rushed south to the fertile acres of the "Land of Manana." On account of the large size of the ranches throughout Northern Mexico, the tractor becomes almost indispensable there.

TRACTOR MAN PASSES.

One of the big men in the farm tractor field, J. J. Dauch, founder and head of the Dauch Manufacturing Company of Sandusky, O., was killed in an auto accident near Huron, O., August 15. Manager Rabb, of the local branch, was apprised by wire of the passing of this manufacturing genius.

With a party of friends, Mr. Dauch was motoring. His chauffeur on approaching a railroad crossing, looked behind him to see if a train was approaching, and lost control of the machine. The chauffeur was also killed.

Mr. Dauch was president of the $5,000,000 Hinde & Dauch Paper Company and heavily interested in other enterprises in addition to the "Sandusky" plant.

EXHIBITION GROUNDS 4 MILES FROM HEART OF LOS ANGELES. WILSHIRE BOULEVARD CORNER LA BREA AVENUE.

Owner of Jersey Pure Breds Enthusiast for Testing.

A Notable Herd.

A DAIRY herd pronounced by F. H. Scribner, assistant farm adviser for Los Angeles county, in charge of dairying, and organizer of the local cow-testing association, to be the best pure-bred Jersey herd in the county is that owned by Grant A. Brown of the Eastmont Farm at El Monte. This dairy was the destination of a recent personally-conducted tour under the direction of Prof. F. W. Woll, dairy expert of the University of California, with a class of agricultural students of the summer university extension course.

Of the herd of thirty-eight cows now owned at Eastmont Farm, twenty-six are milking and nine of these are under test. Mr. Brown expects to carry out the plan of testing all his cows, and of making yearly records for each. His aim is to raise heifers of his own breeding that produce more butter fat than their dams, retaining only those with the most excellent records and selling the original stock as he replaces them with still higher grade animals.

With this end in view, Mr. Brown has just had shipped to him from Besonte Farm, Lawrence, Kan., a four-months-old bull calf, in which he places great hopes. Financial Silver Oxford, No. 163269, is the official name of this youngster and Mr. Brown feels the utmost confidence that he will live up to the records of his famous family, his sire being Lady Shylock's Financier.

Among the particularly well-bred animals which are making records for themselves at Eastmont Farm is Lottie Willowood, a registered two-year-old with 413.91 pounds of butter fat to her credit for the past year; Daisy Witch, No. 229801, a cow that has tested over forty-six pounds of butter fat in the first twenty days of her test; Fern's Imperial Lady, with a record of 11,507 pounds and 13 ounces of milk in a year, yielding 620 pounds of butter fat, a sister to Fern's Silver Ray, a cow holding the State record for butter fat for two years; Elodine Willowood, finishing her year's test on July 2, 1918, with 568 pounds of fat.

Eastmont Farm is a twenty-five-acre ranch, of which twenty-one acres are farmed. Corn is grown in the summer for silage; vetch is planted in the fall and oats for silage in the spring. Milking is done twice a day at this time, though Mr. Brown expects to milk all test cows three times a day as he advances with his plans. He sells his milk to a Pasadena dairy for distribution as milk, and claims that the business can be made a profitable one even with high-testing Jerseys. His testimony on this point is that he has done it and is still doing it even in these times of high food prices. Mr. Brown has the utmost enthusiasm for the future of the pure-bred dairy industry in this district.
